HOOVER TO SPEAK AT CONVENTION OF LEGION TOMORROW

Sudden Change of Plans Interpreted As Decision to Make Fight on Cash Bonus Payment.

TOPIC OF ADDRESS IS NOT ANNOUNCED

President Will Leave Rapidan Camp This Evening and Write Speech on Way to Detroit.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—In the face of rapidly growing demands for cash redemption of the soldiers' bonus, President Hoover suddenly decided today to address the American Legion's annual convention Monday at Detroit.

The President's unexpected decision, regarded in official circles as of importance, was announced by Theodore Joslin, one of his secretaries, as arrangements were being made for the President's usual week-end trip to the Rapidan camp.

Although no announcement was made of the President's proposed topic, his sudden reversal of plans was interpreted here as a last-minute decision to throw the administration's full weight against demands for cash payment of the World War adjusted service certificates.

Controversial Issues.

His address will be made in an atmosphere charged with controversial issues, including in addition to the bonus, prohibition, unemployment relief and national defense.

Many State delegates are going to the convention directed to stand for cash redemption of the bonus certificates and some have been instructed to urge repeal or modification of prohibition.

President Hoover had hesitated to accept invitations to attend the convention because of the press of business. He had refused to make up his mind, even as recently as last Monday, despite the encouragement of Legion officials and members of his official family.

Mr. Hoover left the White House shortly after 2 o'clock today for his Rapidan camp.

Goes to Work on Speech.

After his arrival at his Rapidan camp he went immediately to work on his speech. The President worked late in the evening and will work on his speech all day tomorrow. It probably will not be finished until Monday morning shortly before he takes the Legion platform.

He is expected to leave the camp late tomorrow afternoon, motoring to some nearby railroad station, probably across the line in West Virginia, to board a special train out of Washington for Detroit.

Mrs. Hoover will not make the trip. According to present plans, the President will be accompanied by Joslin and Lawrence Richey, another secretary; Capt. Russell Train, naval aid; Col. Campbell Hodges, military aid, and Capt. Joel T. Boone, White House physician.

Hoover to Be on Platform With Newton D. Baker.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 19.—Speculation among the Legion officials and delegates who have arrived early for the national convention which begins Monday, centered on the effect President Hoover's speech may have on the campaign to put the Legion on record as favoring immediate full payment of the veterans' bonus certificates at face value.

President Hoover, speaking Monday morning, will be on the same platform with Newton D. Baker, war time Secretary of War, who is regarded as a possibility for the Democratic nomination for President in 1932.

Controversial issues were introduced into the race for national commander, as one of the eight candidates announced a definite platform and two others indicated that they would make known their positions before the election next Thursday.

Emmet O'Neal of Louisville gave out a statement in which he opposed further payment on veterans' bonus certificates and advocated that the legion take no stand on prohibition.

O'Neal's statement declared that "We, the able-bodied service men, ask nothing of our fellow country men," and asserted that "the claim of our country upon us is greater than any claim we have for further payment on adjusted compensation."

DIVER DROPPED INTO ICY WATER TO REPAIR NAUTILUS

Only Little Paint Left on Polar Submarine—Expected at Bergen Today.

By the Associated Press.

OSLO, Norway, Sept. 19.—Bernard Jensen of Harstad, who piloted the polar submarine Nautilus part of the way southward along the Norwegian coast, said today its hull was severely battered by ice and only a few spots of paint were left. The bow, he said, also was damaged.

"The Nautilus has one of America's greatest divers aboard," he said, "a man who once remained 22 minutes at a depth of 70 feet. When the submarine was in the middle of the ice the diver had to go down into the icy sea to free the propeller screw from a piece of metal which had been knocked off by the ice and was preventing it from revolving."

Jensen said the crew was well when he left, but "a little pale."

By the Associated Press.

BERGEN, Norway, Sept. 19.—Sir Hubert Wilkins, commander of the polar submarine Nautilus, expects to arrive here with the ship early Sunday, he said in a message received today.

The submarine spent today some miles to the north of here, the message said, while repairs were being made.

PLANE CRASHES ON RAILWAY AND IS HIT BY FAST TRAIN

Cars on Adjacent Track Strike Tail of Craft; Two Aviators Injured.

By the Associated Press.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Sept. 19.—Two aviators were seriously injured when their plane was forced down on the Southern Railway tracks at Harrisburg today almost in the path of a rapidly moving passenger train. As the two men lay unconscious, the train struck the tail of the already damaged plane, spinning it around. The engineer, apparently unaware of the presence of the plane, did not stop.

The injured men, John E. Lohr, pilot, of High Point, and Albert Jones of Mount Tabor, were brought to a hospital here. Lohr said that at an altitude of 3500 feet his motor failed, an aileron wire snapped and the plane plunged to the track. Southern passenger train No. 34 was within 100 yards of the plane when it landed, traveling at high speed on an adjoining track.

GRANITE CITY BOY DROWNED; 4 CHUMS UNABLE TO AID HIM

Arthur Knapp, 10, Ventures Beyond Depth in Cabaret Slough.

Arthur Knapp, 10 years old, son of Arthur L. Knapp of 2232A Iowa avenue, Granite City, was drowned yesterday in Gabaret Slough, west of Granite City.

The boy had been swimming with four companions. None was a skillful swimmer and when Arthur ventured beyond his depth and sank, apparently from exhaustion, his comanions were unable to help him.

They ran for help and others whom they informed of the accident notified the Coroner. The body was recovered.

FINDS HOOVER CAN LEASE SHOALS AND IGNORE CONGRESS

Federal - State Commission Startles Friends of Government Ownership by Decision.

PLANTS CLASSIFIED AS "WAR PROPERTIES"

Senator Walsh Doesn't Think President Will Act on Discovery — Fight Promised If He Does.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19. — In quarters friendly to public operation of the Government's power and nitrate plants at Muscle Shoals, amazement was expressed here tonight at the news that the President's Federal-State Commission on the Shoals project had reached the conclusion that the properties may legally be leased or sold by the President without consulting Congress.

Throuhout the 10-year controversy over the disposition of the Government's $175,000,000 project on the Tennessee River, it had been assumed on all sides that only through legislation by Congress, approved by the President, could the Shoals be handed over to private interests. No members of Congress could be found here tonight who had any other idea on the subject.

"So far as I can recall," said Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, who has been in the Shoals fight from the beginning, "the suggestion that the executive has the right to dispose of Muscle Shoals without authority from Congress has never before been made. All the many debates in Congress have proceeded on the theory that legislation is required to settle the problem. We have twice passed this legislation, providing for Government operation, and it has twice been vetoed."

Doubts He Will Follow It.

"I don't think," continued Walsh, "that President Hoover will rely on this reported eleventh-hour discovery of something in the law that would permit him to run counter to the expressed will of Congress. Even if that obscure authority should be found to exist, I cannot believe President Hoover, in the circumstances, would take advantage of it."

Walsh said he intended to make a close examination of the statutes affecting Muscle Shoals at the first opportunity.

Judson King, director of the National Popular Government League, a liberal organization which has taken an active and effective part in Senator Norris' battle to keep Muscle Shoals in the hands of the Government, heard of the Commission's finding with a mixture of astonishment and indgnation.

"Beyond a doubt," said King, "one of the reasons why the power interests supported Herbert Hoover in 1928 was their understanding that he would try to sell or lease Muscle Shoals for private exploitation. There is nothing that the power trust fears more than the creation at Muscle Shoals of a yardstick by which the fairness of electric lght and power rates may be tested.

"To Satisfy Power Interests."

"President Hoover's commission is desperately trying to satisfy the power interests that supported him. I have no doubt that the effort to dispose of Muscle Shoals without consulting Congress will meet the same fate as the 'advisory opinion' in which President Hoover's Attorney General questioned the constitutionality of the Federal Water Power Act in the New River case.

"Attorney General Mitchell's opinion was rejected by Justice Adkins in the District of Columbia Supreme Court. This finding of the President's Muscle Shoals Commission will likewise be blown out of court if it ever gets there.

"If the commission attempts to act on the the legal fiction it appears to be setting up, the friends of government operation at the Shoals will carry the case to the highest courts, and they will have some of the best legal brains in the country back of them."

Rated as War Property.

The Commission has taken the view, according to announcement at its offices today, that all the Government's Muscle Shoals plants except Dam No. 2, may be sold or leased on the sole authority of the President, acting through the War Department. This authority was

MAYOR TO REMIT FINES OF WOMAN DECOY'S VICTIMS

Assails Methods of Private Morals Organization in Co-operation With Police.

JUDGE DECLARES HE WAS DECEIVED

Foster, Who Imposed Penalties on Two Motorists Accused by Mrs. Kelty, Is Indignant.

Official opposition to the methods of the Vigilance Committee of Washington Boulevard developed yesterday when Mayor Miller announced he would remit the fines of three motorists charged with disturbing the peace of a woman decoy of the volunteer morals organization.

The men, along with four others whose cases are still to be heard in Police Court, were arrested last week in the vicinity of Washington boulevard on the complaint of the decoy, who identified herself under oath on the witness stand as "Miss Helen Rollins," but who later admitted she was Mrs. Helen Rollins Kelty of 4138 Washington boulevard, wife of a chain grocery manager.

A total of 36 telephone calls in protest against the methods used by the vigilance committee were received by Jules Field, secretary to Mayor Miller, before the city's chief executive decided to take a hand in the case.

Mayor's Statement.

"I believe in law enforcement by the police, not in any character of private law enforcement," Mayor Miller said in making his announcement. "There are proper and legal methods available to women who are annoyed by men on the street. One very simple way is to take the offender's automobile license number and obtain a peace disturbance summons against him."

Chief of Detectives Kaiser sanctioned the decoy campaign, assigning two detectives to follow Mrs. Kelty as she walked along the street. In each case, Mrs. Kelty insists, the men she accused approached her, whereupon she signaled the trailing detectives.

Under the charter Mayor Miller, who appoints the Police Judges, has power to remit fines imposed in their courts. After he had made his announcement yesterday it developed that both Police Judges Blaine and Foster had become doubtful of the justice of punishing the men brought into court by the decoy.

Foster Says He Was Entrapped.

Judge Foster, who fined two of the men, said:

"I believe from what I have heard since I tried these cases that the Mayor is right in his action. I have come to believe since I heard the cases that I was entrapped as well as the defendants. I was led to believe by this woman that she was on her way home when she was accosted by a couple of drug store cowboys and I believed that in punishing the men I was giving protection to the women on our public streets.

"There was absolutely no evidence before me of entrapment by the woman. When I heard that she had also had cases of a similar character in the other Police Court on the same day I was angry and seriously thought of the possibility of invoking a contempt of court action against her for withholding important evidence about the case. She deliberately entrapped the court by withholding evidence. If motions to rehear the cases can be granted legally, I should be disposed to rehear them, so that justice might be done."

Blaine Also in Doubt.

Judge Blaine, who entered the third fine in the cases made by the decoy, pointed out that the case was out of his hands because an appeal had been taken to Court of Criminal Correction.

"I shall stick to my decision now," he said, "but I am opposed to any entrapment by police and shall discharge defendants in such cases. In the hearing before me it did not develop that the prosecuting witness was not giving her true name. Had that been brought out it would have had the effect of affecting her veracity as a witness."

Judge Blaine would not say whether he considered that entrapment was an element in the case before him. Meanwhile, however, Alvin F. Hackman, former prosecutor in police court and attorney for Wendell F. Shay, a school teacher, fined by Judge Blaine in a Vigilance Committee case, de-

JAPANESE TROOPS IN CONTROL OF ALL SOUTH MANCHURIA

Rout Chinese Forces in One Day's Fighting and Hold Every City on 693-Mile Railway.

NANKING DEMANDS MIKADO'S MEN RETIRE

Calls for Their Return to Original Positions—Tokio Thinks Amicable Settlement Possible.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Sept. 19.—Japanese troops controlled all Southern Manchuria tonight after routing Chinese soldiers in one day of fighting. Mukden, capital of Manchuria, was held by the Japanese, as was every other city on the South Manchurian Railway along the 693 miles of the line operated by the Japanese.

The heaviest fighting, said Rengo News Agency dispatches, took place at Nanling, a suburb of Changchun, 175 miles north of Mukden and terminus of the railway. The Chinese garrison of Nanling surrendered after all-day resistance.

The Japanese estimated their losses in the Nanling engagement as 40 killed and 50 wounded. They used machine guns and think the Chinese losses were large.

The capture of Mukden was effected with fewer casualties. The Japanese estimated their losses at two dead and seven to 10 wounded, and the Chinese casualties at 13 dead, 15 wounded, with 600 to 800 Chinese captured. Only a dozen shots were fired by the Japanese artillery, the Japanese asserted, and the Chinese replied with light field pieces without damage.

Chinese Troops in Flight.

The Japanese further strengthened their position in the Mukden district by occupying Tungtaying, headquarters of the Manchurian army east of the city. Twenty Chinese soldiers were captured, while 5000 fled toward Fushun.

In addition to the fall of the Nanling suburb of Changchun, the Chinese garrison at Kwanchengtze, also adjoining Changchun, surrendered after stubborn resistance.

At Fushun, near Mukden, where the South Manchurian Railway has a lease upon the largest coal deposit in Manchuria, the Japanese garrison took possession of Chinese institutions and disarmed all Chinese police.

Fushun is divided into two towns, one occupied by Chinese miners and their families, the other by Japanese officials and mine employes. All communication between the two towns was suspended.

With the arrival at Mukden from Port Arthur of Gen. Shigeru Honjo, Commander in chief of the Japanese army in Manchuria, preparations were begun for the next step by the Japanese authorities.

Mukden, it is said, will be placed under military administration, probably tomorrow.

Gen. Kojo Miyake, chief of staff of the Japanese army in Manchuria, also arrived in Mudken from Port Arthur. He immediately went into conference with the Japanese Consul.

The palatial residence of Manchuria's Governor, Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang, within the walled city of Mukden, caught fire tonight, but the blaze was extinguished. The fire was laid by Japanese to faulty electric wiring.

Japanese Blame Chinese.

Japanese sources reported that the hostilities were precipitated when Chinese soldiers attempted to destroy a bridge of the South Manchurian Railway at Peitaying, a suburb of Mukden. The Chinese were routed. Then Mukden was occupied by the Japanese.

Information received here states Chinese authorities, who the Japanese contended have been dodging the issue regarding the execution of a Japanese captain named Shintaro Nakamura and three companions by Manchurian troops in July, apparently have shown willingness to hasten reports of a Chinese investigation commission.

The members of the Nakamura party were shot as spies, although it is alleged they held Chinese certificates permitting them to map Manchuria and Mongolia.

Japanese took the view that if the Chinese indicated a conciliatory attitude, an amicable settlement of the incident would be possible through diplomatic negotiations.

Search for Chinese General.

Meanwhile it was reported the Chinese had arrested Gen. Kuang Yu-heng, who they said command-

Proposed Depression Remedies And the Federal Constitution

Authorities Agree Cotton Planting Cannot Legally Be Restricted—Barriers in the Way of Swope Industrial Plan.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Leading authorities on the Federal Constitution believe that the cotton prohibition scheme of Gov. Long of Louisiana, now about to be abandoned because of the refusal of the Texas Legislature to accept it, would have small chance of approval if taken into the Federal Courts.

Among those holding this opinion is Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, who is generally recognized as an expert in interpretation of the Constitution. Walsh, moreover, has recently been led to make a study of the subject by his interest in proposals affecting oil production.

In Walsh's opinion, the Louisiana law forbidding the planting of cotton in 1932 violates the fourteenth amendment to the Constitution which provides that no state shall deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law. He believes that the same objection would hold good against a measure merely restricting the acreage planted to cotton, and Gov. Long himself, in advocating the prohibition scheme, has said that acreage restriction would be unconstitutional. Walsh does not see any fundamental difference between the two proposals.

Maine, it is true, has a law which requires any owner cutting down a part of his forest to do an equal amount of replanting, but this law, as Walsh points out, is designed to save the forests and prevent floods, and is therefore clearly in the interest of the whole public. The Supreme Court has upheld the validity of a Western state law requiring the capping of gas wells, to prevent the escape of gas into the air, but here again, Walsh says, the restriction is for the protection of the public. Neither of these cases, he says, can be taken as analogous to the effort to stimulate prices by restricting the citizen to the use of his private land.

The Federal Farm Board, from the beginning, has proceeded on the theory that the co-operative movement among producers must be voluntary and not compulsory. This is the basic theory of the agricultural marketing act. It is the feature which distinguishes this act from the McNary-Haugen bill, which sought, through the equalization fee, to bring about a form of compulsory co-operation. The general counsel of the board has had no occasion to pass on the Long scheme, since the board has had nothing to do with it, but he has consistently held, in general, that a contract between the Government and a producer requiring restriction of production would be unenforceable.

Gov. Long has argued that his law is constitutionally valid under the State's police power to protect itself against the boll weevil and other plagues. This is plainly an evasion of the real issue involved. It is not likely, say the authorities consulted, that the Federal courts would be misled by so manifest a subterfuge.

Opinion is divided as to the merits of another recent plan which the depression has brought forth—the proposal of Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric Co., that industry, under Government auspices, reorganize itself for the prevention of unemployment, "the stabilization of prices" (which of course means price-fixing) and other purposes.

There is, however, general agreement on one point, namely, that the plan would require modification of the antitrust laws and possibly of the Constitution itself.

TEAR GAS DISCHARGED AS MOB GATHERS AT CLARKSBURG

Deputies Hold Back Crowd Believed to Be Trying to Get Alleged Slayer of Five.

By the Associated Press.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 20. (Sunday.)—A crowd of persons estimated at upward of 4000 gathered tonight about the Harrison County jail here, where Harry F. Powers, alleged slayer of two women and three children, is confined. The massing of the crowd followed rumors current throughout the day that an attempt might be made to get to the prisoner.

Deputy Sheriffs were attempting to hold back the crowd and three arrests were made after tear gas bombs had been discharged to discourage any attempt which might be made to storm the jail.

LINDBERGH OFFERS AID IN FLOOD WORK

Puts Himself and Plane at Service of Chinese on Arrival in Nanking.

By the Associated Press.

NANKING, China, Sept. 20.—(Sunday)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh has offered to place his big Lockheed monoplane and his own services at the disposal of the Chinese Government in the present flood emergency.

He said he and his wife desired to visit both Shanghai and Peiping, but that the development of their itinerary in China must wait until the authorities decide whether he and his plane can be of any assistance in the flood situation. He conferred with Dr. J. Heng-liu, director of the Health Board, regarding possible uses of the ship.

Chinese officials had made no reply to the offer late this morning, beyond expressing gratification.

The Colonel said he would have no difficulty taking off from Lotus Lake, where the monoplane was moored after his arrival with his wife after an 800-mile flight from Fukuoka, Japan, yesterday.

Although China is facing a situation tantamount to a foreign invasion, Nanking aviation officials indicated their desire to carry through the full Lindbergh program and to assist the air tourists in seeing as much of China as possible under prevailing conditions. However, for the Government and the nation in general, the Lindberghs' visit is entirely overshadowed by Japan's pressure in Manchuria.

Nanking afternoon newspapers covered the Lindbergh's arrival in a few sentences, devoting their largest headlines to the Manchurian crisis and much of their space to editorials calling upon the nation to unite and face the grave emergency.

WEATHER CAREFULLY WATCHED FOR MAIDEN FLIGHT OF AKRON

By the Associated Press.

AKRON, O., Sept. 19.—Weather forecasts were carefully scanned here tonight as the navy prepared to take the giant dirigible Akron out of the dock for its maiden voyage at 2 p. m., Eastern standard time, Monday.

Only the possibility that the weather might be unfavorable stood in the way of the flight. Everything else was in readiness. The navy dignitaries were on hand to witness the flight from aboard ship; the navy ground crew had been put through its paces, and the builders had tentatively handed it over to the Government.

U. S. INVITED BY LEAGUE TO NAVY HOLIDAY CONFERENCE

Eight Other Non-Members Asked to Participate Immediately in Parley to Halt Building Until 1932 Meeting.

ACCEPTANCE OF AMERICA LIKELY

Hugh Wilson Sends Request to Washington and Is Expected to Represent Government in Geneva Debates.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Sept. 19.—The League of Nations assembly issued a formal invitation tonight to the United States and eight other nations, nonmembers of the league, to participate immediately in the discussions of the Assembly's Disarmament Committee.

The invitation, which was formulated by the Assembly today, but temporarily blocked by technical difficulties raised by Rene Massigli of France, was decided upon by the Assembly's Bureau, or Steering Committee, and formally issued by Nicholas Titulescu, president of the Assembly.

It was understood here tonight that Hugh Wilson, United States Ambassador to Switzerland, who is in Geneva, transmitted the invitation immediately to Washington and it is thought that the United States Government will accept and that Wilson probably will take a place in the committee's debates Monday.

The important question now before the Disarmament Committee is the proposal for a holiday in naval construction until the disarmament conference, which is scheduled to convene in February, 1932, is concluded. The proposal for the ad interim holiday was advanced by Foreign Minister Dino Grandi of Italy, and has been supported by Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Holland and Switzerland in formal resolutions.

Suggestion by Denmark.

In bringing up the technical difficulties to the immediate issuance of the invitation earlier today, Massigli made it clear that he indorsed the principle involved, but thought that the invitation should be extended formally by the league's Executive Board.

The move to bring outside assistance in the effort to achieve disarmament originated with the Danish delegation, which suggested only the United States, Russia and Turkey, the three non-members of the league that participated in the work of the preparatory Disarmament Commission.

Lord Cecil of England heartily indorsed the move. Salvador de Madariaga, Spain's spokesman, insisted that all states invited to the Disarmament Conference should be included in the invitation under discussion.

In the Assembly's Economic Committee today Herr Posse, German delegate, sharply reproached Switzerland for restricting her German imports and charged the Swiss Government with starting "the breakup of Europe."

Swiss Replies With Vigor.

Walter Stucki, tall raw-boned young Swiss, replied with equal vigor, answering the German accusation. Switzerland, he said, had participated in every move for concerted economic action. He charged that Germany has been "inundating" Switzerland with "forced exports," and that the Swiss felt the need for protecting themselves.

Switzerland, he said, recognizes Germany's depressed condition, but he added that Switzerland was not responsible for the war and could not be expected to pay a disproportionate share of its consequences.

German and Polish delegates engaged in a hot argument in the league council over the refusal of the free city of Danzig to grant the use of the Danzig harbor to Polish war vessels. The debate ended when the matter was referred to the World Court.

Invitations were sent also to Russia, Turkey, Afghanistan, Egypt, Costa Rica, Brazil and Ecuador. A special invitation was sent to Argentina, which is a mem-

DYER PLANNING RACE FOR SENATE ON BEER PLANK

Unless His Bill Legalizing Brew Passes Congress, He Will Be Candidate, He Declares.

SAYS PROHIBITION IS MAJOR ISSUE

Probability All Missouri Congressmen Will Be Elected at Large Factor in Decision.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—An announcement of his conditional candidacy for the United States Senate in 1932 on a wet platform was made here tonight by Congressman L. C. Dyer, Republican, of St. Louis.

In a formal statement, Dyer said in effect that he would run for the Senate unless Congress in the next session should pass and the President should sign a bill to permit the manufacture and sale of beer. Dyer has prepared such a bill for introduction the opening day of the session in December.

To the correspondent, Dyer explained that his decision was due to the probability that all Missouri candidates for the House in the next election, through the failure of redistricting measures in the State, would have to run at large. He would prefer, he said, to remain in the House, where he is scheduled to be chairman of the important Judiciary Committee if the Republicans keep control, but if all candidates had to face the expense of a State-wide campaign, he would seek the six-year rather than the two-year office.

Not Definitely Committed.

"I do not wish to commit myself unqualifiedly," the Congressman said, "but it is my present intention to come out for the Republican senatorial nomination if the State is not redistricted."

Dyer declared in his formal announcement that he was "willing to stake his political future" on what he believed to be the majority sentiment in Missouri for modification of the Volstead act.

"This," he continued, "will be the real issue in the next election in Missouri unless Congress enacts and the President signs a beer bill that I will introduce, to permit the manufacture and sale of 2.75 per cent beer by weight. This bill will not allow the sale of beer in saloons but only to householders, who must obtain it from their grocers and other distributing agencies in case lots. Those who purchase it must take it to their homes to be consumed.

"If Congress does not act before the next election I will see that the issue is made in my state. Something must be done to put an end to the disgraceful expenditure of the people's money and the havoc it has wrought. My platform upon prohibition will be clear, with no straddling. Anyone running for the national House or Senate in Missouri without taking a definite and absolute position upon this question will suffer a deserved defeat.

"We will not rid ourselves of the evils that have come upon us from prohibition, including hypocrisy, disrespect for law, stagnation of business and unemployment, until we authorize the sale and manufacture of light beer. Some people in office and some who wish to be elected to office have an idea that those opposed to beer are in large numbers. The next election will demonstrate very decidedly, unless Congress acts before then, that they are badly fooled."

Dyer is now in his tenth term in the House from the strongly Republican Twelfth (St. Louis) District. He is the dean of the Missouri delegation, and by reason of the seniority rule is virtually certain to succeed the late Congressman Graham of Pennsylvania at the head of the Judiciary Committee in December if the Republicans organize the House. This committee passes upon prohibition legislation.

Cochran Puts the Case.

Representative Cochran (Dem.), Missouri, quoted today from advertisements printed in 1918, contending they supported his view that the legalizing of beer would permit the use of products—especially grain—which now are stacking up surpluses.

The advertisement, Cochran said, reported that breweries used 4,500,000 bushels of grain and 64,000,000 pounds of sugar a month.

"If it was good logic in 1918 to close the breweries so that the raw materials and man power could be used for war purposes," he said, "is it not equally good logic to open up the breweries now so that surplus grain could be used and thousands facing starvation this winter be placed to work so that they could provide the necessities of life for their families?"

Lloyd George Denies Labor Rumor.

CHURT, England, Sept. 19.—David Lloyd George, leader of the Liberal party, said today there was no truth in reports he had been approached about becoming leader of the Labor party. Such rumors have been current the last few days.

said to exist under an act pertaining to the disposal of war properties. Dam No. 2, the Commission holds, falls under the jurisdiction of the Federal Power Commission and may be leased by that body under the provision of the Water Power Act.

These conclusions, it was said, were reached after consultation with legal advisers and would be submitted to Attorney-General Mitchell for his opinion.

Col. Joseph I. McMullen, a member of the commission, said it was negotiating with three large chemical companies, in addition to seven concerns from which leasing proposals were received on Sept. 1. He said the commission expected to have its full report in the hands of the President a month before the opening of Congress in December.

The commission was created by President Hoover during the summer, in the absence of Congress, "to detrmine a method for handling the Muscle Shoals plant." A few weeks earlier he had vetoed the Norris Government Operation Bill, and the supporters of the measure in the Senate had failed to muster the necessary two-thirds majority to override him. The vote was 49 for repassage of the bill and 34 against.

How Members Were Chosen.

Three of the members of the commisson were appointed by the President, three by Gov. Miller of Alabama and three by Gov. Horton of Tennessee, the Governors acting under resolutions of their State Legislatures. The commission is purely an advisory board; it has no real authority. One of the President's appointees to the commission is Edward A. O'Neal of Alabama, president of the American Farm Bureau, who was put on "to represent agriculture." In view of the fact that the Caraway lobby investigation had revealed O'Neal as an active opponent for 10 years of the Norris bills for Government operation of the Shoals his appointment excited considerable adverse criticism. O'Neal was shown to have worked in cooperation with Claudius Huston, the exposure of whose lobbying activities led to his resignation as chairman of the Republican National Committee.

The chairman of the commission is S. F. Hobbs, a lawyer of Selma, Ala., an appointee of Gov. Miller. After the seven bids originally received by the commission were opened last Sept. 1, Hobbs was asked what the commission would do next.

"We are going over to the White House to get our orders," was the surprising reply, "and see what else the President has on his mind."

After the commission's visit to the White House, Hobbs said the President had reiterated his opposition to Government operation of the Shoals as a power plant, in terms similar to his veto message on the Norris bill.

ed soldiers responsible for Nakamura's death. The Japanese searched many houses in Mukden without finding Kuang.

With the Japanese strongly in possession of Manchuria through control of the South Manchuria Railways and army and navy reinforcements reported assembling the situation became easier late today.

The Japanese Government was reported to be making efforts to localize the fighting between Chinese and Japanese in Manchuria. Armed forces were held ready in Korea and on the Kwantung Peninsula of Manchuria, but were ordered not to move.

Chinese Demand Withdrawal of Japanese to Original Positions.

NANKING, China, Sept. 19.—Immediate cessation of hostilities by Japanese troops in and about Mukden and their withdrawal to their original positions was demanded in a note sent by Foreign Minister C. T. Wang today to Japanese Minister Shigemitsu for transmission to Tokio.

At Shanghai, a Chinese official of Kuo Min, Chinese Nationalist news agency, quoted a high Government authority as laying the blame for the clash on the Japanese. He denied Japanese allegations that Chinese troops precipitated the fighting by cutting the South Manchurian Railway line and said: "The military element in Japan has for months been planning aggressive action in Manchuria. It has sought to provoke China in many incidents. Now the Japanese wish the world to believe that Chinese troops were ordered to destroy their railway and they are only fighting to protect their property."

The Japanese military machine moved with precision, said reports reaching Shanghai, and within 24 hours of the first skirmish the Japanese held that section of Manchuria south of Changchun the northern terminus of the South Manchurian Railway. In addition to Mukden, the Japanese occupied Newchwang, principal port of Manchuria.

Japanese troop trains reached Newchwang this morning, according to Shanghai advices, and proceeded on the Chinese Railway to Kowpangtse, occuping each station on the way and disarming the Chinese Railway guards. Kowpangtse is on the Peiping-Mukden rail line. Meanwhile Japanese war vessels appeared in the river off Newchwang.

Other Japanese activities reported at Shanghai included disarming of a Chinese gunboat at the mouth of the Yalu River.

League Council Considers Clash, but Awaits Fuller Information.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Sept. 19. — Japan's representative at the League of Nations, Kenkichi Yoshizawa, today assured the League Council his Government would take all possible measures to localize the clash with the Chinese at Mukden, Manchuria. He said Japan had taken steps to keep the "collision," as he called it, from reaching unfortunate dimensions. He made no reference to responsibility for the incident.

S. Alfred Sze, Chinese delegate, told the Council that, according to the best information available to him, the Mukden incident did not grow out of any act of the Chinese.

Alejandro Lerroux of Spain, president of the Council, expressed satisfaction at the assurance given by Japan's spokesmen and said the Council would watch developments with great interest.

It was felt that such an incident could not be allowed to pass unnoticed and the League must immediately upon obtaining fuller details take all possible steps looking to the execution of its responsibility for a specific settlement.

U. S. Holds Kellogg-Briand Pact Is Not Violated.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—The American Government looks upon the clash of Japanese and Chinese troops in Manchuria as a conflict between individuals rather than governments and accordingly sees no present ground for invoking the Kellogg-Briand pact for renunciation of war. The State Department said that on the basis of news thus far there seemed to be no indication of any violation of the treaty.

The department received official reports that Japanese troops had occupied Mukden and four nearby towns and taken over all Government services, but that all foreigners were safe. The department said there were 229 American citizens in Manchuria and that American investments there totaled $3,811,000, exclusive of those of Standard Oil, the figures on which were not available.

Favorable Reaction to Invitation Predicted in Washington.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—A favorable reaction by the United States to the League of Nations' invitation to be represented in discussions of a naval holiday was forecast tonight by State Department officials.

The administration has openly expressed a sympathetic attitude toward the idea of a lull in naval construction.

At the State Department it was said the League invitation had not yet been received. It was pointed out that the department earlier this week made known its sympathy with the naval holiday proposals of Foreign Minister Grandi of Italy before the League of Nations Assembly.

Officials said they thought the United States' receptive position toward naval holiday proposals would be reflected in its answer to the invitation unless it involved a proposition against which the Government already has taken a stand, such as the abolition of the battleship.

Italy Indicates French Naval Proposal Will Be Rejected.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Sept. 19.—A Government communique issued today indicated that fresh proposals for Italo-French naval disarmament, made by the French Government, were doomed to failure.

The proposals differ so considerably from the Italo-French accord of March 1, the Government statement said, that "we do not know if and when the Italo-French-British conversations on the naval question can be begun again with some chance of concrete results."

The belief here is that it is impossible for Italy to follow France along the new road mapped by the French memorandum.

GANDHI FORESEES LONG DEBATE ON INDIAN QUESTION

Expresses Sympathy for England in Political Dilemna and Will Wait Till Situation Clears.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 19. — After a week of deliberation with members of the round table conference and interviews with members of the Cabinet, Mahatma Gandhi sees no hope of early settlement of the Indian question.

In an interview with the Associated Press today the Nationalist leader condemned what he termed the "dilatory tactics" of the Federal Structures Committee which, he declared, was deliberately confining itself to unimportant details, instead of the fundamentals of India's new constitution, for the purpose of gaining time.

The Mahatma expressed sympathy toward England in the present political dilemma and said he was prepared to remain in London until the country is on its feet again. He thinks the success or failure of his mission to London will become apparent early in November.

Vexed by Hindu-Moslem Problem.

Gandhi still is greatly disturbed over the failure to settle the interminable Hindu-Moslem communal problem which the British Government itself probably will have to tackle when the minorities committee meets at the conclusion of the Federal Structures Committee sessions.

"While Great Britain is faced with the threat of a general election and while the present composite cabinet has such a precarious footing, I see no hope of achieving concrete results at the round-table conference," the Mahatma said.

The interview took place on the roof of the East End Mission House where he is living as a charity boarder, and as he spoke the Mahatma was busy with his charka (spinning wheel).

"Of course, Prime Minister MacDonald could not foresee all his present difficulties when he summoned the conference," Gandhi continued.

"Be Patient During Crisis."

"Therefore, we must be patient and bear with England while she emerges from her present crisis. I shall continue my private talks with members of the cabinet and other political leaders and during odd intervals will make speeches on India's cause."

"Will you go to America at the end of the conference?" Gandhi was asked.

"It's a great temptation, but we must settle India's destiny before I can do that," he replied.

Vithalbhai Jhaverbhai Patel, former President of the Indian Legislative Assembly and known as the "Robespierre of the Indian revolution," echoed the Mahatma's pessimism.

"I see not the faintest hope of success at the round-table conference," he said. "England is not sincere in her pretentions toward India.

AMERICAN BAR'S HONOR MEDAL TO JUSTICE HOLMES

He Receives Distinguished Service Award—Guy A. Thompson, St. Louis, Chosen President.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 19.—The American Bar Association convention today awarded its medal for distinguished service in law to Associate Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the United States Supreme Court, elected Guy A. Thompson of St. Louis president of the association and adopted a resolution on criminal justice.

Justice Holmes, for more than 30 years noted for his liberal and dissenting opinions in the Supreme Court, could not attend the convention, due to illness, but he wrote, in long hand, from Beverly Farms, Mass., a letter of appreciation of the honor received.

He is the third recipient of the medal, Prof. Samuel Williston of Harvard having been honored in 1929 and Elihu Root in 1930. Members of the Medal Committee included Associate Justice J. Willis Van Devanter of the Supreme Court; George W. Wickersham, John W. Davis, former Democratic presidential candidate, and Silas H. Strawn, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Justice Holmes' Response.

Justice Holmes' letter follows:

"The unexpected honor that the American Bar Association has done me calls for an answer on the wings of the wind. But as I have not quite recovered my energy from a recent pull down, I avail myself of your permission to rely upon the postoffice rather than upon the radio.

"The law tries to embody things that men most believe and want. But belief and wants begin as vague yearnings and only gradually work themselves into words.

"These words at first cannot fully express what they aim at. Some of us have tried to make clear what the aims are or should be, using history, economics and philosophy as our aids.

"If we have help to throw light upon the general scope of the subject or some part of it, we have so far helped our fellows along a predestined road and have been of use.

"It has been my deepest wish and passion of my soul to do something of this service and, although as one draws to the end, every human effort seems small, the American Bar Association has done all that could be done to assure me that the long struggle has not been in vain."

Adopts Resolution on Crime.

The associaton adopted a resolution along the lines of the Wickersham report on crime, and directed against gangsterism and deficiencies in criminal justice. The resolution not only followed the Wickersham report in assailing unlawful enforcement of crime and condemnation of third degree methods, but it added a recommendation that the prosecutor be allowed to comment on the failure of a defendant to take the stand in his own defense. It was directed at criminals who, by avoiding testifying, are able to conceal their criminal activities.

A score of speakers alternately denounced and praised the part of the resolution seeking to force defendants to testify or be criticized therefor, and it was accepted only after a series of votes involving parliamentary technic.

Robert von Moschzisker, former Chief Justice of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, said the law was supposed to contain the essence of common sense, but certainly it did not in this particular. He said in eight years of criminal practice he had never known a person who refused to testify who was not guilty.

Levi Cooke of Washington, D. C., pleaded for further consideration, declaring the right of the defendant to testify must be protected in the interest of human liberty.

Urges Aid for Prosecution.

Justin Miller, dean of the law school of Duke University and chairman of the committee urging the resolution, emphasized that the report did urge further protection of the defendant by assailing unlawful enforcement of the law with third-degree methods, but that the prosecution was entitled to further weapons, which the resolution suggested.

Miss Rose Rockenburg, assistant District Attorney of New York, urged further consideration on the ground that the criminal's past record should be concealed, as it could not be if he were forced to testify, since the record would unduly influence the jury.

William P. MacCracken Jr. of Washington was re-elected secretary and John H. Voorhess of Sioux Falls, S. D., treasurer. Glenn J. Fairbrook of Seattle, Wash.; Harry S. Knight, Sunbury, Pa., former president of the Pennsylvania State Bar Association; and Walter P. Armstrong of Memphis, Tenn., were named members of the Executive Committee.

Thompson Has Been Head of St. Louis and Missouri Bar.

Guy A. Thompson, the new president of the American Bar Association, resides at 32 Washington terrace and has offices in the Central National Bank building. He has been president of the St. Louis and Missouri Bar Associations, and for the last five years a member of the executive committee of the American Bar Association.

Admitted to the practice in Missouri in 1898, following his graduation from Missouri University, he worked at first for the firm of Campbell & Ryan. He became the partner of Given Campbell in 1903, maintaining that association for two years and then was in independent practice until 1911 when he became the partner of O'Neill Ryan, now a Circuit Judge. In 1917 he entered partnership with his brother, Frank A. Thompson. Two years ago the firm became Thompson, Mitchell, Thompson & Young.

GERMANY ESTABLISHES OFFICE TO WARD OFF BANK CRISES

BERLIN, Sept. 19.—A Federal commissioner of banks, with wide powers designed to counteract tendencies toward credit crises such as developed in mid-July was instituted by an emergency decree issued by the Cabinet tonight and signed by President Paul von Hindenburg.

The decree will become effective Oct. 1. It was said tonight that Ministerial Director Dr. Friedrich Ernst is slated for the post.

The commissioner will be closely affiliated with the Reichsbank and his functions will be defined by a board consisting of representatives of the Reichsbank and the Government.

There will be no attempt to intervene in the actual conduct of banking business except in case of emergency.

CORPORAL BRIBED TO LET PRISONER ESCAPE IN INQUIRY

Soldier of Governor's Island Disciplinary Barracks Confesses in Alien Smuggling Case.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Corp. Alfred G. Bral of the disciplinary barracks company at Governor's Island, confessed late tonight to Murray M. Carsson, Assistant Secretary of Labor, that he had accepted a bribe to permit the escape of Umberto Bianci, notorious criminal, from Castle William, the military prison on Governor's Island.

Bianci was brought to Governor's Island several days ago at the request of Federal authorities who wanted him as a witness in the alien-smuggling ring now being investigated and in connection with which 24 men are under arrest. He escaped yesterday.

Got Several Thousand Dollars.

Bral, in his confession, Garsson said, told him that he had received several thousand dollars, but had returned the money, fearing to have it in his possession while on Governor's Island. He said he had arranged to meet Bianchi tomorrow or Sunday, and that together they had planned to flee by automobile or airplane to Canada.

From Canada they were to go to Paris, where almost half a million dollars, according to Bral's story, was to be paid him for his aid to Bianchi.

Garsson declined to give the names of those who had bribed the Corporal. He told Col. Tenney Ross, commandant of the barracks and prison on Governor's Island, that he desired to be notified whenever a courtmartial is convened to try Bral so that he may appear and plead for leniency for the prisoner.

Corporal Made Prisoner.

Bral was taken to Governor's Island a prisoner, stripped by his commandant's order, of the rank of Corporal.

Authorities described Bianchi as an internationally notorious criminal. They said he was brought to the United States by gangsters, who needed his advice. In the two years he had been here, officials said, he had made about $200,000 as his share in the alien-smuggling activities.

Dr. S. D. Baldovin, a physician, was arrested later by Federal agents who held him on a charge of obstructing justice by allegedly aiding Bianchi to escape.

Bianchi, officials said, is the son of a former president of the Rumanian Senate.

Secretary of Labor Doak disclosed some of the records in the New York Naturalization Office were missing. Afterward he announced that Merton A. Sturges, chief of the New York office, was taking his annual leave immediately, and that it probably would be necessary "to put someone in his place for the time being."

DAVID S. JORDAN, NOTED EDUCATOR, DIES IN CALIFORNIA

Chancellor Emeritus of Stanford University Succumbs at 80—Family at His Bedside.

'I HAVE LIVED THREE LIVES,' HE ONCE SAID

Pioneer Advocate of Peace, Won International Renown As Scientist and Author.

By the Associated Press.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Sept. 19.—Dr. David Starr Jordan, chancellor emeritus of Stanford University, with an international reputation in science, education and philosophy, died today at the age of 80, of a complication of ailments. He had been ill for nearly two years and became unconscious as a result of a fifth stroke of paralysis yesterday. He died at Serra House, his Stanford campus home, at 9:45 o'clock this morning.

The funeral will be held at 2:30 p. m. next Monday in the Stanford University Memorial Church. The services will be in charge of Dr. D. Charles Gardner, university chaplain, and Dr. Augustus T. Murray, pioneer member of the faculty and former pastor of the Friends' Church in Washington, attended by President Hoover.

With Dr. Jordan at his death were Mrs. Jessie Knight Jordan, his wife, Knight Jordan, a son, Mrs. Eric Jordan, a daughter-in-law and two physicians and two nurses.

Other relatives of Dr. Jordan are Mrs. Nathaniel Gardener, a daughter, of Berkeley, Cal., Harold Bowen Jordan, Medford, Ore., a son, and Mrs. Mary Jordan Edwards of Whittier, Cal, a sister. Mrs. Gardener and Harold Jordan are children by Dr. Jordan's first marriage.

A conspicuous figure for more than half a century, Dr. Jordan declared on his seventy-eighth birthday, "I have lived three lives!"

Educator Was Pioneer Advocate of World Peace.

He was a pioneer advocate of world peace. It was at a "No More War" meeting at Palo Alto, Cal., July 30, 1928, at which time he said: "All war is murder, robbery, trickery, and no nation ever escaped losses of men, prosperity and virility. War knows no victor."

In the field of natural history, Dr. Jordan ranked high and his contributions to ichthyology made him a leading authority in America. As an educator he was best known through his connection with Stanford University. There, as first president from 1891 to 1912 and as chancellor for three years thereafter, he erected a monument to himself as well as a great university. He had been chancellor emeritus since 1915.

Born in Gainesville, N. Y., in 1851.

Dr. Jordan was born at Gainesville, N. Y., Jan. 19, 1851, the fourth of a family of five children of Hiram and Huldah Lake Hawley Jordan. He was self-supporting throughout his course at Cornell University, where he was graduated in 1872, receiving his master's degree at the same time with his bachelor's degree.

For three years after his graduation at Cornell, Dr. Jordan held minor educational positions and in 1875 went to Butler University as professor of biology. He remained there until 1879, when he joined the faculty of the University of Indiana as professor of natural history. He retained that chair six years, then was elected president of the university and guided it until 1891, when on the invitation of the late Senator and Mrs. Leland Stanford he accepted the presidency of the memorial university they proposed to establish.

In 1875, Dr. Jordan married Miss Susan Bowen of Peru, Mass. She died in 1885 and two years later he married Miss Jessie L. Knight of Worcester, Mass. Six children were born of the two marriages. The noted educator had been in failing health since the death of his youngest son, Eric, in an automobile accident in 1925. It was through him that the father had hoped for the continuance and fulfillment of his own scientific work.

Made Appeal to Cleveland.

When Dr. Jordan arrived in California in 1891 to take up his duties as president of Stanford University, his home became the center of the institution's activities. The first entrance examinations were held on the front porch and it was there that gatherings of students and faculty, culminating in everything from baseball games to field trips were organized.

The death of Senator Stanford in 1893, the business panic of the same year and litigation over the endowment threw heavy responsibilities upon the shoulders of Dr. Jordan. The new university was reduced to virtual poverty. Finally, he and Mrs. Stanford made a personal appeal to President Cleveland and the hearing in Supreme Court regarding the estate was expedited. On March 2, 1896, the government injunction against the distribution of the estate was thrown out of court and from thence forward the progress of the university was marked.

Corporal Made Prisoner.

Bral was taken to Governor's Island a prisoner, stripped by his commandant's order, of the rank of Corporal.

Authorities described Bianchi as an internationally notorious criminal. They said he was brought to the United States by gangsters, who needed his advice. In the two years he had been here, officials said, he had made about $200,000 as his share in the alien-smuggling activities.

Dr. S. D. Baldovin, a physician, was arrested later by Federal agents who held him on a charge of obstructing justice by allegedly aiding Bianchi to escape.

Bianchi, officials said, is the son of a former president of the Rumanian Senate.

Secretary of Labor Doak disclosed some of the records in the New York Naturalization Office were missing. Afterward he announced that Merton A. Sturges, chief of the New York office, was taking his annual leave immediately, and that it probably would be necessary "to put someone in his place for the time being."

DAVID S. JORDAN, NOTED EDUCATOR, DIES IN CALIFORNIA

Chancellor Emeritus of Stanford University Succumbs at 80—Family at His Bedside.

'I HAVE LIVED THREE LIVES,' HE ONCE SAID

Pioneer Advocate of Peace, Won International Renown As Scientist and Author.

By the Associated Press.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Sept. 19.—Dr. David Starr Jordan, chancellor emeritus of Stanford University, with an international reputation in science, education and philosophy, died today at the age of 80, of a complication of ailments. He had been ill for nearly two years and became unconscious as a result of a fifth stroke of paralysis yesterday. He died at Serra House, his Stanford campus home, at 9:45 o'clock this morning.

The funeral will be held at 2:30 p. m. next Monday in the Stanford University Memorial Church. The services will be in charge of Dr. D. Charles Gardner, university chaplain, and Dr. Augustus T. Murray, pioneer member of the faculty and former pastor of the Friends' Church in Washington, attended by President Hoover.

With Dr. Jordan at his death were Mrs. Jessie Knight Jordan, his wife, Knight Jordan, a son, Mrs. Eric Jordan, a daughter-in-law and two physicians and two nurses.

Other relatives of Dr. Jordan are Mrs. Nathaniel Gardener, a daughter, of Berkeley, Cal., Harold Bowen Jordan, Medford, Ore., a son, and Mrs. Mary Jordan Edwards of Whittier, Cal, a sister. Mrs. Gardener and Harold Jordan are children by Dr. Jordan's first marriage.

A conspicuous figure for more than half a century, Dr. Jordan declared on his seventy-eighth birthday, "I have lived three lives!"

Educator Was Pioneer Advocate of World Peace.

He was a pioneer advocate of world peace. It was at a "No More War" meeting at Palo Alto, Cal., July 30, 1928, at which time he said: "All war is murder, robbery, trickery, and no nation ever escaped losses of men, prosperity and virility. War knows no victor."

In the field of natural history, Dr. Jordan ranked high and his contributions to ichthyology made him a leading authority in America. As an educator he was best known through his connection with Stanford University. There, as first president from 1891 to 1912 and as chancellor for three years thereafter, he erected a monument to himself as well as a great university. He had been chancellor emeritus since 1915.

Born in Gainesville, N. Y., in 1851.

Dr. Jordan was born at Gainesville, N. Y., Jan. 19, 1851, the fourth of a family of five children of Hiram and Huldah Lake Hawley Jordan. He was self-supporting throughout his course at Cornell University, where he was graduated in 1872, receiving his master's degree at the same time with his bachelor's degree.

For three years after his graduation at Cornell, Dr. Jordan held minor educational positions and in 1875 went to Butler University as professor of biology. He remained there until 1879, when he joined the faculty of the University of Indiana as professor of natural history. He retained that chair six years, then was elected president of the university and guided it until 1891, when on the invitation of the late Senator and Mrs. Leland Stanford he accepted the presidency of the memorial university they proposed to establish.

In 1875, Dr. Jordan married Miss Susan Bowen of Peru, Mass. She died in 1885 and two years later he married Miss Jessie L. Knight of Worcester, Mass. Six children were born of the two marriages. The noted educator had been in failing health since the death of his youngest son, Eric, in an automobile accident in 1925. It was through him that the father had hoped for the continuance and fulfillment of his own scientific work.

Made Appeal to Cleveland.

When Dr. Jordan arrived in California in 1891 to take up his duties as president of Stanford University, his home became the center of the institution's activities. The first entrance examinations were held on the front porch and it was there that gatherings of students and faculty, culminating in everything from baseball games to field trips were organized.

The death of Senator Stanford in 1893, the business panic of the same year and litigation over the endowment threw heavy responsibilities upon the shoulders of Dr. Jordan. The new university was reduced to virtual poverty. Finally, he and Mrs. Stanford made a personal appeal to President Cleveland and the hearing in Supreme Court regarding the estate was expedited. On March 2, 1896, the government injunction against the distribution of the estate was thrown out of court and from thence forward the progress of the university was marked.

The first scientific investigations made by Dr. Jordan for the United States government were in 1879, when he went to California to study marine industries of the Pacific Coast. Four years later he received the first signal recognition of his work in ichthyology when the highest honor of the International Fisheries Conference in London was awarded him for his treatise and sketches.

In 1896 he headed the American division of the Joint High Commission of Investigation of the fur seal problem in the Bering Sea, and later served on committees which conferred with Great Britain Russia and Japan.

Although he had been a university president a quarter of a century, Dr. Jordan always declared that he never desired such a post, insisting that his primary interest was in scientific research. In order to give him the time for that work and to relieve him of the pressure of routine administrative duties, the title of chancellor of Stanford University was created for him in 1912 at the instance of Herbert Hoover, then a member of the board of trustees.

MAID ADMITS SHE WROTE KIDNAPING NOTES TO FAMILY

Negro Employe of Mrs. Paul Piccione, 5710 Waterman, Arrested; Four Messages Received.

A Negro maid in the employ of Mrs. Paul Piccione, 5710 Waterman avenue, was arrested last evening, and admitted, according to city detectives, that she wrote four threatening notes which have been found by members of the Piccione family in their home in the last 10 days. The notes threatened that Piccione, who is editor of Roma, an Italian weekly, would be kidnaped unless $5000 was paid to the writer.

Before the finding of the first note, Sept. 9, Mrs. Piccione missed a quantity of apparel. The note which followed said, "We got your clothes. We'll get your husband next." The matter was reported to the police, and detectives watched the house so closely that suspicion was directd at the maid, Clara Wagner, who had been engaged by Mrs. Piccione but a few days before the theft. Most of the missing clothing was found in the house. Mrs. Piccione was formerly Miss Grace Viviano, daughter of the late Pietro Viviano, macaroni manufacturer.

NEW YORK ASSEMBLY PASSES $20,000,000 BILL FOR JOBLESS

By the Associated Press.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 19.—The amended bill for unemployment relief, agreed upon by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, and the leaders of the Republican majority in the New York Legislature, tonight awaited only the Governor's signature. It passed both houses of the Legislature this evening.

The bill as amended after a series of conferences between the Governor and his aids on the one hand and the Republican leaders on the other provides for the administration of a relief fund of $20,000,000 by an independent commission of three members to be appointed by the Executive. The fund is to be raised by increasing the tax on personal incomes 50 per cent.

The commission will operate independently of any state agency. This was one of the features insisted upon by the Governor, whereas the original Republican bill authorized the commission to operate within the department of social welfare.

JOBLESS WOMEN SLEEP IN PARK

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—Several hundred homeless and jobless women sleep nightly in Chicago's parks, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conkey, Commissioner of Public Welfare, reported today. She learned of the situation, she said, when women of good character appealed for shelter and protection, having nowhere to sleep but in the parks, where they feared they would be molested.

"We were informed that no fewer than 200 women were sleeping in Grant and Lincoln Parks, on the lake front, to say nothing of those in the other parks," said Mrs. Conkey. "I made a personal investigation, driving from park to park, at night, and verified the reports."

WORLD SERIES TICKETS AWARDED BY LOT

Successful Applicants Will Be Notified Thursday or Friday.

With the announcement by President Sam Breadon of the Cardinals yesterday afternoon that no more applications for world series tickets would be accepted, a staff of 15 clerks was put to work sorting the letters from which orders will be filled.

Up to the time of the announcement at 2:45 o'clock, Breadon said applications had been received for more than twice the number of reserved seats available. Applications will be selected by lot and the lucky persons notified that they may purchase seats. The selections will begin today and the notices will be sent out Thursday or Friday.

Only about 14,000 reserved seats are available. The baseball club keeps a card index of the 10,000 purchasers of season ticket books who have a preferential right to buy tickets, one set of three for each two books, and 5000 seats have been set aside for that purpose. Holders of box seats have the the right to purchase an additional 7500, an allotment of 500 seats has been made to the Philadelphia Athletics and each of the major leagues and Commissioner Landis have 600 seats set aside for them.

Stacks of letters, still uncounted, poured into the temporary world series ticket office at 2919 North Grand boulevard between Friday morning — when Breadon announced conditions for ticket application—and yesterday afternoon.

Persons whose letters are accepted and those who hold season ticket books will be notified by letter than they may purchase tickets. They will be directed either to the downtown office in the Arcade Building or to the box office at Sportsman's Park. As previously announced, either a certified check, money order or cashier's check must be taken to the ticket office to claim reservations.

Collector of Internal Revenue Becker announced yesterday that Jack Feldman, Grand boulevard and Dodier street, and Fred W. Klinge, 526 Olive street, had registered as brokers of tickets for the series last July.

Under the income tax regulations all ticket brokers are required to register with the Collector of Internal Revenue and to keep records of all sales made by them. They must pay a tax of 5 per cent on the first 75 cents over the original cost price of the tickets sold by them and 50 per cent of all above the 75-cent profit. They are required to stamp the ticket with the name of the broker and the price for which it is sold.

$75,000 VERDICT FOR THE STATE IN AURORA BANK CASE

Shartel Announces Victory in Suit on Bond to Guarantee Commonwealth's Deposits.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 19. — Attorney-General Shartel today announced the State had obtained a judgment for $75,000 in the Lawrence County Circuit Court against former officers of the defunct Bank of Aurora, of Aurora, Mo., and other persons, covering interest on State deposits and other amounts due the State which had not been accounted for by the bank.

The judgment was on a bond given the State by the Bank of Aurora, E. R. Adams, president of the bank; M. T. Easley, cashier; Almarinda Coleman, Ida M. Shipman, and Ray Shipman, all of Aurora, Shartel said. This bond was given the State as a guaranty of safe keeping of the State deposits in the bank in addition to securities the bank was required by law to post with the State as a guaranty for the deposits.

One of the items covered by the judgment, Shartel said, was $5015 involved in the so-called "Brunk Rent Account" transactions, which formed the basis of several of the charges against State Treasurer Larry Brunk in his impeachment trial last June before the Senate. Brunk was acquitted in the impeachment trial.

Disclosed by Audit.

This account was discovered in an audit of the bank after it failed in June, 1930. The audit disclosed the bank had withheld $5015 from interest payments due the State, and that $2950 of this amount had been deposited in an account in the bank known as the "Brunk Rent Account," against which were charged payments on notes Brunk owed the bank and payment of taxes and other obligations of the State Treasurer. At the time the bank closed, the bank note files showed Brunk owed the bank approximately $23,000. Part of the money had been borrowed by Brunk to finance his campaign for State Treasurer in 1928.

Brunk denied knowledge of the existence of the "Brunk rent account" and of the transactions or the use to which the money was put.

Also covered by the judgment, Shartel said, was $6690 representing collections by the bank on notes which had been posted as collateral with the State, which had not been accounted for by the bank; $1600 in other securities not accounted for by the bank; $1443 in State deposits not accounted for by the bank, and miscellaneous other items.

Manipulation of Books Charged.

Shartel said the Court approved the claim of the State for $273,091, which was the amount of the State deposit when the bank closed. The bank's books at that time showed the State deposit to be $69,816 less than the actual amount, and it was charged the bank books had been manipulated to cover other shortages in the bank.

A suit still pending involves the question of whether the Bank of Aurora can be required to pay approximately $19,000 in interest to the State on liquidation funds of the defunct Holland Banking Co. of Springfield which were deposited in the Bank of Aurora from 1925 to 1928 for former State Treasurer C. Eugene Stephens of Jefferson City.

Both Stephens and bank officers have stated the Holland liquidation funds were deposited in the Bank of Aurora under an arrangement by which E. R. Adams, president of the Bank of Aurora, was to serve without pay as Stephens' agent in collecting on collateral posted for the State deposit in the Holland Banking Co. and in return for Adams' services the Bank of Aurora was not to pay interest on deposits of the collections.

CHICAGOAN ARRESTED HERE WITH WOMAN IS SET FREE

Jacob Horwitz, With Whose Wife He Was Found, Refuses to Prosecute.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—J. W. McCabe, riding master, was released today from the Niles Center Police Station where he had been held in connection with a trip to St. Louis with Mrs. Lucy Horwitz, mother of three children.

Mrs. Horwitz, reunited with her family, was at Peoria with her husband, Jacob W. Horwitz, Chicago attorney. She is reported to have suffered a nervous breakdown.

Justice of the Peace Percy E. Harms ordered McCabe released after all charges against him had been dismissed. Horwitz refused to prosecute.

McCabe and Mrs. Horwitz were arrested in their room at the Missouri Hotel Friday after private detectives had traced them to St. Louis.

TWO YOUTHS RETURNING FOR 'STOLEN SHOES ARE CAPTURED

Two youths who described themselves as Emmert Elder, 18 years old, 918 Chouteau avenue, and Louis Dragis, 20, of 3500 Missouri avenue, East St. Louis, were arrested shortly after midnight yesterday when they drove up to a spot in Silver Creek bottoms near O'Fallon, Ill., where officers had discovered shoes valued at $286 stolen Thursday night from a truck shipment.

Elder and Dragis, the officers said, admitted they had stolen the shoes and cached them. On information furnished by them warrants charging grand larceny were issued for six other men.

Police were notified Thursday night by the driver of a truck of the Weilbacher Truck Service Co., that part of his load of shoes had been stolen on the highway between O'Fallon and Lebanon. The officers found the shoes hidden in a wooden section. They kept the find under surveillance until Elder and Dragis appeared there early yesterday.

Mayor Walker Wins Ship's Pool.

By the Associated Press.

S. S. BREMEN, Sept. 19.—In spite of rough weather and a touch of seasickness, Mayor James J. Walker of New York tonight had what he described as his first break of luck on his homeward journey by winning the pool on the ship's run, amounting to $1250. Part of the $1250 winnings went to the seamen's fund and the rest was distributed among the third-class passengers.

Crowd in Holiday Mood At Fairmount Opening

Typical Throng Sees Start of Racing Season —Daily Double Wagers Introduced— Congestion on the Highway.

Pennons fluttered brightly in the sunlight before a brisk south wind, thoroughbreds fidgeted impatiently in the paddock, automobiles crawled at snail's pace along a too-narrow highway—so the stage was set as the Fairmount Jockey Club track opened its 23-day fall meeting yesterday afternoon.

The return of the sport of kings to St. Louis after an absence of more than a year—the last race at the track was on Sept. 1 of last year—brought a holiday crowd, not so well dressed, perhaps, nor so rich with cash as the crowds of more prosperous years, but bent, nevertheless, on making the most of an important day.

On the clubhouse lawn and roof, not so crowded as in other years, were the usual figures that belong to every opening day, men in dark coats and light trousers with soft hats rakishly awry, binoculars swung over shoulders, racing cards in hand; women modishly dressed, and conscious of the fact even in the heat of the discussion over the best betting choices for the next race.

In the Grand Stand.

In the grand stand was the usual variegated crowd, men and youths in shirt sleeves, men buttoned up tightly in uncomfortable double-breasted coats, men in linen suits, men garbed like the race fans on the clubhouse lawn. Here, too, were more modishly dressed women, and a few whose garb indicated the money they were fingering as they eyed their form sheets, might not be easy to lose.

While the crowd was still gathering, and several thousand were still working their way through an unutterably slow stream of automobile traffic, the bugle sounded for the first race. Everybody hurried to seats from the betting booths and looked expectantly to the paddock.

Soon came the announcer's warning, "They are coming on to the track," and into view stepped the first of the thoroughbreds, picking their way daintily down the track under the hands of jockeys in gay silks. Within a few moments they were in the starting box at the first quarter post.

There was a moment of hesitation, a scattered cry, "They're off," the faint thud of hoofs far across the track, a stringing out of sinewy bodies and bright jackets beyond the white board fence.

Collinsville Horse Wins First.

The cheering raised in volume to that peculiar scattering shout of the racing crowd as its favorites swing down the stretch, jockeys plying their whips. Title Oak, a horse owned by J. H. Edwards of Collinsville, took the opener, snugly ridden by T. Reno.

For this season the Fairmount management has inaugurated the daily double bet, a special wager which allows fans to pick a favored horse in each of two selected races—the second and third on yesterday's card.

The daily double booths were crowded yesterday as patrons of the track took up the innovation whole-heartedly. The other betting booths, however, were not as well patronized as last year. Employes of the track, after the fashion of the day, chalked the decline off to the depression, and hoped the daily double betting would bring the total for the day up to normal.

About 55 investors in the daily double won yesterday when they selected Bill Orange for the second and Jack Collins for the third. For a $2 ticket each collected $78.49, a tidy return if you manage to pick the right horses.

GIRL ON SIDEWALK STRUCK AND GRAVELY HURT BY AUTO

Gloria Spies, 16 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Spies, 3930 Lafayette avenue, was seriously injured yesterday afternoon when she was caught between the wall of a building and an automobile which had run up over the curb in the 1900 block on Lawrence street. She suffered a skull fracture, a crushed right arm and right foot.

The Spies girl and a companion, Jeanne Sippel, 13 years old, of 3927 De Tonty street, were struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. Evelyn Mayhew, 3874A Utah place. Mrs. Mayhew told police that she swerved the car to avoid a truck in the center of the street and that the steering gear locked.

The Sippel girl suffered only slight injuries.

ADMITS PLOT TO DROWN WOMAN AND HER CHILD

Washington Man Said to Have Confessed Aiding Victim's Husband.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—John Crowder who has been held with Harry C. Wimbley in connection with the drowning of the latter's wife and her daughter, was said tonight by police to have confessed they collaborated in the drownings and planned also to burn the woman's family at Dendron, Va., to obtain insurance money.

Wembley had not been confronted with the confession.

Earlier the police had reported the discovery that Wimbley had married a third time April 3.

Edward J. Kelly, Chief of Detectives, said Wimbley and Miss Ida May Graves were married at Rockville, Md., in April, a short time before a $10,000 accident life insurance policy was taken out on Wimbley's second wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Traylor Wimbley, 26.

Wimbley and Crowder, who had been living with Wimbley here, were arrested after the second wife and her three-year-old daughter, Wilma, drowned in the Chesapeake & Ohio canal alongside the Potomac River.

Wimbley said his family had come to Washington from Dendron,, Va., on a pleasure trip and that while Mrs. Wimbley and the girl were fishing from a canoe when the boat overturned. Before he and Crowder could get to the canal, Wimbley said, the woman and girl had drowned.

Police expressed belief Wimbley could not have seen the mishap from the edge of the Potomac, as he claimed, because the canal banks are too high.

THREAT AGAINST DR. SAYMAN

Maid Reports Seeing Two Suspects Around His Home.

Deputy Constables of St. Louis County and St. Louis police last night were investigating the report of an alleged threat against Dr. T. M. Sayman, wealthy soap manufacturer, who has a residence on Bellefontaine road, north of St. Cyr road.

A maid reported early in the evening that she had seen two men prowling around the place and heard one say, "Let's beat it. He isn't here now." The officers went to the Sayman home last night to see whether an attempt would be made to kidnap Sayman.

PEOPLE'S MOTOR BUS CO. PURCHASE PLAN OF P. S. CO.

Trolley Concern Also Requests State's Permission to Sell Two Power Plants to Union Electric.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 19.—In a corporation family affair, the St. Louis Public Service Co. applied to the State Public Service Commission today for permission to sell its two power generating plants to the Union Electric Light and Power Co. to finance purchase of the People's Motor Bus Co. by Public Service.

It is Public Service's intention to co-ordinate its trolleys and bus system with the bus facilities of People's Motor Bus, in response to public demand, if the deal is approved, the application states. Union Electric joined in the petition.

Acquisition of People's Motor Bus, including all property, operating permits and other assets would be carried out through purchase of the capital stock of a holding company, the St. Louis Motor Coach Corporation which owns People's Motor Bus outright.

Alternative Plan of Purchase.

Union Electric would have the alternative of buying the St. Louis Motor Coach stock and turning it over to Public Service, or of paying Public Service $2,100,000 in cash, with which Public Service would pay for this stock. The application indicates the price of the stock to Public Service would be $2,100,000. If Union Electric could buy it cheaper, Union Electric would save the difference in cost of the power houses.

The City Utilities Co. owns St. Louis Motor Coach outright and, therefore, owns People's Motor Bus. It also owns 38 per cent of Public Service, which gives it a substantial control of the trolley company. In turn, a large slice of City Utilities is owned by the North America Co. and Union Electric is owned outright by North American.

The two Public Service power plants, which produce only 10 per cent of the current used by Public Service, are at Thirty-ninth street and Vista avenue and at Second and Salisbury streets. The Public Service Commission valued them at $3,250,020 as of Jan. 1, 1927. The car company says in its application that the plants have been kept in good condition but would need various improvements if they are to be operated extensively.

Subject to Old Mortgage.

The two plants are part of the trolley system property subject to the old first general mortgage of the United Railways, held by the St. Louis Union Trust Co. as trustee. The application recites that it is intended to obtain release of these plants from the mortgage, pledging the St. Louis Motor Coach stock with the trust company as a substitute security.

Of the 90 per cent of its current which it purchases. Public Service takes about 24 per cent direct from Union Electric, and about 66 per cent from the Mississippi River Fuel Corporation, a Union Electric subsidiary, handling current from Keokuk dam. The application proposes a new contract whereby the Public Service would take its entire power direct from Union Electric. In this connection, it is stated, there would be an assignment of the Keokuk contract.

COMPROMISE ON REDUCTION OF TEXAS COTTON ACREAGE

Conferees of Legislature Agree on Cutting Amount to 30 Per Cent of 1931 Total.

By the Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 19.—A conference committee of the Texas Legislature tonight agreed to limit the 1932 cotton acreage to 30 per cent of land in cultivation this year. The committee had been named to adjust differences between the two houses.

Conferees said the compromise bill would be ready for presentation to the Legisalture early Monday. Its quick acceptance by both houses is regarded as likely.

BAIL FOR ALLEGED SLAYER

Prof. Kane Freed Pending Hearing Wednesday at Hampotn, Va.

By the Associated Press.

HAMPTON, Va., Sept. 19.—Elisha Kent Kane was released from jail today on $15,000 bond pending his preliminary hearing Wednesday on a charge of drowning his wife at Grandview Beach. Kane, a University of Tennessee professor, asserts that he made efforts to rescue and ressusciate his wife.

Although the officers made public letters they said were written by "the other woman in the case," the testimony taken during the four day Coroner's inquest has not been divulged.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR JOHN MORITZ

City Gardener for 39 Years Established the Jewel Box in Forest Park.

Funeral services for John Moritz, city gardener in charge of the greenhouses on the Oakland avenue side of Forest Park, were held yesterday afternoon at Kriegshauser's undertaking establishment, 4228 South Kingshighway. Interment was at Sunset Burial Park.

Moritz, 73 years old, died Thursday at his home adjoining the Jewel Box, where the choicest products of his gardens were exhibited. He had been an invalid for more than two years, never having recovered fully from an attack of paralysis, followed by pneumonia, in the spring of 1929. His widow and a son, Carl J. Moritz, survive.

For 39 years he had been in charge of the city's green houses where many of the shrubs and flowers planted in city parks are grown. One of his early duties was to direct the planting of shrubs and trees in Forest Park in unsightly areas left after the removal of the World's Fair buildings.

His training in horticulture was acquired in the famous botanical gardens of Europe, at Versailles, the royal gardens at Potsdam and the gardens of King Ludwig of Bavaria. When he came to St. Louis he was placed in charge of the single greenhouse then in Forest Park. He had two assistants. Now there are 13 greenhouses there, and in busy seasons, more than 60 gardeners.

About 10 years ago he was responsible for construction of the Jewel Box, which afforded for the first time an opportunity for public exhibitions. The spring flower show there, each year about Easter attracts many interested in flowers and Moritz enjoyed nothing more than conducting groups through the Jewel Box, pausing to explain the particular beauties of various plants.

Moritz and his associates chose not to compete in exhibitions with others who had not the facilities available to them, and whenever they exhibited in flower shows it was with the understanding that their flowers were not in competition.

BROOKHART DEMANDS SPECIAL SESSION ON UNEMPLOYMENT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—A special session of Congress to enact unemployment relief legislation including full cash payment of the soldiers' bonus and a $3,000,000,000 appropriation for Federal construction was demanded today by Senator Brookhart (Rep.), Iowa.

Brookhart, in a radio address, urged a special session of Congress in October to consider the agricultural problem and unemployment. For agriculture he proposed to give the Farm Board a $1,500,000,000 revolving fund together with the debenture or equalization fee. This, he said, would start the wheels of industry going again, but in addition $3,000,000,000 should be appropriated for public works.

For a permanent remedy of unemployment, Brookhart proposed redistribution of wealth through Federal excess profits taxation, issuance of legal tender treasury notes without interest, graduated corporation taxes, and higher taxes on big incomes, estates and gifts.

Ever Take an Internal Bath?

A Strange Question—but if You Want to Rewin Energy, Brain Quickness and Glorious Health, Read This

I speak from experience. It was just such a message as this that dynamited me out of the slough of dullness and wretched health into the sunlight atmosphere of happiness, vitality and abundant energy.

To me, and no doubt to you, an Internal Bath was a mystery. So I stepped into Liggett's and asked for a booklet, "Why We Should Bathe Internally." I quickly learned.

Vaguely I had an idea that an internal bath was an enema. I was dead wrong. There's about as much similarity as between a kite and an airplane.

A bonafide internal bath is the administration into the intestinal tract of pure, warm water purified by a marvelous cleansing tonic. The appliance that holds and injects the liquid is the J.B.L. Cascade, invented by that eminent physician, Dr. Charles A. Tyrrell, to save his own life. By a natural pressure system it floods the entire length of the lower intestine and flushes it absolutely clean . . . all without the slightest pain or discomfort.

Now here's why this internal bath is so important. The intestinal tract is the waste canal of the body. Due to our soft foods, lack of exercise and highly artificial civilization, most of us suffer from intestinal statis (delay). Passage of waste is entirely too slow.

Result: Germs and poisons breed in this waste and the blood stream swiftly absorbs them.

Those headaches you get, that exhausting fatigue, that terrible distress two hours after eating, that nervousness, those sleepless nights and countless other ills are directly due to these poisons in your system. Worse, they are the generic cause of premature old age, hardening of arteries, rheumatism, high blood pressure and many serious maladies. In fact, the great Professor Foges of Vienna blames them for 95 per cent of all diseases.

The sure and effective means of ridding the system of these poisons is by internal bathing. By flushing them out before they reach the blood. By preventing their reenforcement, and thus allowing tissues and organs to get rid of those already there.

Take your internal bath before retiring and you'll sleep like a child. You'll rise immensely invigorated. Your eyes will sparkle. Your brain will be as bright as a new-minted dollar. That's my experience—and that of more than 1,000,000 men and women who rewon health through Internal Bathing.

Step into a Liggett Drug Store and get a copy of this marvelous book, "Why We Should Bathe Internally." Read Dr. Turner's chapter—it's a revelation. Book is absolutely free—get your copy immediately.

MAYOR TO REMIT FINES OF WOMAN DECOY'S VICTIMS

Means to Clear His Client.

"I intend to clear my client in court," he said. "To that end I intend to take depositions to bring out the circumstances under which the charge was made against him."

Shay, 36 years old, and married, resides at 4547A Elmbank avenue, and is a teacher at Normandy High School. The other men, fined $25 each by Judge Foster, are Virgil Gerek, 23 years old, a painter, 4962 Maple avenue, and Riley H. Lamb, 32, 4508 Shenandoah avenue. Shay and Gerek both declared on the stand that the woman decoy approached them first, while Lamb said he thought he recognized her as an acquaintance.

Sponsor of the campaign of Mrs. Kelty is "Major" C. R. Edrington, who was executive secretary of the Vigilance Committee of Washington boulevard from January to April, according to his own statement. When his pay, $200 a month, was not forthcoming, he quit the association, he said, but carried on as a "court observer."

"Major" Promotes Himself.

"The Major" lives in an apartment at 4140 Washington boulevard where he gets free lodging, he told reporters, for acting as an assistant caretaker. He was a Captain overseas in the Intelligence Service during the war, he said, but has held no military rank since except the title to which he promoted himself.

During his career he has worked as a sex hygiene lecturer—as "Professor" Edrington, he recalled —and as East St. Louis newspaper reporter, neighborhood motion picture theater manager, neighborhood newspaper publisher and promoter of various projects, including a "Pay Your Bills Week" campaign in East St. Louis. During recent years he also has promoted an anti-Red organization—membership fee $10—and conducted several one-man investigations of labor disputes and other disturbances.

Prison for Melon Patch Slayer.

By the Associated Press.

STOCKTON, Kan., Sept. 19.—District Judge Ham today sentenced Arthur E. Merriweather to serve from 10 to 42 years in prison for killing William Francis, one of two youths shot to death in the Merriweather watermelon patch near here a month ago.

COURT ORDERS BONDS, STOLEN IN 1926, RESTORED TO OWNER

Were Bought by Denver Firm and Held in Trust Here by Mississippi Valley Co.

Bonds with a face value of $7000 which were stolen from a safe of Mrs. Hattie Kauffman at Champaign, Ill., in December, 1926, and which subsequently were purchased by a Denver brokerage firm from a third party, were declared to be Mrs. Kauffman's property in a decision by the St. Louis Court of Appeals yesterday. The Court directed that the bonds be restored to her.

The decision was in a replevin suit filed by the Globe Indemnity Co. against the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., trustee. The petitioner stated it purchased the bonds from the brokerage firm of Boettger, Newton & Co., Denver, which on Feb. 28, 1929, had purchased them in the usual course of business from a man named Norris, who was vouched for. The firm paid Norris $4384, which was said to be a fair price, and it had no knowledge, the decision sets forth, that the property had been stolen.

After the resale the purchaser forwarded the bonds to the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. for registration, the trust company having been named as trustee in the mortgage securing the issue, which was floated by the Oklahoma Railway Co. On account of notice of the theft from Mrs. Kauffman the trustee refused to make registration; it also refused to return the property to the claimant or deliver it without order of court to the original owner.

WOMAN'S ANKLES MEASURED IN COURT IN DAMAGE SUIT

Jurors Award $3400 Judgment to Mrs. Stricklin Hurt in Leaving Street Car.

Owing to a controversy between opposing counsel in the suit of Mrs. Arthur Stricklin, 3418 South Jefferson avenue, against the Public Service Co., as to whether both of her ankles were normal following a street car accident, measurements were taken in the presence of the jury. By consent John T. Manning and William H. Corcoran Jr., representing the petitioner, procured a tape measure and the jury retired with Mrs. Stricklin to Circuit Judge Bader's chambers. One of the jurors applied the tape and announced the measurements to the other jurors and Judge Bader, who was also present. The left ankle, which was alleged to have been hurt, was found to be slightly swollen, it was stated. The jury yesterday returned a verdict for $3400 for Mrs. Stricklin. She sued for $10,000, alleging she was hurt Aug. 34, 1929, when she alighted from a street car at Jefferson avenue and Wyoming street.

Suburbs Cool Off Faster Than Downtown St. Louis, Chamber of Commerce Survey Shows.

"The Government icebox," as perspiring cynics have referred to the Weather Bureau station on top of the Railway Exchange Building, is a misleading if soul-satisfying epithet, the Chamber of Commerce demonstrates in comparative figures made public today.

Daytime temperatures on a sample summer day were found by the Chamber's research department to follow a somewhat similar range at street level and at the Weather Bureau station 265 feet above the street, although, as might be suspected, the night was considerably hotter at street level, down among the masses of steel and concrete which had been soaking up the sun all day long.

Since it had been suggested by an enthusiastic well-wisher that St. Louis temperatures would be more "favorable" if taken in an outlying park, as in Cincinnati, the Chamber also compared official records made at the downtown station, St. Louis University and Lambert-St. Louis Municipal airport.

Last July, the hottest July in St. Louis in 10 years with the exception of 1930, was selected for the comparison. These temperatures, again, differed by only one degree between 9 a. m. and 3 p. m., but showed that the air cooled much earlier in the evening at the outlying station. It was 10 degrees cooler than it was downtown at 6 p. m. By 11 p. m., however, the average temperatures at the two city stations were within two degrees of that at the flying field, and mean temperatures for the month differed by only one-tenth of a degree.

Average temperatures recorded at various hours at the three stations compared for July as follows:

	9 A. M.	12 Noon.	3 PM.	6 PM.	11 PM.	July Mean
Weather Bu..	82	87	90	88	79	81.2
St. Louis U..	81	86	89	87	79	81.3
Lambert Fld..	82	88	91	78	77	81.3

No official temperatures are taken at downtown street level, but the Chamber obtained figures for comparison from Erker Bros., on Olive street immediately opposite the Railway Exchange building. It chose last July 18 as its typical July day, and charted the comparative temperature records for the 24 hours ending that midnight.

From 1 to 5 a. m. July 18 the official temperature fell from 80 to 75 degrees, while street temperature remained at 80 from 3 to 5 and declined at 79, at 6 a. m. before beginning to rise right along with the official temperature. The peak temperature at street level was "flattened" at 94 from 3 p. m. to 5 p. m., while the official themmometer recorded 93 at 3 p. m., 95 at 4 and 93 at 5, falling to 90 at 6 p. m.—when it was 93 at street level—to 84 at 10 and 83 at midnight, five degrees cooler at both hours than the temperatures recorded at street level.

July was "nearly as hot, even in cities which list climate as their big asset," the chamber commented. It cited that St. Louis had only one July day hotter than 100 degrees (104 on July 1), but failed to mention the 20 days of 90 degrees or hotter in comparison with 25 July days of 100 degrees and up in San Bernardino, near Los Angeles; seven of 90 and up in Los Angeles, nine above 90 in Chicago, one above 100 and 16 above 90 in Denver, 26 above 90 in New Orleans, 19 above 90 in Louisville, 10 in Philadelphia, 10 near 90 degrees in New York, and 20 above 90 and three above 100 in Kansas City.

RINGLING SEEKS TO ABANDON PART OF MISSOURI RAILROAD

The St. Louis & Hannibal Railroad, owned by John Ringling, the circus proprietor, has applied to the State Public Service Commission for authority to abandon 52.8 miles of its line, between Gilmore, St. Charles County, the southern terminus, and Bowling Green, Mo. Competition of busses and trucks on the parallel United States Highway No. 61, and other roads, has made the business unprofitable and caused losses, the railroad asserted.

This line connects with the Wabash Railway at Gilmore, 42 miles west of St. Louis. It runs one train a day each way, between Gilmore and Hannibal, Mo., a distance of 85.6 miles, serving a region some distance from any other railroad. The line was opened in 1882 and reorganized after being sold under foreclosure in 1917. Ringling, who owns all the stock, also has built small railroads in Oklahoma and Montana.

Troy and five other towns in Lincoln and Pike Counties are served by the section it is proposed to abandon. There are five towns in Pike and Ralls Counties which are served by the 32.8 miles of line between Bowling Green and Hannibal it is planned to retain. Competition has not been so severe in that section, officers said. The road also has an 18-mile branch between Ralls Junction and Perry.

STEP-NIECE OF ADOLF HITLER KILLS HERSELF IN MUNICH

Stage Fright Over Forthcoming Apearance as Singer and Blighted Romance Possible Motives.

By the Associated Press.

MUNICH, Germany, Sept. 19.—Miss Geli Raubal, 23-year-old step-niece of Adolf Hitler, German Fascist leader, was found shot to death today in the apartment she occupied, on the same floor on which her step-uncle lives in the Prinzregenten Platz apartment house.

Her uncle who was absent from the city, was called home by telegraph. Miss Raubal's father is an Austrian official. She had been studying singing and was to have appeared on the concert platform soon.

Authorities said she committed suicide. Friends said she had been suffering from stage fright so greatly that she had canceled a concert recently. It was said also she had fallen in love with a Vienna singer whom her uncle had forbidden her to meet again.

YOM KIPPUR BEGINS TONIGHT, SERVICES IN SYNAGOGUES

Memorials for the Dead Part of Observance, Which Lasts Until Sundown Tomorrow.

Yom Kippur, Day of Atonement, most solemn of the high holy days of Judaism, will begin at sundown this evening, and will continue through the daylight hours of tomorrow.

Services will be held tonight and tomorrow in all orthodox synagogues, and in the temples of Reformed Judaism, or in halls used in place of the regular meeting places, because of the unusual umbers requiring accommodations. Memorial services for the dead are part of tomorrow's observance. The day is one of abstinence from work, of family gatherings, and of reconciliation for those who have quarreled.

EX-POLICEMAN HANGS SELF

Frank Meyer, 45 years old, formerly a policeman, hanged himself with the cord of an electric iron yesterday at his home, 2146 Farrar street. His brother-in-law, Wayne C. Johnston, 3120 North Thirteenth street, who found the body about 4 o'oclock, told police Meyer had been despondent because his wife had left him and he was unable to find work.

Meyer was a policeman for 10 years until June, 1926, when he was discharged for neglect of duty.

VICKS VAPORUB NOW IN Stainless FORM...

Your same Vicks
..only Color removed Same Formula..
Same Price

REAL news in 26 million homes! The Vicks VapoRub you have always used... now comes to you in white, stainless form! A new process simply removes all color—and with it any chance of stain. It's the same matchless formula... at the same price.

There is nothing like Vicks, as most mothers know. It acts externally and directly—right where the trouble is... by stimulation and inhalation—2 ways at once. That's why it's the standby for colds in 3 out of 4 American homes—for all the family.

Your druggist now has Vicks in either the familiar original amber or new white, stainless form. Whichever you prefer, you get exactly the same time-tested medication—the same dependable Vicks—and at the same price.

VICKS VAPORUB

In Original Amber, Too Your Druggist has Both

For a generation an especially selected amber petrolatum has been used as the base of Vicks, because we found no white or "stainless" base of satisfactory melting point and viscosity that would permit the gradual, long-continued vaporizing action that is distinctive of Vicks.

Through the perfection of a process which removes the natural color, without otherwise affecting its properties, Vick Chemists have at last made Vicks VapoRub possible in white, colorless form, for those who prefer it.

PLANNING MIDWEST STEEPLECHASE GROUP

Bridlespur, Kansas City and Chicago Clubs May Form Association.

Plans are being formulated by the Bridlespur Hunt Club here and two similar clubs in Kansas City and Chicago to organize a midwestern racing association which will hold three or four steeplechase meetings this autumn in the three cities.

The association, if formed, will be given national recognition by clubs associated in the National Hunt and Steeplechase Association and the Jockey Club of New York, its parent organization. August A. Busch Jr. and Louis A. Hager Jr., officers of the Bridlespur Club, made a trip East recently to confer with officers of the two associations.

Although the Bridlespur Club, formed five years ago, has held its steeplechase meeting twice, the meet has been almost entirely a local affair. The regular meeting will be held in any case, Saturday, Oct. 24, but if the midwestern organization is formed, the number of contestants is expected to be doubled by horsemen from other parts of the country.

The official answer of the National Hunt and Steeplechase Association, granting its sanction to the organization, is expected in the next few days. The Mission Valley Hunt Club of Kansas City and the Onwentsia Hunt Club of Chicago are the two other petitioning groups.

Six race swill be held at the meeting here in October, including five steplechase events and one flat race. The course is on a 150-acre tract owned by the club at the southwest corner of Clayton road and Lindbergh boulevard, St. Louis County.

Regular hunting is held by the club three days a week on Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday afternoons. Andrew Johnson has been the winner of the feaure race in the steeplechase meet for the past two years.

JURY REFUSES TO REMOVE WILLIAM MEYER GUARDIANSHIP

Counsel Complained Patient With Means Was Forced to Eat Dried Apples, Frankfurters.

A jury in Probate Court by a 10 to 2 vote yesterday refused to remove the guardianship of William Meyer, 51 years old, a former grocer and stock speculator.

Meyer has been a patient in the City Sanitarium three years and his counsel complained he has been compelled to eat "dried apples and frankfurters," although if he had his liberty he could afford to eat what he liked. It was asserted he was sound mentally and that he should be restored to the rights of a normal person. One physician testified he thought the man was normal, while three others disagreed with him, stating the fact that Meyer displayed a good memory on the stand and was able to make a favorable impression was not absolute proof of soundness of mind. They described him as suffering from delusions.

When the petitioner's counsel asked him to name the members of President Hoover's Cabinet, Judge Holtcamp wanted to know who would check up to see if he was right. "I confess I don't know who all of them are," said the Court.

Under the jury's verdict Meyer will be returned to the sanitarium. His wife, Mrs. Ella Meyer, 3958 Russell boulevard, also is his guardian. She was represented at the trial by Attorney James E. Carroll. Meyer's estate, consisting of stock and bonds, is valued at $39,000. He told the jury he attained most of the property by wise investments.

The campaign is sponsored by the Veterans' Welfare Association, which has handled 15,000 cases in the last 12 months without duplicating the work of other agencies.

Red Suggests U. S. Army Mutiny.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—J. Louis Engdahl, secretary of International Labor Defense and Communist candidate for Congress, suggested mutiny of United States military forces in an address at a Communist rally in Union Square today. Engdahl predicted that "since our armed forces are made up of workers the Star Spangled Banner will in time give way to the red banner of the Workers of America."

SLUMPS IN LONDON RATES SEND STOCK PRICES DOWN

Losses Average Less Than Previous Day Though List Is Well Spotted With Net Declines of 2 to Nearly 6 Points.

STERLING DROPS TO $4.84 3-4 FOR CABLES

United Kingdom, Great Britain and Ireland 5 1-2 Issue Shows Net Loss for Day of $82.50 on $1000 Bond.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Another case of nerves in the financial markets sent securities diving again today.

Both stocks and bonds in the New York market penetrated new lows for recent years, under the heaviest selling experienced in a short Saturday session this year. Losses, in the aggregate, however, were somewhat less severe than yesterday's.

Sentiment in Wall street was still dominated by the touchy financial conditions abroad, as indicated by marked weakness of British bonds, and the pound sterling.

The London market, open for Saturday trading for the first time since 1917, was rather dejected, but selling was kept within reasonable proportions. Canadian markets were also weak, and the Canadian dollar was again lower, in terms of United States dollars.

There were again no developments in domestic affairs of character to account for the despondence of the local markets. A considerable portion of the selling here was again attributed in brokerage circles to foreign sources.

Both stock and bond tickers were unable to cope with the volume of selling. The highspeed stock ticker ran for 12 minutes after the end of trading, and the bond ticker did not print the final quotation until about half an hour after the close.

Index Lowest in Ten Years.

Bond prices, as measured by Standard Statistics Co. indices, have been reduced to the lowest level in 10 years. The United Kingdom, Great Britain and Ireland 5½ per cent issue of 1937 dropped to $920 per bond of $1000 per value, the lowest in years, and closed at $930, a net loss for the day of $82.50. Foreign dollar bonds generally were under pressure. Even the Belgian Government issues lost $10 to $30, despite the conspicuous success with which that Kingdom has dealt with its financial problems.

Pressure against sterling exchange has become so great that the leading banks have acted to check speculation in the currency, refusing to quote futures. Bankers point out that co-operation with London by Paris and New York has been excellent of late, but that Holland, Switzerland and some other capitals which did not participate in the recent loans to England, totaling $650,000,000 have been calling home their London balances. London has lost some $12,000,000 in gold to Holland in two days.

The pound sterling was quoted today as low as $4.84¾ for cable transfers, off one cent from yesterday's final level, but it later recovered to $4.85. Gold parity is $4.86⅝. In the flurry last July it touched $4.83. Bankers were reticent as to how much of the recent Franco-American credits have been used to support sterling, stating that any information should come from London, although it was acknowledged that presumably a substantial amount had been used. The Canadian dollar was depressed to 97½ cents, the lowest since 1929. The Dutch guilder and the Scandinavian currencies were higher, and the French franc up slightly.

In stocks, the aggregate loss, as measured by the standard statistics price index of 90 representative issues, was about $3, against $4.60 yesterday, this index was reduced to within striking distance of the low level of 1926. Sales for the two-hour session in the stock market were 2,420,833 shares, or without 470,000 shares of the turnover for yesterday's full five-hour session. It was the largest Saturday since May, 1930.

Repurchased by Bears.

The decline in stocks was apparently cushioned by bear repurchases. American Telephone was again under heavy pressure, losing more than $5. Issues off about $2 or more included U. S. Steel, Allied Chemical, American Can, Consolidated Gas, New Haven Railroad, and National Biscuit. New York Central actually closed a little higher. General Electric lost $1.50 in a heavy turnover, and General Motors closed off 87 cents.

Commodities weakened with securities. Wheat futures finished 1⅜ to 1¾ lower, with rain forecasts and small exports influencing the tone to some extent. Corn was off ⅞ to 1¼, reflecting in part the weather news and easy foreign markets. Cotton found new lows, off 13 to 16 points on the basis of final quotations.

Some brokers thought the market was in the throes of a "selling climax," such as frequently follows a prolonged and rather quiet decline. Volume always increases at those times as long holders liquidate; and there was no doubt in Wall street, but that real liquidation was largely responsible for the washouts Friday and today. From the extreme weakness of favorite investment stocks it seemed that foreign selling had assumed fairly large proportions.

Developments of Week.

Conditions in Germany were regarded during week as somewhat more comforting. The standstill agreement on the $1,200,000,000 of short-term credits to Germany was finally signed, and although it permits withdrawal of 25 per cent of foreign balances with the Reichsbank, German exchange was unaffected. Reichsmarks actually working somewhat higher, in terms of dollars.

The drop in stocks, as measured by the price index of 90 issues, was about 10 points for the week. The price average of 60 domestic bonds showed the unusually wide loss for the week of 3.3 points. Price averages indicate that the bond market is back to the levels of 1921.

COTTON IN NEW LOW GROUND FOR SEASON

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Cotton broke into new low ground for the season here today under heavy southern selling and liquidation which seemed to be promoted by the increase in southern offerings combined with some nervousness over the situation in China and uncertainty as to the further action of sterling exchange December contracts sold off to 6.40c or 16 points net lower and closed at that figure, with the general market closing easy at net declines of 13 to 16 points. Spot quiet; mids 6.25c.

The opening was steady at a decline of 3 to 7 points. Liverpool cables were better than due on the New York close of Friday, but this was attributed chiefly to readjustments following yesterday's decline in sterling which might tend to widen New York Liverpool differences and the market was influenced by the appearance of heavier southern selling orders. This evidently promoted liquidation of some old long accounts and while offerings were taken by covering or trade buying on sale down orders, prices gradually worked lower.

The volume of southern hedging tapered off somewhat after the early offerings had been absorbed, but the pressure from the source continued more or less in evidence, and weakness in the stock market was probably reflected by some Wall street selling. October sold off to 6.19c and March to 6.68c, making net losses of 14 to 16 points and closing quotations were at the lowest of the day and season on the more active positions.

Recent weather conditions in the south have been favorable for picking and ginning and this was supposed to be partially accountable for the increased southern selling here, while some thought that farmers might be showing a little less determination in holding. With the increase in southern selling, business from other sources became more active, and according to some of the local brokers, trading was more active, than for any Saturday in several months. Liverpool cables said the market there had been influenced by continental buying, trade calling and covering influenced by the easier and unsettled ruling of sterling, adding that the cloth and yarn turnover had been disappointing.

The amount of cotton shipboard awaiting clearance was estimated at 62,000 bales against 94,000 last year. Today's weather news was considered favorable but came in for no particular comment.

STOCK WEAKNESS CARRIES GRAIN MARKET LOWER

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Sept. 19.—Weakness of market for securities was a weight on the grain list today and brought lower prices for both wheat and corn. Bulls for a time stressed the Japanese-Chinese difficulties, a break in Minneapolis September wheat and report of chartering of grain vessels for shipment were late bearish influences.

Liverpool wheat closed ⅛d to ¼d higher.

Winnipeg which opened higher closed ¼ @ ⅞c net lower.

Local wheat receipts, which were 93,800 bushels, compared with 53,200 last week and 130,200 last year, included 50 cars local and 17 through. Corn receipts, which were 22,400 bushels, compared with 36,400 last week and 72,800 last year, included 15 cars local and 1 through. Oats receipts, which were 33,000 bushels, compared with 8800 last week and 44,000 last year, included 10 cars local and 5 through. Hay receipts were 7 cars local and 2 through.

In the cash grain market Saturday soft wheat was ½@1c lower. Receipts were light and elevators were the only buyers. Sales of No. 1 were at the Chicago December figure and a car of No. 2 sold also at that level, but several other cars went at ½c below. Hard wheat was nominally 1c lower. There were no offerings. Ordinary No. 2 was nominally 47c. Corn was 2c lower. Sales of No. 2 yellow were on a basis 1½c above the Chicago September figure. The liberal receipts were reduced somewhat by contract sales. Glucose plants were the principal buyers of the mixed and yellow, with industries taking several cars. White corn was taken by an elevator. Oats were ½@1c lower, with the white selling at ½c decline and the mixed at prices 1c off. Offerings were light. Mills were the main buyers of the white cereal, with an elevator the purchase of the mixed.

STOCK WEAKNESS CARRIES GRAIN MARKET LOWER

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Sept. 19.—Weakness of market for securities was a weight on the grain list today and brought lower prices for both wheat and corn. Bulls for a time stressed the Japanese-Chinese difficulties, a break in Minneapolis September wheat and report of chartering of grain vessels for shipment were late bearish influences.

Liverpool wheat closed ⅛d to ¼d higher.

Winnipeg which opened higher closed ¼ @ ⅞c net lower.

Local wheat receipts, which were 93,800 bushels, compared with 53,200 last week and 130,200 last year, included 50 cars local and 17 through. Corn receipts, which were 22,400 bushels, compared with 36,400 last week and 72,800 last year, included 15 cars local and 1 through. Oats receipts, which were 33,000 bushels, compared with 8800 last week and 44,000 last year, included 10 cars local and 5 through. Hay receipts were 7 cars local and 2 through.

In the cash grain market Saturday soft wheat was ½@1c lower. Receipts were light and elevators were the only buyers. Sales of No. 1 were at the Chicago December figures and a car of No. 2 sold also at that level, but several other cars went at ½c below. Hard wheat was nominally 1c lower. There were no offerings. Ordinary No. 2 was nominally 47c. Corn was 2c lower. Sales of No. 2 yellow were on a basis 1½c above the Chicago September figure. The liberal receipts were reduced somewhat by contract sales. Glucose plants were the principal buyers of the mixed and yellow, with industries taking several cars. White corn was taken by an elevator. Oats were ½@1c lower, with the white selling at ½c decline and the mixed at prices 1c off. Offerings were light. Mills were the main buyers of the white cereal, with an elevator the purchase of the mixed.

Offerings of cash wheat feed were more liberal than has been reported in some time. Trading was slow. Standard bran was freely offered at $10@10.25, but no business was heard at the outside figure and only a moderate trade at $10. Gray shorts were rather slow also, bids of $11 obtained some, but holders were asking $11.25. Quotations on to-arrive feed for immediate shipment: Standard bran $10 @10.25, soft wheat bran $10.50, pure bran $11, brown shorts $10.50@11, gray shorts $11@11.25. WHEAT AND CORN AT NEW LOWS FOR SEASON

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—Regardless of war-scare headlines, wheat and corn both plunged late today to new bottom-price records for the season. Stop-loss selling because of increased strain from stock market instability reached a climax after securities trading had ended the week. Earlier today there was buying of wheat on account of Japanese-Chinese hostilities and as a result of suggestions that Russia might be drawn in, but every bullish factor as to grain was ignored later.

Wheat closed nervous at almost the day's lowest level, 1¼@1⅜ cents under yesterday's finish: corn ⅝@1⅛c off, oats at ⅞@1⅛c setback and provisions 10@35c down.

Remarkable firmness showed itself in wheat until the final hour, despite persistent tottering of stock exchange quotations. Warlike activities in the Orient counted temporarily as an adequate offset to unwelcome news from Wall street.

Bears, however, stressed the possible untoward financial aspects of struggles between Japan and China, and this angle tended lated to make the wheat market extremely sensitive to the debacle in securities. A late collapse of more than 4 cents a bushel in September wheat at Minneapolis added impetus to the downward swing of prices here. Further momentum was given by reports that unexpected chartering of 11 vessels for grain shipments from Russia had been made, with six other boats chartered from Danubian countries. Under such circumstances, factors like frost in Argentina were lost sight of altogether.

Corn felt the influence of the break in stocks before wheat was affected. The reported holder of corn again said to be a seller of the nearby deliveries. Oats and rye moved to lower levels in sympathy with corn and wheat.

Provisions responded to downturns in hog values.

ADELAID

THE recent cruise of the Discovery through the gions was undertaken in order to chart more c vestigate scientifically the wide sweep of th west of New Zealand's Ross Sea Dependency, and as the region of our last year's operations, name
Kemp and Enderby Lands. When setting out, th to operate between the limits of 160 to 73 degre an arc of 87 degrees. Subsequent events, however, extend the field through approximately 120 degree that we actually traversed a wider area than exp

Departing from Hobart on Nov. 22 last, sail was set for Macquarie Island. The course was somewhat deviated to the south in order, by means of sounding, to delineate further the limits of the Mill Rise, a remarkable plateau of the ocean floor located due south from Tasmania. There, extending over an area comparable in size with that of Tasmania, the sea bottom rises suddenly from oceanic depths to a relatively shallow area of 600 to 700 fathoms.

Marine Stations Conducted.

Though the sea was comparatively boisterous en route to Macquarie Island, several vertical marine stations were successfully conducted during this part of our journey. In the case of every such station the chemical composition of the water, its temperature and the existing life are determined at regular intervals in a sequence from the surface to the bottom of the sea. Ultimately a chain of vertical stations was completed from Australia to the Antarctic, thence in the pack-ice zone from the neighborhood of the Ross Sea right around to MacRobertson Land.

While traversing the deep trough between the Mill Rise and Macquarie Island, a matter of special interest was the locating in latitude 52 degrees 14 minutes, longitude 152 degrees 48 minutes, of a 6000-foot high sound rising steeply from the sea floor in 2000 fathoms—apparently a submarine volcanic effusion.

The call at Macquarie Island was but brief, for the real work of the expedition lay among the pack ice further south. The visit took the vessel little out of a direct course to the neighborhood of the Balleny Islands, where it was planned to meet the whaler Sir James Clark Ross. The latter vessel, which had steamed south from New Zealand, had kindly agreed to assist our operations by carrying for us 100 tons of coal.

Besides certain scientific observations which we had in view at Macquarie Island there was a further object in the visit, namely, the inspection of the wireless installation and living hut established in 1911 by the Australasian Antarctic Expedition of that date. This was done with a view to their possible utility for occupation in connection with the program of the international polar year formulated for the season 1931-32. The wireless station we found to be a complete wreck and gales had played havoc with the living hut also.

The Island Explored.

Tents were erected ashore and most of the members of the scientific staff reveled in excursions to various points of special interest. No soul had lived on the island for some years past. A sealing license at one time issued was suspended in 1916, it then being resolved by the Tasmanian Government, under whose jurisdiction the island falls, to maintain this outpost henceforth as a sanctuary for sub-Antarctic bird and seal life. The respite from slaughter enjoyed by the animals during the last decade has had a most salutary effect. Thus several species formerly in danger of extermination are now well represented. Sea elephants have definitely increased. The raucous babble of penguins haunts the shores and echoes across many a secluded vale far inland.

Before departing, some interesting dredgings were made along the coastal shelf. South from Macquarie Island a submarine ridge was traced by sounding for several hundred miles, thus lending support to the possible existence of Emerald Island. Unfortunately, the latitude assigned to Emerald Island was reached by us in foggy weather, a gale of wind blowing from the west. A comparatively shallow sounding, only 800 fathoms, was obtained, but weather conditions did not allow of a proper search being made.

Magnetic Pole's Steady Drift In the Antarctic Is Proved By the Mawson Expedition

Leader Sums Up Results of a Season of Exploration Near South Pole—Land of Garnets and Stranded Icebergs.

Slowly the vast coast line of the Antarctic Continent is being unveiled. Recently the British-Australian-New Zealand Antarctic Research Expedition returned to civilization, after having added a large area to the chart and carried on a variety of scientific investigations. In the following article Sir Douglas Mawson, leader of the expedition, sums up the results of his work during the past season of exploration.

By Sir Douglas Mawson.

ADELAIDE, Australia.

THE recent cruise of the Discovery through the southern ice regions was undertaken in order to chart more completely and investigate scientifically the wide sweep of the Antarctic lying west of New Zealand's Ross Sea Dependency, and extending as far as the region of our last year's operations, namely, MacRobertson, Kemp and Enderby Lands. When setting out, therefore, we hoped to operate between the limits of 160 to 73 degrees east longitude, an arc of 87 degrees. Subsequent events, however, were destined to extend the field through approximately 120 degrees of longitude, so that we actually traversed a wider area than expected at time of departure.

Departing from Hobart on Nov. 22 last, sail was set for Macquarie Island. The course was somewhat deviated to the south in order, by means of sounding, to delineate further the limits of the Mill Rise, a remarkable plateau of the ocean floor located due south from Tasmania. There, extending over an area comparable in size with that of Tasmania, the sea bottom rises suddenly from oceanic depths to a relatively shallow area of 600 to 700 fathoms.

Marine Stations Conducted.

Though the sea was comparatively boisterous en route to Macquarie Island, several vertical marine stations were successfully conducted during this part of our journey. In the case of every such station the chemical composition of the water, its temperature and the existing life are determined at regular intervals in a sequence from the surface to the bottom of the sea. Ultimately a chain of vertical stations was completed from Australia to the Antarctic, thence in the pack-ice zone from the neighborhood of the Ross Sea right around to MacRobertson Land.

While traversing the deep trough between the Mill Rise and Macquarie Island, a matter of special interest was the locating in latitude 52 degrees 14 minutes, longitude 152 degrees 48 minutes, of a 6000-foot high sound rising steeply from the sea floor in 2000 fathoms—apparently a submarine volcanic effusion.

The call at Macquarie Island was but brief, for the real work of the expedition lay among the pack ice further south. The visit took the vessel little out of a direct course to the neighborhood of the Balleny Islands, where it was planned to meet the whaler Sir James Clark Ross. The latter vessel, which had steamed south from New Zealand, had kindly agreed to assist our operations by carrying for us 100 tons of coal.

Besides certain scientific observations which we had in view at Macquarie Island there was a further object in the visit, namely, the inspection of the wireless installation and living hut established in 1911 by the Australasian Antarctic Expedition of that date. This was done with a view to their possible utility for occupation in connection with the program of the international polar year formulated for the season 1931-32. The wireless station we found to be a complete wreck and gales had played havoc with the living hut also.

The Island Explored.

Tents were erected ashore and most of the members of the scientific staff reveled in excursions to various points of special interest. No soul had lived on the island for some years past. A sealing license at one time issued was suspended in 1916, it then being resolved by the Tasmanian Government, under whose jurisdiction the island falls, to maintain this outpost henceforth as a sanctuary for sub-Antarctic bird and seal life. The respite from slaughter enjoyed by the animals during the last decade has had a most salutary effect. Thus several species formerly in danger of extermination are now well represented. Sea elephants have definitely increased. The raucous babble of penguins haunts the shores and echoes across many a secluded vale far inland.

Before departing, some interesting dredgings were made along the coastal shelf. South from Macquarie Island a submarine ridge was traced by sounding for several hundred miles, thus lending support to the possible existence of Emerald Island. Unfortunately, the latitude assigned to Emerald Island was reached by us in foggy weather, a gale of wind blowing from the west. A comparatively shallow sounding, only 800 fathoms, was obtained, but weather conditions did not allow of a proper search being made.

About this time it was discovered through wireless communication that owing to the scarcity of whales in the neighborhood of the Balleny Islands, where we had expected to meet her, the Sir James Clark Ross had found it necessary to move east and was located near the 180th meridian. In the early morning watch of Dec. 18, the Sir James Clark Ross was sighted, and we soon moored alongside, taking the coal on board. J. F. Hurley, our photographic artist, went off on a chaser, as the small whale-catching craft are termed, in order to photograph the actual harpooning of whales, and returned successful the following day.

On to Adelie Land.

The journey west commenced on Dec. 16 and continued among pack ice until the 28th, when a point north of Adelie Land was reached. Much to our disappointment, the ice conditions west of the Balleny Islands were found to be exceptionally adverse, so that a close approach to the land was found to be impossible. On Dec. 29 another 22,000-ton whaler, the Kosmos, was located in our vicinity. On account of the Discovery's limited coal-carrying capacity, being unequal to her requirements for a full season's work in the Antarctic, our principal need was coal and more coal. Consequently we were delighted to be informed by the Kosmos that they could spare us about 50 tons of coal.

Late on Jan. 4 a landing was made at Cape Denison, where almost 20 years ago I had wintered for two seasons. Magnetic determinations repeated by Kennedy, the physicist, after this interval at the same spot where Webb and Bage had originally conducted the station, showed that the South Magnetic Pole has in the interval steadily moved to the northwest, and is now probably not more than 250 miles from Cape Denison,

Of very great interest to me was the examination of our old living hut which, it was surprising to find, had withstood 20 years of ceaseless, violent wind. Remarkable effects of snow blast erosion were everywhere evidenced on the exposed timbers. In many places the planks had been reduced in thickness by more than half an inch by this abrasion. Inside the hut, which had been sealed so long, great masses of delicate ice crystals hung in festoons. Foods were found to be in an excellent state of preservation. Soups and other items of the victualling of the 1911 expedition were, after 20 years, consumed with relish in the wardroom of the Discovery.

Uncharted Features Noted.

After a ceremonious raising of the flag on King George V. Land, the voyage westward was resumed. While steaming westward along the coast of Adelie Land, some new uncharted features were added to the map. On Jan. 7, in longitude 138 degrees E. Pilot Lieut. Campbell and Air Pilot Douglas ascended in the airplane to examine the coast line and the ice jam which at that point obstructs further progress to the west. This was found to be nothing more than a shoal area where great numbers of grounded bergs hold and consolidate the pack ice. Evidently, the extensive, high-walled ice formation sighted 90 years ago in this locality by Wilkes and d'Urville was in the nature of an immense flat-topped iceberg grounded on this shoal.

Several days were occupied in breaking through the pack. We had to be content with sighting the coast line at intervals from the plane. New land so sighted in latitudes 66 degrees to 70 degrees, between longitudes 121 degrees and 128 degrees, was named Banzare Land, commemorating the title of our expedition in longitude 116 de-

Subsidies and Service Below Cost Boost Year's Deficit in Operation of Postal Service to $150,000,000

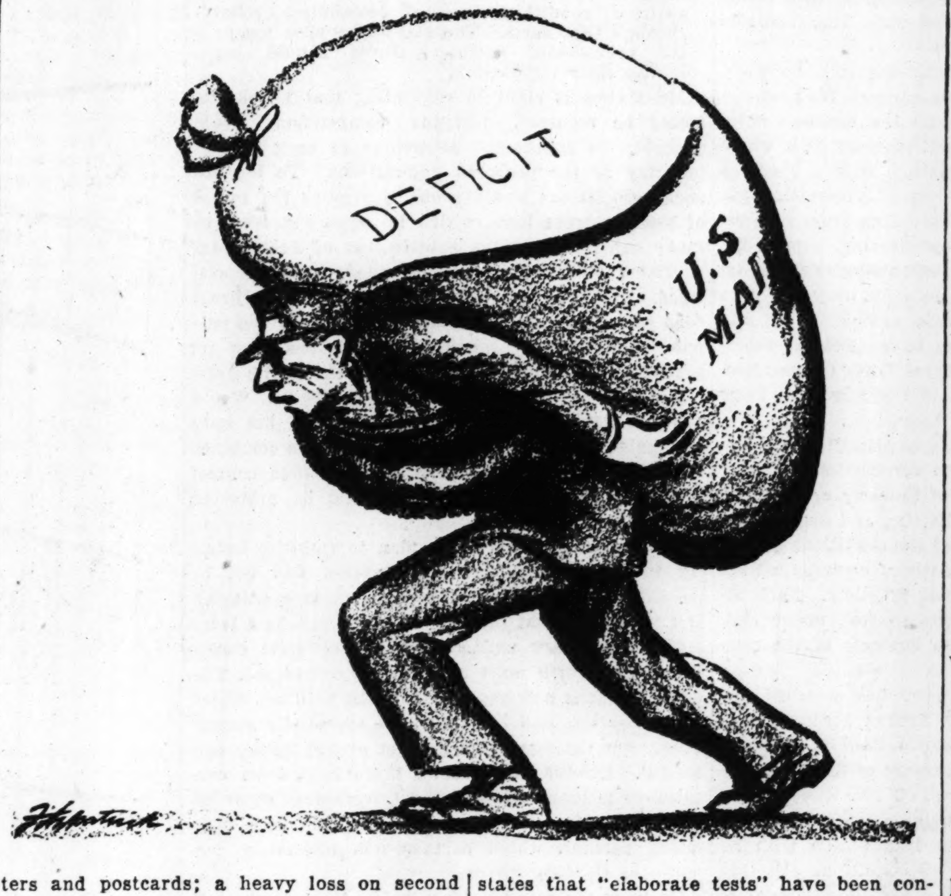
Airplane and Steamship Companies Get About $35,000,000 More for Services Than Revenue Alone Provides—Smallest Loss on Parcel Post—Franking Privilege Costs Taxpayers Less Than $1,000,000.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.

ALL sorts of arguments have been offered to explain the billion-dollar deficit with which the Federal Government wound up the fiscal year ending June 30. It is stated that business depression reduced the revenue from taxes. It is declared that the tariff resulted in a loss of revenue from the customs. It is asserted that relief measures increased expenditures.

All these contentions may be wholly or partially true. But the fact remains that in the one branch of endeavor where the Government is in a position to realize a substantial profit from its operations, it suffered a loss of approximately $150,000,000. That was in the Postoffice Department.

Postal deficits have been the rule for a long time, but one of $150,000,000 is something new under the sun. There are persons living who can remember when the total cost of running the Government did not equal that amount. With the War Department reinking typewriter ribbons to save a few hundred dollars a year, with paper towels being substituted for cloth, and with numerous other picayune economies being inaugurated, it would naturally be supposed the Government would turn its attention to some of the more important losses. On the contrary, indications are that the postal deficit during the present fiscal year will be still larger.



Free or Self-Supporting?

In a recent address before the Rural Letter Carriers' Association in St. Louis, Representative Samuel A. Kendall of Pennsylvania, ranking Republican member of the House Committee on Postoffices, argued that the postal deficit is due to unremunerative but useful services which the Postoffice Department performs as a matter of national policy. He likened the postal deficit to the cost of conducting Government departments which produce no revenue, and whose total maintenance is a charge upon the Treasury.

The fact is, however, that the Postoffice Department performs certain services for which it charges certain rates, and the rates are not sufficient to pay for the services. The official theory has always been that the postal system should be self-sustaining, but it simply is not. It is difficult to see how its functions can be compared with those of the weather bureau, the navy and other departments which produce no revenue.

Moreover, the barest examination of the figures suffices to show that a substantial portion of the postal deficit consists in outright gifts of money to ship companies and aircraft lines. Nearly $40,000,000 of last year's deficit was due to such gifts.

This is done on the theory that the Government desires to build up American shipping and assist the "infant" commercial aircraft industry. In other words, these gifts are subsidies. Since the American public is presumed to be hostile to the granting of direct subsidies, the same object is accomplished indirectly by paying these companies several times what their services are worth for carrying mail. In the case of the air mail subsidy, a large share of the money goes to companies headed by a former officer of the Postoffice Department.

The 1930 Cost Sheet.

Inquiry among high officials of the department discloses an interesting attitude toward the mountainous and mounting deficit. They would like to eliminate all of it except that part which results from outright cash gifts to private ship and airplane companies! And they would do this by increasing rates upon the only class of mail that already shows a constant and substantial profit—letter mail!

In compliance with an act of Congress, the department each year compiles and publishes a cost ascertainment report, giving the revenue derived from each class of mail, and presenting a mathematical calculation of the cost of handling each class. Naturally, the effect is to indicate where the department is making a profit and where it is suffering losses.

Every report has indicated a substantial profit on first class mail, consisting of letters and postcards; a heavy loss on second class mail, consisting of newspapers, magazines and other publications; a much smaller loss on third class mail, consisting mainly of circulars, and a still smaller loss on fourth class, which is the parcel post. The cost ascertainment report for the year ending last June 30 has not been completed, but the report covering the preceding year gives the general proportions. It indicated the following:

On first class, a profit of $70,900,000, notwithstanding a loss of $9,896,000 on first class air mail.

On second class, a loss of $89,700,000.

On third class, a loss of $21,500,000.

On fourth class, a loss of $15,570,000.

The impression seems to be widespread that a substantial part of the postal deficit results from abuse of the franking privilege, under which members of Congress send matter through the mails free of charge. Mark Twain once wrote that a Congressman could send a horse through the mail if he would only label it "public document." However, the premature publication of his own obituary taught Twain that reports may be exaggerated, and few have been more exaggerated than those pertaining to abuses of the Congressional frank. The total postal deficit for the year ending June 30, 1930, was $98,448,000. If members of Congress had paid regular rates on all the matter they mailed during that year, the revenue from that source would have totaled only $718,000. It would have been a mere drop in the bucket.

$35,000,000 in Subsidies.

On the other hand, the cost of handling free mail for the executive departments of the Government represented an important factor in the deficit. If the regular rates had been paid on such mail during the fiscal year of 1930, the revenue from that source would have totaled $9,347,000—and this does not include the cost of handling the Postoffice Department's own official mail.

Although the cost ascertainment report for the year ending last June 30 is not ready, Postmaster-General Brown has declared it will show a deficit of around $150,000,000. Of this great loss it is known that more than $15,000,000 can be attributed to the loss on air mail, and more than $20,000,000 to the ship subsidy. Incidentally, in considering these figures, it should be noted that the loss on air mail represents the difference between the sums paid to airplane companies and the postage revenues derived from air mail; while the ship subsidy is the difference between the total paid to American ship companies for carrying mail and the total which would have been paid to ships of foreign registry for performing the same service.

Obviously, the ship and airplane subsidies contributed to the record-breaking deficit of the last fiscal year, but they by no means accounted for all of it. There was a heavy loss of traffic in circulars and parcel post, and a corresponding increase in the deficit attributed to third class and fourth class mail. The loss sustained in the handling of second class mail remained practically stationery—around $90,000,000.

It is necessary at this point to record a curious and interesting fact; namely, that the Postoffice Department makes every effort to discount the apparent meaning of its own cost ascertainment figures. Although it states that "elaborate tests" have been conducted to ascertain the cost of handling the different classes of mail, it protests in the same breath against giving too much weight to the figures.

Department officials are particularly insistent that their statistics, showing a handsome profit on first class mail and a dismal loss on second class mail, are not to be trusted. They declare that these figures take no account of the preferred treatment accorded first class mail.

Monopoly on Letters Only.

"The sealed letter has the right of way," declared Postmaster-General Brown. "At every stop it is handled with the maximum speed and security. All other mail matter receives incidental and deferred treatment. It is clearly unsound to assume that the direct cost of service is the only factor to be taken into account in fixing rates. The preferential treatment accorded first class mail cannot be reflected in the cost ascertainment report, but it certainly is an important element in the actual cost of handling."

Moreover, the Postmaster-General pointed out that although since 1916 there has been an increase of 82 per cent in second class rates, an increase of 21 per cent in the third class rate, and an average increase of 10 per cent in the parcel post rate, the rate for first class mail has not been changed in 46 years. The present rate was fixed in 1885. He believes it should be increased. At the last session of Congress he recommended that it be increased from 2 cents an ounce to 2 1-2 cents, and drafted a bill to that effect. He estimated it would produce $55,000,000 more a year in postal revenue. The proposal was so unpopular that no Congressman could be found to introduce the bill.

No matter how much the Department discounts its own figures with talk of "preferential treatment" and "intangible values," the explanation of its desire to reduce the deficit by increasing the postage on letter mail is simple enough. That is the one class of service on which it has a monopoly. It is the one class on which rates can be raised without an appreciable loss of traffic. In the transportation of newspapers, magazines, periodicals, circulars and packages, it is in competition with the railroads, express companies and truck lines. But only the postoffice handles letters.

"It isn't a holdup," explained Frederic A. Tilton, Third Assistant Postmaster-General. "It is simply a practical problem, for which the department offers a practical solution. If our revenues could be increased by increasing the rates on second class mail the rates certainly would be increased. Unfortunately, that has been tried, and it doesn't work. Every time the rates are raised, the revenues go down. Formerly we carried nearly all the newspapers and magazines. Now we carry 18.45 per cent of the newspapers and 33 per cent of the magazines. They have turned to other forms of service."

Distribution of Costs.

That the change has not been entirely due to rates, is well known. Many newspapers have resorted to truck delivery, not because it cost less than the mails, but because it afforded speedier service. On the other hand, magazines actually printed far in advance of their appearance on the newsstands, have been able to save money by abandoning the mails for a more leisurely—and cheaper—form of shipment. There seems to be no doubt that, in the problem of second class mail, the Department has found itself confronted with the law of diminishing returns. But whether it could increase its revenues by reducing its rates appears to be doubtful.

In connection with the ship and airplane subsidies, however, there is no room for doubt. During the fiscal year 1930, the excess cost of airplane service over the postage revenues derived from air mail was $13,863,174, and the differentials favoring vessels of American registry was $14,355,000. During the fiscal year 1931, these subsidies were increased by approximately $10,000,000.

Dissatisfaction with the air mail service reached such a point during the last session of Congress that Representative Will Wood, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, was authorized to conduct an investigation. The original routes were developed under the supervision of Paul Henderson, Second Assistant Postmaster-General. Henderson was a son-in-law of the late Representative Martin Madden of Illinois, Republican chairman of the House Appropriations Committee. In 1925 Hender-

Making Rough the Pathway Of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt To Nomination for Presidency

New Yorker, by His Apparent Lead in Popular Mind, a Target for Political Snipers—Strategy of Ritchie, Young, and Others.

By CHARLES G. ROSS
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 19.

THERE appears to be developing in the Democratic party, on the eve of the 1932 Presidential campaign, a situation comparable to that in the Republican party four years ago, when the so-called "allies," Watson, Goff and the rest, sought to prevent the nomination of Herbert Hoover at Kansas City.

The strategy then—familiar convention strategy of many campaigns—was to hold the line against the leader until the scattered opposition could unite on a candidate. It turned out that Hoover, thanks to a large popular support, to efficient spade work by Claudius Huston and other lieutenants and to the judicious use of funds in the South, was too far ahead to be caught, and he was nominated on the first ballot.

In the Democratic party today, there is under way what has all the earmarks of concerted movement to stop Franklin Roosevelt.

The New York Governor is well out in front for the Democratic nomination. He was put there by the smashing majority which reelected him to the governorship in 1930, and nothing has occurred since that time to diminish his convention strength. The progressive elements of the party are friendly to him, and of all the wets who have been named as presidential possibilities he is the most acceptable to the dry South. No one doubts that Roosevelt, if nominated, would repair the breach that the Republicans, on the religious issue, made in the Solid South in 1928.

Differ on Power Question.

But Roosevelt is still a long way from the prize. Like that of any candidate who forges to the front in the early stages of a presidential race, his path is bestrewn with obstacles.

As the politicians are fond of saying, he is out where he can be shot at. All his public utterances take on significance. If he assumes a bold attitude toward any controverted issue he immediately arouses antagonisms. If he evades an issue he lays himself open to the charge of political cowardice. He is in a political spot that numerous candidates of both parties in the past, as, for example, Wood and Lowden in 1920, have found to be exceedingly dangerous.

It is the general view of political observers at Washington that the speech on the power issue by Gov. Ritchie of Maryland before the public utility section of the American Bar Association at Atlantic City this week, was an opening gun in the "stop Roosevelt" campaign. Ritchie has long been known as a wet and states' rights advocate. He is wetter than Roosevelt and more vocal against Federal bureaucracy, but in neither of these respects is there enough difference between the men to make an issue.

There is, however, a fundamental difference between them. Ritchie brought it to the front at Atlantic City. He called his speech "the power question," and added the sub-title, "Let us not go revolutionary." It was, beyond question, a direct bid for the support of the conservative business interests who are opposed to Roosevelt, openly or covertly, because of his view on the power issue.

Smoke Screen for Prohibition.

Ritchie's speech showed him aligned with John J. Raskob, the conservative chairman of the Democratic National Committee, on the power question. In his address to the members of the committee last March, it will be recalled, Raskob called for state as against Federal regulation of the power companies. This is what the power companies desire, and it is what Gov. Ritchie warmly championed at Atlantic City.

"The states have the power," said Gov. Ritchie. "All they have to do is to exercise it. They can have just as strict a measure of control over rates and service as their people want to have."

Gov. Ritchie ignored the fact, as did Raskob, that the Federal courts, by their decisions in valuation cases, have repeatedly nullified the will of the states as expressed through state regulatory commissions. He did not tell how the states could recapture the powers they have lost.

Gov. Ritchie, like Raskob, suggested that the power question was being used as a smoke screen to hide the prohibition issue. He took occasion, for the second time, to praise the theories of Owen D. Young.

No one questions the sincerity of Maryland's perpetual Governor or doubts that he spoke at Atlantic City in support of his own legitimate aspiration to become President. But it is also patent that his speech fits in neatly with the known desire of the present high command of the Democratic party, under Raskob, to block the nomination of Roosevelt. Ritchie is eminently acceptable to the conservative wing of the party. He has a good record as Governor, he never trimmed on the prohibition question, and he is fundamentally an economic conservative. He is being given his chance to make the grade.

"Safe and Sane" Candidate.

Back of the Ritchie candidacy, however, on the part of this element of the party, is the feeling that it may serve the useful purpose of holding anti-Roosevelt votes in line until they can be pooled with other favorite-son votes to bring about the nomination, say, of Owen D. Young or Newton D. Baker. Young is the first choice of those who make large contributions to Democratic party funds. He is the man unquestionably for whom the Democratic chieftains who want the party to remain "safe and sane" have been working.

It is the old convention game that is being played against Roosevelt—a perfectly obvious and perfectly legitimate political game. Hoover beat it in 1928 through an unusual degree of preparedness. No one can now say what will be the fate of Roosevelt. As compared with Hoover, he has the decided handicap of the Democratic convention rule which permits one more than one-third of the delegates to effect a deadlock. The nomination in Republican conventions is made by a simple majority.

Convention Possibilities.

If the leaders of the Democratic party decide definitely that they have a better chance of victory over Hoover with a conservative than with Roosevelt, and, so deciding, determine to block Roosevelt at all costs, there is small doubt that they can do it. There are states in the North, like Michigan and Minnesota and the Dakotas, where the Democratic party exists as hardly more than the skeleton of an organization. Such states bear the same relation to the choice of a Democratic presidential candidate as the Southern states bear to the choice of a Republican candidate.

How the Southern delegations can be gathered in and manipulated for a Republican aspirant has been shown time and again. The same sort of manipulation can be used to gain convention support for a Democratic candidate in heavily Republican states. This is a game, of course, at which all can play, Roosevelt with the rest, but those who oppose Roosevelt hold the money-bags. That is a great advantage. It may provide the margin of votes required to deadlock the convention under the two-thirds rule and bring about the nomination of a rival candidate.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Gold and the World Economy.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUR sane, logical editorial, "Bimetalism and World Depression," hits the nail on the head. Exactly as you say: "Maldistribution of gold is a result, and not a cause . . . and the remedy lies much deeper than the gold standard."

Gold is not money. It is the good which is the basis of money. It is quite useless as a good; and so long as nobody wants gold for money, or as a good, anybody can get it. But the instant people want it for money, because confidence is waning, nobody can get it.

The real basis, the only useful basis, of money is confidence. The only function of monetary gold is to lend confidence to paper money. And the only function of money is to facilitate the exchange of useful goods.

There is no way that money, on any kind of a standard, can facilitate the exchange of world goods, and prevent the maldistribution of gold, when the largest creditor nation on earth uses tariffs to bar all goods except gold in payment of debts and trade balances.

Were all the monetary gold in the world suddenly destroyed, would it cause starvation anywhere? Would it even cause trouble if, for example, somebody slipped into the vaults and replaced the gold with lead painted yellow and the loss (?) is never discovered? No; because the production of useful goods is real wealth; and production by all (universal employment) so that every man may have pure money to exchange for useful goods is the real basis of world prosperity. LEWIS B. TEBBETTS.

The Rabbis' Warning.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE warning issued by the Central Conference of Jewish Rabbis should not go unheeded. A proclamation should be issued calling on employers and employed to put into effect at once a five-hour day and a five-day week, allowing only one five-hour shift to each worker in 24 hours. It is now more than 50 years since the Knights of Labor brought about a reduction in hours of labor from 12 to 10. The invention of new machinery since then has reduced millions of workers to idleness. Let the rabbis' "Message of Social Justice" be broadcast throughout the land. A READER.

When Monopoly Rules.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I AM a resident of East St. Louis and seven weeks ago applied for a telephone in my residence, but I am still without service.

While I am aware this little item can hardly interest the public, just suppose I could say, "Well, if the Bell company is too busy, I'll get one from the Kinloch." Then how long do you think I'd have to wait?

I have never had a phone in my name, so I can't be on the black list yet, and I did not want a party line.

I am told by workmen of the company that if they hired three times as many men as they have working in this district at present, it would take them six months to catch up with their work.

And these are the people who holler about slugs! Many a time and oft as I trudge across the street to use a neighbor's phone or answer a call, I feel like doing a little "slugging" myself.

ISE REGUSTED.

Dark Allegiance.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THAT you, of all the living, should remain
In dark allegiance to myself alone:—
The trivial head with features set as stone
In hard and unperturbable disdain,
Indifferent to the devastating pain
Of bitter mortal bondage, having grown
Accustomed—I am once again undone,
Mindful of all that you would thus attain.

Yet having seen, with sharp pellucid eye,
That life itself is nothing, and our bliss:
The piercing rapture and the eloquent sigh,
But hardly more, I say—in spite of this—
Let us go forth, presuming to outwit
The crafty years, and make the most of it.

CARDINAL LE GROS.

Gerard Swope's Anti-Depression Plan

Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric Co., deserves commendation for devising and making public a plan to avert depressions, stabilize industry and prevent the evils of unemployment and disability on the part of wage earners. He has at least presented concrete suggestions which have started wholesome discussion of practical ways and means to avoid the recurrence of such distressing conditions as now afflict the country.

Although Mr. Swope's suggestions are not wholly new, they are in definite form, and some of them are excellent. Others call for careful consideration as to their practicability and the consequences which might flow from them, because they involve the possibility of monopoly in private business and governmental supervision to protect the public from exploitation.

His plan for insurance against unemployment and disability from old age or other causes will probably meet with general approval in some form. It has the merit of being wholly maintained by industry and its employes, without governmental participation. It does not involve any form of governmental dole. Employers and employes contribute to funds and control them under safeguards of regulation and supervision. Employes cannot be deprived of funds to which they have contributed when they transfer from one industry to another.

The Swope plan for stabilizing industry, however, involves special difficulties and dangers. He proposes trade associations embracing all the business units in each line of industry. Each industry as a whole would organize a trade association, with a board of overseers, charged with the duty of supervising the combination, obtaining complete information with regard to business conditions—production, supply, demand, consumption, and the organizing and managing of unemployment and disability projects. The general administration of each association in the hands of the board would be under Federal supervision, either through the Federal Trade Commission, a bureau of the Department of Commerce, or some specially constituted Federal body.

In short, all industries would be classified into separate units embracing all the corporations or individuals engaged in that line of industry or business, each one through a board collecting and distributing information of every nature on the conditions of that industry, outlining trade practices, business ethics, methods of accounting and cost practices. Each association would be in complete control, under Federal supervision, of the entire business of the companies in the combination.

Trade associations are not new. The so-called one-price association, devised by Arthur Jerome Eddy, was put into practice by several lines of industry about 1911. The ostensible purpose of these associations was to do the things which Mr. Swope plans in the matter of stabilizing business and prices. They were to collect and distribute information with regard to markets, prices, and all conditions affecting the business. Members of the association were to govern their prices and practices accordingly. The obvious purpose was to protect the business from ignorance on the part of the company units of actual conditions and cutthroat competition. They disclaimed any purpose toward price fixing and monopoly; but the Department of Justice attacked them as being guilty of monopolistic tendencies and practices in restraint of trade and in violation of the anti-trust laws.

The first association attacked was that of hardwood lumber. The Supreme Court, by a vote of 6 to 3, condemned it as monopolistic, the majority calling the open competition plan a misleading misnomer. The court remarked:

> The fundamental purpose of the plan was to procure harmonious individual action, concerted action, tacit understanding. Convinced as we are that the purpose and effect of the activities of the open competition plan (that is, the association) were to restrict competition and thereby restrain interstate commerce, we agree with the District court that it constituted a combination and conspiracy in restraint of interstate commerce.

About a year and a half later, in 1923, the linseed oil association was brought to book and was condemned by unanimous verdict of the Supreme Court, which declared:

> Their manifest purpose was to defeat the Sherman act without subjecting themselves to its penalties.

Afterwards, in suits against two other associations, they were declared lawful by a divided court, Chief Justice Taft, Justices Sanford and McReynolds dissenting, Justice McReynolds affirmed the view expressed in the linseed oil case, and added:

> Pious protestations and smug preambles but intensify distrust when men are found busy with schemes to enrich themselves through circumventions. And the Government ought not to be required to await the final destruction of competitive conditions before demanding relief through the courts. The statute supplies means for prevention. Artful gestures should not hinder their application.

Mr. Swope is right in suggesting that legislation would be required. Genuine competition would probably be suppressed altogether in each line of industry by the proposed associations. To legalize such associations would probably require the repeal of the anti-trust laws, which is now approved in many quarters, and the substitution of Federal supervision and regulation of monopolistic associations. The hand of the Government would be thrust deep into private industry and trade, not for the purpose of suppressing monopoly, which has been regarded as an unqualified menace to the public heretofore, but of supervising and regulating it. Would not the Government finally be compelled not only to regulate the conduct of private business combines in associations, but to fix prices and thus control profits? How else could the public be protected from exploitation?

We do not say that some plan to stabilize industry by co-operation and co-ordination will not be needed in the complex modern business conditions. But we do say that the plan of Mr. Swope is a large and revolutionary undertaking, the ultimate consequences of which must be carefully considered. The Government is now regulating public utilities, which under charters and franchises are essentially monopolies. But the regulation has not proved wholly successful. On the other hand, there have been conspicuous failures. Should the Government enter into all the private business of the country as a regulating partner, which partner will ultimately control—the Government or business?

There is one thing lacking in Mr. Swope's plan. It provides for co-operation of business, but ignores co-operation of employers and employes except for the purpose of providing insurance against incidental unemployment and disability. It does not touch economic and social readjustment by which there will be a fair division of the wealth produced by industry between capital, management and labor. This is one of the major problems presented by the working of our economic system by which vast accumulations of wealth are gained by a few, while the masses suffer poverty and deprivation. Disability insurance does not equalize these conditions.

A DESERVED HONOR.

We are delighted to hear of the election of Guy A. Thompson of St. Louis to the presidency of the American Bar Association. It is a timely recognition of Mr. Thompson's brilliant and indefatigable services to American jurisprudence, in particular, to that branch of it concerning criminal procedure.

Following his presidency of the St. Louis Bar Association in 1922-23, during which he was credited with the rejuvenating of that body. Mr. Thompson became president of the Missouri Bar Association. Almost immediately upon assuming office, he proceeded to organize the Missouri Association for Criminal Justice, whose survey of the administration of criminal law in Missouri was the first of its kind. In its findings of fact and suggestions for improvement, it crystallized the powerful, but up to that point vague feeling that criminal procedure must be refashioned to suit modern conditions.

At the 1926 convention of the American Bar Association in Denver, Mr. Thompson made a deep impression with an address outlining the work of the Missouri Association for Criminal Justice. In the same year, his speech before the Industrial Club of Chicago resulted in the formation of the Illinois Association for Criminal Justice, modeled along the lines of the Missouri association. Indeed, the impetus of the latter has resulted in a nationwide movement for criminal law reform, and the technique and methods of the Missouri association have been accepted as standard.

As an authority upon the subject, Mr. Thompson's counsel was sought by the American Law Institute, along with that of the late Herbert Hadley. The model code of criminal procedure drawn by the institute can largely be attributed to these two Missourians.

It is ironic commentary on Mr. Thompson's labors, which have made him a national figure, that the Legislature of his own State has repeatedly declined to avail itself of their fruits. At each of the last three sessions, a clique of criminal lawyers has succeeding in blocking all efforts to scrap our antiquated criminal code and substitute for it the improved and modern code suggested by the Missouri Association for Criminal Justice. If the clique's behavior has not heretofore been shown in its true light, Mr. Thompson's election certainly completes the exposure.

MAYOR MILLER'S ACTION.

Mayor Miller is doing his best to make Washington boulevard safe for masculinity. He has urged the remission of fines imposed on three of the seven men trapped by the woman decoy of the Vigilance Committee of Washington boulevard, and has suggested to Police Court Judges the impropriety of future convictions by entrapment. The mayor is on firm ground when he says: "I believe in law enforcement by the police, not in any character of private law enforcement." We trust the Board of Police Commissioners will take the same view, and retrieve the error that was made in permitting the police to co-operate with the mysterious Washington boulevard committee.

AFTER MANY YEARS.

At each of its annual meetings, the American Bar Association awards a gold medal to the individual it deems performed the most important service in American jurisprudence in the year past. This year Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes was selected to receive the medal. It would be a notable choice were it not for the fact that the medal goes to him in his ninety-first year after he has graced two supreme courts with wisdom and wit for half a century—20 years on that of his state and nearly 30 on that of his nation. Under the circumstances, the medal is not so much an honor to Justice Holmes as its acceptance by him is an honor to the American Bar Association.

DAVID STARR JORDAN.

"I have lived a full life and I have found it good," said Dr. Jordan in looking back over his 80 years. And he did, for his contributions to the thought and life of America were many. In science, in education, in philosophy, he stood pre-eminent. Sportsmen owe him an immeasurable debt for the work he began well over 50 years ago in behalf of fish life. Both the United States and Canada have him to thank for what he did as International Commissioner of Fisheries to unify fishing laws. His 400 scientific books, monographs and reports constitute a major American contribution to biology. As president and later chancellor of Stanford University, he developed a youthful West Coast seat of learning to take its place with the venerable institutions of the east. He was a pioneer worker for world peace and to that cause he wholeheartedly gave the influence of his name. "War knows no victor" he once said and the world today knows he spoke the truth. The palmed campus at Palo Alto was proud of its grand old man, and it had occasion to be. Dr. Jordan was the first citizen of the Pacific coast—one who would have brought high credit to any section.

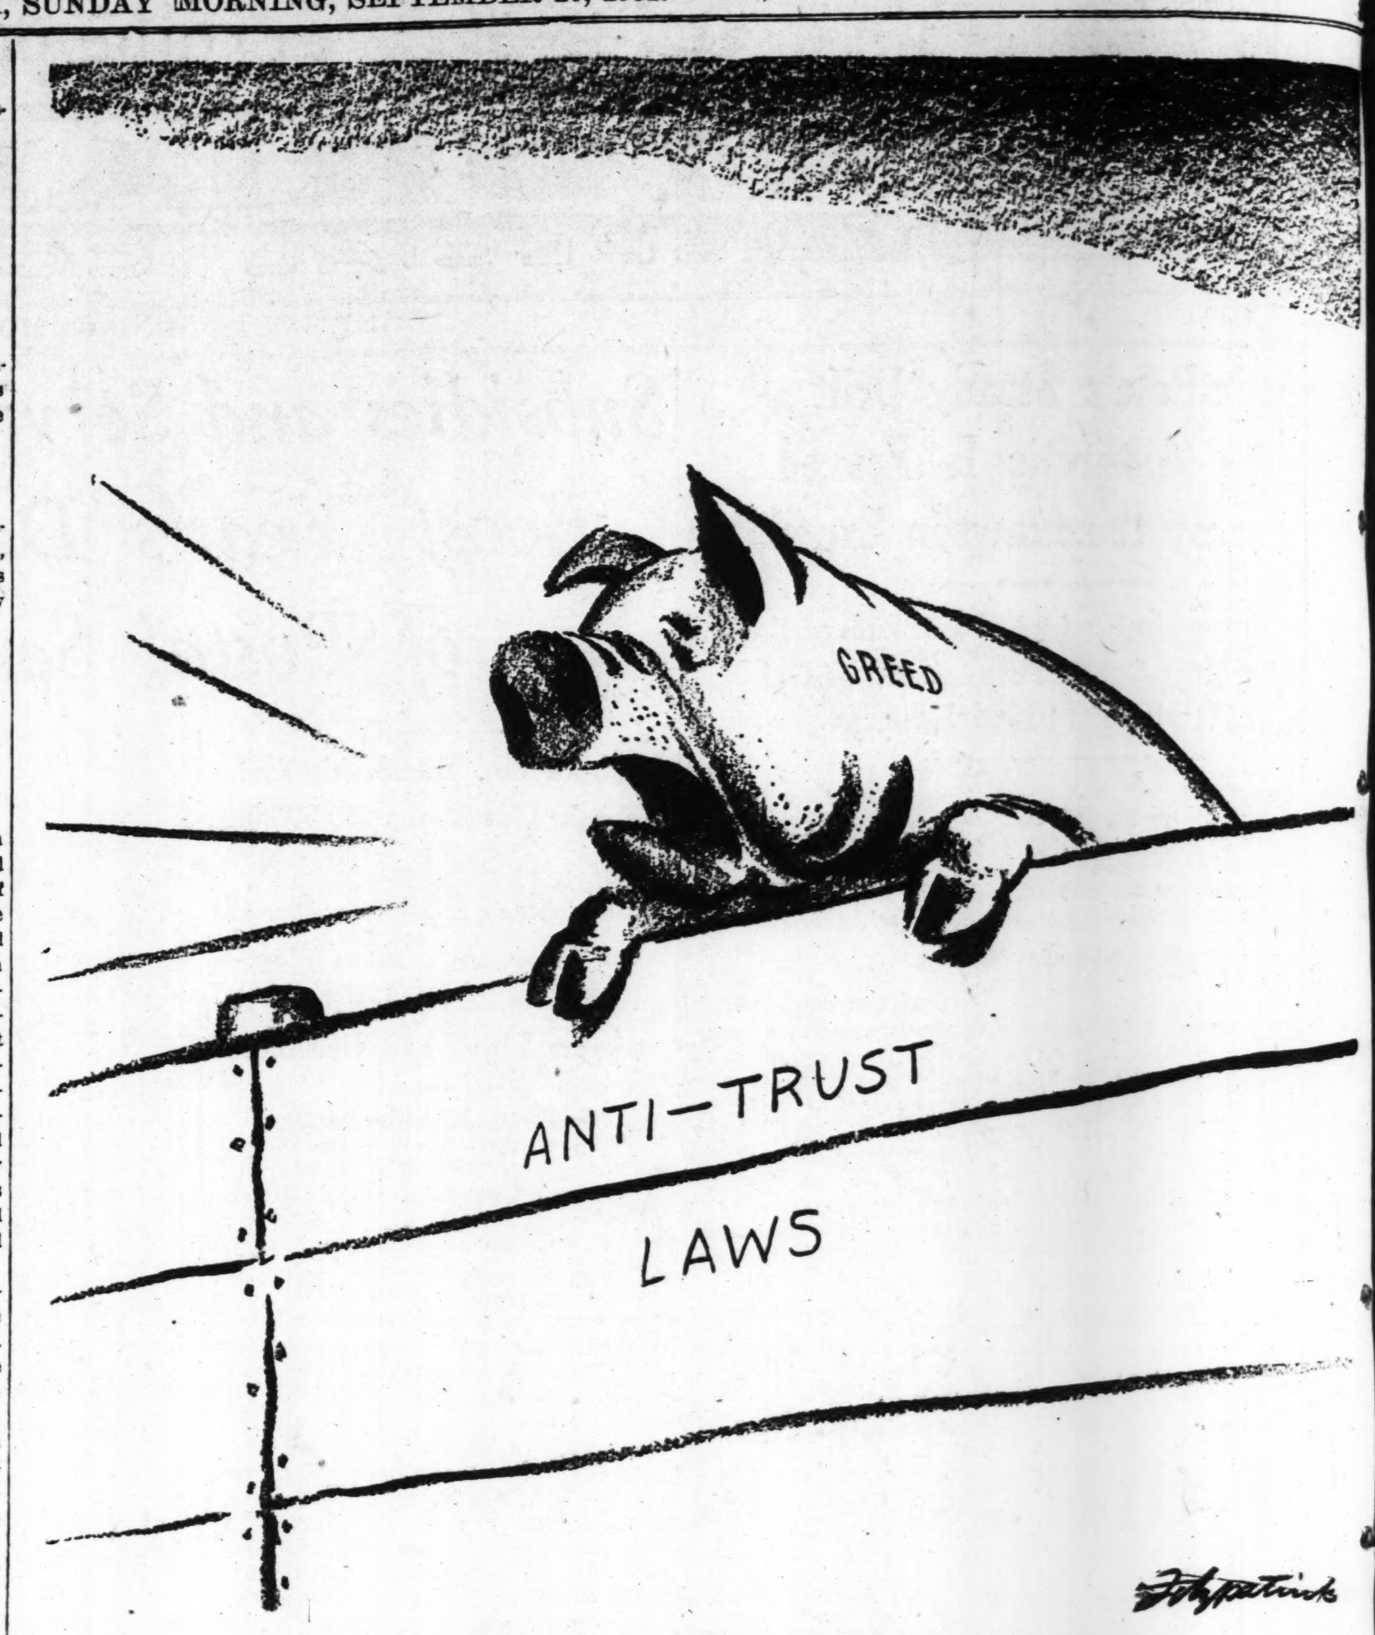
THE BEER DEBATE

We hope the beer debate is not to be prolonged until the weather changes. The proponents of beer have a distinct advantage at a time when the mere thought of cold beer would weaken the resolution of even a very consistent prohibitionist.

Mr. Hoover is said to be under more than economic pressure from those who believe that to open the breweries would relieve unemployment and help the treasury. He is reported also to be under strong pressure from political advisers who fear that as a bone dry he cannot carry the East in 1932.

Congressman Dyer of St. Louis says that if Mr. Hoover will ask Congress to amend the Volstead act and permit the making of beer Congress will do it, which seems probable while the temperature is in the nineties. Somehow, we cannot make out whether it is the weather or the outlook that encourages us.



SQUEALING FOR FREE RANGE.

A Remedy for the World Crisis

Famous Boston merchant says mass production must be accompanied by mass consumption, and that is only made possible by high wages and salaries; "100,000 millionaires do not make a market": denies possibility of overproduction in a world containing 1,200,000,000 persons living on the margin of destitution.

An interview with Edward A. Filene in Anglo-American Trade (organ of American Chamber of Commerce in London.)

"EVANS CLARK, editor of the New York Times, came into my office asking if I had seen Ford's request of the League Labor Bureau at Geneva, for figures showing how much he ought to pay in the 13 countries in which he is putting in plants in order to carry out his intention to pay the same buying power in wages as he does in the United States, and the Labor Bureau's answer that it would like to do the work but needed a subscription of $25,000 to pay the costs of the work."

"That is very interesting," I said.

"But there are no funds available to make the investigation. Will you subscribe $1000?"

"No. I think it is the most important thing in the world today. But I will not subscribe $1000."

"Do tell me what you mean. Why do you refuse if you think it so important?"

"As it is at this time the most important thing in the world for practical work for peace and prosperity, you can cable the International Labor Conference that I will guarantee $25,000 and then you write the Twentieth Century Fund trustees that I have done so. I will subscribe $25,000 to the Twentieth Century Fund if they will take it up."

Edward A. Filene told me this story, with a twinkle in his kindly eyes, and then settled his small spare figure—the very epitome of ceaseless activity—down for a few minutes to explain.

"If Ford goes all over Europe," he said, "and pays double wages and produces better and cheaper autos and tractors and flying machines than his competitors produce with half or one-third the wages, then he will have helped them to understand that high wages are compatible with lower costs per unit of production. Without that understanding there cannot be peace or prosperity in the world because the new mass production needs mass consumption. Without the higher wages which mean higher purchasing power you cannot sell the goods, and the result will be greater business crises and also social and political danger."

Mr. Filene went on to say that while the stock market collapse had been a contributory agency to the United States crisis, the real cause of the trouble lay in the fact that three-quarters of the producers and distributers were still operating in the old-fashioned methods. Consequently their costs of production have been so excessive that they have had to cut down their expenses and this they have done in the traditional way of cutting down wages and salaries. As a result, buying power has been cut down so low that mass production industries, such as autos, were no longer able to sell the required quantities. These out-of-date producers not only paid too low wages and salaries to provide adequate buying power, but they produced at too high a price. Then through advertising they sold at that price, still further reducing the buying power of the masses. But the situation in America is correcting itself. There are some 2500 to 3000 failures a month and these are almost entirely amongst those who produce or trade in the old-fashioned ways.

The world crisis is causing millions of people to be unemployed—they are being robbed of their buying power. There is no remedy for this except employment, and mass production cannot live except as it creates buying power.

From purely selfish personal reasons, business men must pay higher wages and salaries, for mass production is not merely the production of a mass of goods, but it is also production for the masses and 100,000 millionaires do not make a market. The biggest profits in business come from supplying the wants of the masses.

Mr. Filene is so fluent and so enthusiastic over his subject that he rarely paused, but I took advantage of a momentary interruption to ask him his views on the recent wage reductions by U. S. Steel and other firms in the United States. He replied that at the meeting of the International Chamber of Commerce in June he had been optimistic and had prophesied that a distinct betterment would begin in the spring of next year. But he took back that statement when some of the big firms made wage reductions. That meant reduction of buying power which resulted in people being thrown out of work. If it really became general he looked for a very bad 1932 in the United States and he feared it would take at least two or three years to recover.

A query on restriction called forth a more emphatic repudiation of such a measure. He denied there can be over-production except in scattered commodities handled unscientifically. Of the 1,900,000,000 people in the world, 1,200,000,000 were living on the margin of destitution. The demand of these for the products of Western civilization would be illimitable. More than that, if the price is made within the possibilities of the masses, they will generally need it. Look at Ford's motors, which were considered a luxury when he first started making them.

"Let us imagine for a minute," he said, "that every article could be bought for six cents or 12 cents. The immediate result would be that there would not be enough workmen in the world to supply the demand. Such prices are clearly an impossibility in our generation, but somewhere between the price they are now and the selling price of 6 cents and 12 cents, there is a price at which the masses could buy freely to the profit of the producer, and what is more important, keep themselves in employment."

The Twentieth Century Fund was founded by Mr. Filene in 1919 and its policy is to support improved methods of economic organization and technique. In the autumn Mr. Filene is planning the publication of a work entitled, "Success in This Machine Age," which deals with mass production not merely in industry, but in every phase of life. The report on the Ford inquiry will be issued in about two months' time.

The Boone Trail

From the New York Times.

BYRON in "Don Juan" accounted "General Boon," "backwoodsman of Kentucky" (though mis-spelling his name and conferring upon him a title which he never enjoyed), the "happiest among mortals anywhere." He poetically made Boone shrink even from the men of his own nation when they "built up to his darling trees." In prosaic fact he moved on westward from the State which now proudly claims him as its patron pioneer not because of the "inconvenience of civilization," but because he lost all his holdings in Kentucky and moved on to the present Missouri, where he succeeded in making enough money to come back to Kentucky and pay off all his debts, though according to tradition this payment left him with a surplus of only 50 cents. But, as Byron said, he left behind him a name, "not only famous but of that good fame without which glory's but a tavern song."

Now that the State of North Carolina, from which he made his excursions into the wilds of what are now Tennessee and Kentucky, has completed its "hard-surfaced" highway from the sea up to the Yadkin Valley, where Boone's cabin stood on the frontier, and then on through the mountains following his trail into the sometime wilderness, his good name will continue to be sung across these three States. It becomes incidentally, as President Hoover said in his message of congratulation, "an important link in our great nation-wide system of roads." And it has been proclaimed as not only the "most magnificent thoroughfare" across the Blue Ridge but the finest example of engineering skill in the construction of mountain highways to be found in Eastern America.

The "lost provinces" back of the mountains where the sturdy stock still lingers that in the Winter of 1775 sent its "unpolished sentiments of liberty" to Congress are now reclaimed. Byron would no doubt be disappointed that his hero of the solitude who "lived hunting up to ninety" should be welcoming millions over his trail, where the "young, unawakened world was ever new." But it is Boone's good fame that his trail has brought these great stretches of mountain, valley and forest within reach of those in "cities caged." It is not so much that the lost provinces have their outlet to the coastland and the sea as that they who live in these lower and crowded levels have access to the heights where the waters of the Watauga and the forks of the Holston flow toward the Tennessee.

MORE FARM BOARD ECONOMICS.

From the American Guardian.

"BURN a Bushel of Corn a Day" clubs will be formed in Iowa this fall if present plans materialize. Corn has excellent heating qualities and is selling for $1 a ton less than coal, farmer proponents of the plan say. Through the clubs it is proposed to eliminate the surplus with the hope of increasing the price of corn 25 cents a bushel.

You see, it helps in two ways—or rather you see if you belong to the school of economic thought made famous by Hoover and the Farm Board. Besides getting rid of the corn surplus, it means that miners will have to dig that much less coal, and they will therefore have more time to eat corn hominy, corn bread and corn syrup, and drink corn. As to where the miners will get the money to buy corn hominy, corn bread, corn syrup, and corn whisky, nobody but knockers asks questions like that.

Goodrich Co. Tests Rubber Solution for Shipping Trees, Shrubs

Successful experiments in the use of rubber as a preservative of trees, shrubs and flowers during stripping and transplanting are being conducted by the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co.

Plants to be shipped or transplanted are dipped into a rubber solution so that all but the roots are coated to prevent dissipation of moisture and to retain the shape and color pigments of the original foliage.

After the rubber coat has served its purpose and the plants are replanted, the expansion of the plant when it resumes growth and the action of the elements cause the rubber to crack, curl and fall off.

Air-Cooled Engined Planes Dominate Cleveland Races

In the 1931 air races at Cleveland, not alone were records smashed, but the efficiency of the air-cooled motors, which powered practically 100 per cent of the planes, was clearly demonstrated.

Another development at the 1931 races, which contrasted strikingly with previous international affairs, was the almost complete right-about-face of foreign contestants in regard to power plants in their planes. At the Cleveland races this year, American aviation authorities were impressed by the fact that all of the foreign planes competing had air-cooled engines. They said this was an indication that practically the entire world would shortly follow the steps of American aviation by adopting that type of engine.

Mail Subsidies and Service Below Cost Boost Postal Deficit

son resigned from the Postoffice Department to enter the commercial aviation business. Shortly thereafter the Postoffice Department surrendered its air routes and equipment to private contractors.

Representative Clyde Kelley (Rep.), Pennsylvania, a member of the House Committee on Postoffices, has stated that nearly 70 per cent of the annual air mail subsidy goes to companies in which Henderson is interested. Recently, Eastern Air Transport, of which Henderson is vice president, was awarded an air mail contract for $100,000 a year. The Ludington Lines charged that the contract was awarded without competitive bidding, and that they would have performed the same service for $15,000.

A Lagging Inquiry.

In addition to this connection with Eastern Air Transport, Henderson is vice president and general manager of the National Air Transport, executive vice president of the Transcontinental Air Transport, and president of the New York & Atlantic Coast Air Transport, all of which have air mail contracts. The man who exercises the principal influence in awarding thees contracts is W. Irving Glover, who succeeded Henderson as Second Assistant Postmaster-General.

Although Representative Wood was directed by the House to investigate and report by Dec. 1, and although Wood has alleged waste of public funds, violation of law, and "gross favoritism," the inquiry has not been started. Wood is a staunch friend of the administration. Moreover, he is a leader in the House, which is notoriously opposed to investigations, such as those usually conducted by committees of the Senate.

The Part of Politics.

Postmaster-General Brown, addressing the National Association of Postmasters at Omaha Thursday night, again urged an increase in the rate on letter mail as the "only practical means" of balancing the budget, although he explained that he did not hope to balance it to the extent of absorbing the air and ocean mail subsidies.

Since 1925, he said, increases in the wages of postal workers, authorized by Congress, and increases in transportation rates to railroads, allowed by the Interstate Commerce Commission, have placed a total additional expense of $100,000,000 a year on the department, while only one-third of that sum had been provided in increased revenues by changes in rates.

During the fiscal year 1931, he pointed out, the department's expenditures totaled about $805,000,000, a slight increase over the preceding year, while its total revenues were only $655,000,000—approximately equal to those of 1926.

The department has 360,000 employes, and salaries comprise its largest single item of cost. Department officials, while realizing that the present personnel is more than sufficient to handle the shrunken volume of present-day traffic, declare they are unwilling to increase the number of unemployed by dismissing members of the staff. Moreover, they contend it is necessary to keep the organization intact in order to handle the increased volume of mail which is anticipated when prosperity returns. On the other hand, they are opposed to increasing salaries, and they acknowledge that many vacancies, resulting from death, resignation and other normal causes, are not being filled.

Wages and Receipts.

Postmaster-General Brown, who is regarded as the administration's chief political adviser, has repeatedly denied that politics produces inefficiency in the department. In his address to the Postmasters at Omaha, however, he reminded them in plain terms that the civil service laws place no restrictions upon the political activities of Postmasters of the first, second and third class, and added:

"This system undoubtedly rests on the theory that it is desirable that the principal officers of the executive branch of the Government shall be in every respect representatives of the administration which the people have placed in charge of the Government, that they shall be wholly in sympathy with the policies and political views of the man whom the people have elected President, and shall work wholeheartedly to make his administration a success."

FLYING PROGRAM ARRANGED FOR AMERICAN LEGION DAY

American Legion day will be celebrated at Lambert-St. Louis Field today with a flying program sponsored by Airport Post No. 85.

The program will begin at 10 a. m. with maneuvers by planes of the Thirty-fifth Division Air Service. Continuing through the afternoon will be demonstration of aerial "dog fights," gunnery, formation flying, and bombing by the Thirty-fifth Division flyers, and pilots of the Naval Reserve Aviation Unit. Mrs. Mae Hazlip, St. Louis flyer, and her husband, Jimmie Haizlip, flying partner of Maj. Doolittle, will give speed demonstrations in planes they flew at the National Air Races at Cleveland recently. Miss Babe Smith will be taken aloft in a plane piloted by "Red" Jackson, who will seek to attain an altitude of 20,000 feet, from which Miss Smith plans to make a parachute jump.

During the afternoon there will be music by bands of the 138th Infantry, and the Missouri Pacific and Greater St. Louis American Legion Posts. Admission is free and there are no parking charges.

Mawson Sums Up Results of His Antarctic Explorations

grees, latitude 66 degrees there was seen a doubtful appearance of land. This we referred to as Sabrina Land. But in the charted positions of Totten's High Land and Budd's High Land, appearing on some charts, only pack ice was seen. Further to the west, in longitude 106 degrees, we saw at a great distance to the south what appeared to be ice covered land slopes which corroborates Wilkes' report of Knox Land. Westward of the 105th meridian the ice conditions rapidly improved. Extensive area of grounded bergs, some many miles in length, were observed to outline the Eastern margin of the expanse of floating barrier known as the Shackleton Ice Shelf. In this locality was discovered an ice-capped island over 1000 feet in height and about 11 miles in diameter. This was named Bowman Island.

Termination Tongue Annihilated.

A gale of wind which came from the east at this time was most inopportune, for it bore us down on to the Shackleton Shelf and the ice jam to leeward of it. In the thick weather, it was impossible to see the extent or nature of this ice coast. This period of anxiety culminated on the night of the 29th, when, according to reckoning, the vessel was in danger of being driven on to the towering ice wall of Termination Tongue, a feature mapped by our 1911 expedition, constituting the northernmost extremity of the Shackleton Shelf ice sheet.

The presence in this neighborhood of the Nilsen Alonzo, another whaler, had been acertained through the wireless. But they could tell us nothing of the present position of the edge of the ice tongue. The wind moderated on the 30th, and a course was set to the southeast, with the intention of sheltering on the lee, western side of Termination Tongue. To our astonishment, the Tongue was found to exist no longer. It had broken up in the interval since last seen in 1914.

Easier acess to the south was expected on the ninetieth meridian, but there again the weather was adverse. Valuable time and still more valuable coal were being used up. As the Queen Mary Land coast had already been well mapped by the Australian Expedition, it was decided to reserve our resources for the investigation of the yet unknown areas still further west. On Feb. 6 there were sighted across a tongue of pack two large steamers, moored alongside each other. These proved to be the whaling ship Falk and the tramp steamer Lestris, which had brought a cargo of coal from Durban for the whaler. The manager of this whaling venture offered to spare us 20 tons of coal. This we soon had on board.

New Land Discovered.

On Feb. 9, though the swell in the open sea was too great for the plane to attempt to take off, Campbell succeeded later in the day in getting it up from a pool of water in the ice of a large berg. This was in Lat. 66½ degrees S., Long. 76 degrees E. At 5200 feet I had a fine view over the pack ice to the south. Away to the east-southeast was a jumble of large bergs aground. This shoal was close to and a little to the south of the further south point reached by the Challenger in the year 1874. The belt of bergs stretched south toward ice-covered land seen as a faint line around the southern horizon extending from southeast to southwest. It gave us great pleasure to name this new discovery Princess Elizabeth Land.

Early next morning we came alongside the New Sevilla, another gigantic modern whaler. The following morning ice-covered land came into view from the ship's deck. From the masthead the south-running coast was seen to be fringed with much open water, to reach which Captain MacKenzie pushed the vessel through the intervening pack. Campbell and Oom, our naval surveyor, got into the air after narrowly averting a serious collision with a floating mass of transparent ice. Before descending Oom made a sketch map of a great extent of coast, tracing it in a wide embayment to beyond the 69th degree of longitude; thence to the east where it was seen to join with Princess Elizabeth Land. The sea of open water was landlocked on the south and west and limited by pack on the sweep from north to east. As a mark of appreciation for Captain MacKenzie's sterling qualities I decided to name this sheet of water, which is doubtless an annually recurring feature in the summer, the MacKenzie Sea.

The Discovery was headed north and west, following the coast of MacRobertson Land, for such was the territory off which the ship was now standing. This was the coast seen by us dimly and at a great distance last year. What a difference in the two seasons! Last summer when we traversed this area the sea was rendered unnavigable by dense pack. This season, from the 70th meridian to the west, there was practically no pack ice south of Latitude 67½ degrees.

A Mountainous Coast.

The voyage west along the MacRobertson Land coast was of great interest. Bold rock headlands and striking ranges of rocky mountains protruded at itnervals from the continental ice cap. Mountain peaks were observed reaching 5000 and 6000 feet above sea level. The inland ice plateau itself was noted to rise to elevations of at least 4000 feet. Landings were effected at several points along the coast and an interesting collection of rocks was secured. Numbers of islets stud the sea for some miles off shore.

On the afternoon of Feb. 18 the ship entered an attractive bay and a large party went ashore in the motor launch, landing upon a rocky point to be known henceforth as Cape Bruce. There the flag was raised and hearty cheers were given for the King.

The rocks proved of great interest, representing a wonderful variety of crystalline schists and gneisses, chiefly of deep crystal origin. Cordierite, sillimanite and garnet, as well as quartz, feldspar and mica, were the most obvious or abundant constituent minerals. Irregular pyritic bands crossing the rock formations were a feature which augured well for mineral possibilities of an economic character.

So far as we could ascertain, the whole of the rocks of MacRobertson and Princess Elizabeth Lands are of this character. The most outstanding feature is the abundance of garnet throughout the formations. To such an extent is this the case that even the dredged sands of submerged banks far out to sea were noted to exhibit a pink tinge of color, due to a notable content of pulverized garnet, derived in common with the rest of the sample from the comminution by glacial erosion of the rocks of the adjacent land.

As in the case in other portions of Antarctica, the existing plant and animal life on the land, apart from abundance of marine birds and seals which visit the shores, is most limited and elementary in form; in fact, restricted to mosses and lichens growing on the bare rocks and algae in fresh water pools, together with microscopic animal life living upon and associated with this lowly organized vegetation.

Homeward Bound.

We should have liked nothing better than to have extended for another fortnight investigations on this coast, but for some days past Captain MacKenzie had become increasingly anxious on the score of our dwindling store of coal. On the eighteenth he reported that we had remaining but little above 100 tons. So on February 19 preparation was made for return, two reserve topgallant yards being run up on the foremast. At the same time efforts were made through the medium of wireless to secure further coal supplies from whalers within reasonable radius. However, this inquiry was without success and nothing remained but to return forthwith.

YOUR CAR IS A NECESSITY—
BUT YOU CAN'T AFFORD A POOR ONE

These are times when every cent in every dollar counts. People generally are insisting on real value in necessities. Manufacturers have attuned themselves to the times and are striving with all the energy and genius at their command to give higher and even higher values. The last year has seen a decrease in prices and an increase in quality unprecedented in the history of the automobile industry.

Consequently, it behooves you as a thrifty person to investigate what the motor car market offers. Check up and see whether you can afford to "make the old car do" any longer. In view of present price and value standards, you may find that it is false economy.

Bear in mind that some of the finest driving weather of the year is just ahead. October is an ideal month for jaunts into the country. And here is another angle: As soon as cold weather comes, it is going to cost much more to run that old machine. Winter means nothing but trouble to a car that is wearing out.

We would like to show you a De Soto Six as an outstanding example of the progress that has been made by automobile engineers in their efforts to meet today's demand for values. More than two-score important improvements have been incorporated in this car in the present calendar year, despite the fact that it was the value leader in its price-class from the start. And the present De Soto Six is by many dollars the lowest-priced car ever to bear this name—the lowest-priced six ever sponsored by Chrysler Motors.

Come in today and let us demonstrate what De Soto's perfected Free Wheeling and Easy-Shift transmission with Silent Second have contributed to the already famous De Soto's performance. Let us make an appraisal of that old car of yours and show you how very little more it is going to take to own a De Soto Six. It may mean the difference between true economy and the gross extravagance of trying to maintain an obsolete car.

Remember, your motor car is a necessity not a luxury—you can't afford anything but a good one.

Truck and Trailer Cross U. S. in 117 Hours Driving Time

Average Speed of 27.5 Miles Per Hour Made by General Motors Transportation Unit.

The General Motors truck and trailer train, which passed through St. Louis last Saturday on a transcontinental trip to test truck operation and refrigeration under such long haul conditions, made the trip in 117 hours' driving time.

Stops were made only at Texaco gasoline and oil stations. The elapsed time from Los Angeles to St. Louis was 87 hours and 24 minutes, and from St. Louis to New York was 35 hours and 40 minutes. Truck and trailer averaged 27.5 miles per hour from coast to coast, according to word received from New York by O. H. Perkins, branch manager for General Motors truck in this city.

Among other South California products, the truck carried in its Frigidaire refrigerator compartment the largest shipment of fresh figs ever sent from Los Angeles to New York. Incidentally, the profit on a shipment of fresh figs of the size carried by the truck would be sufficient to pay for truck and trailer and leave a margin to spare.

The chief purpose of the trip was to study and determine the effects of the changes in operating and temperature conditions on the truck and the refrigeration of vegetables and fruit on cross-continental runs. Perkins was informed that there were no delays due to roads or mechanical troubles.

Ignition Service Co. In New Quarters

The Ignition Service Co., located for the past four years at 3865 Easton avenue, has moved to new quarters on the southeast corner of Easton and Vandeventer avenues. The new location—35 by 135 feet—provides for office and salesroom in the front of the first floor, with the auto armature winding department occupying the first floor rear. An entire floor is devoted to maintenance and testing of refrigerator and large industrial type motors.

New testing equipment for all motors for every current requirement has been installed. A service yard, with driveway on to Vandeventer, and a sheltered service building are in the rear of the main building.

A. Van Pelt and E. W. Witte are president and treasurer, respectively, of the Ignition Service Co., which has a force of 13 employes.

Nash Six-Cylinder Demonstration Soon

Officials of the Nash Motors Co. and its dealers and distributers today announced a country-wide six-cylinder demonstration to begin Sept. 27.

The Nash 960 models priced as low as $795 will be used. These models are all equipped with the new Nash synchro-shift transmission with second speed acceleration as silent as high speed travel; with completely sound-proofed bodies and chassis, and with the brand-new type of synchro-shift free wheeling which is optional at a slight additional cost. They are powered by the big, high compression, high turbulence Nash L-head motor.

Eagle Boats Built In Building Now Part Of Ford Rouge Plant

In the heart of the Ford Motor Co.'s Rouge plant stands its largest single unit. It covers 13 acres of ground and is today known as the General Assembly building. During the World War that building was the one in which Eagle boats were built. There, in four months, 43 of these razor-nosed submarine destroyers were built and launched in the River Rouge to make their way under their own power to the sea.

The manufacture of the famous Eagles followed the Ford idea of construction. First, while the huge facilities were being run up along the River Rouge, a "sample chaser" was constructed at the company's Highland Park works, 10 miles from water. Once built this model was knocked down and transported. The Rouge plant facilities made ready, the construction of the boats were made in the same manner as that pioneered by Ford in the building of automobiles. Each was constructed entirely of steel sheets. Parts were bent in shapes and angles by huge stamping presses. Rivet holes were punched—40 at a time. The keels of boats, each more than 200 feet long, rested upon cars. These formed the assembly lines. The ships entered at one end from the fabrication building hardly more than a skeleton. They left at the other as completed vessels.

While the turning out of Eagles was the most heralded of Ford wartime achievements, another of equal importance was the providing of 5000 tractors for England.

All cylinder forgings used by all the plants in the United States that built Liberty motors were produced by Ford. Automotive methods of manufacture proved invaluable in reducing costs. For example, the contract price for cylinders was $20, yet through improved methods this was lowered to $12 and the contract changed to conform. Quantities of listening devices and 2,731,573 helmets were made. Better ways than were at first used gradually brought the cost of helmets from 30 to 7 cents each.

Say Syncro-Mesh Transmission Helps Driver in Four Ways

The syncro-mesh transmission makes four importatn contributions to motoring pleasure, according to its inventor, Earl A. Thompson, assistant chief engineer of the Cadillac Motor Car Co.

These contributions, listed by Thompson, are: First, syncro-mesh assures safety; second, it provides simplicity of control; third, it offers topnotch acceleration, and fourth, it permits easy, silent shifting.

"Safety of operation is of prime consideration in the design of an automobile," said Thompson. "Syncro-mesh assures safety because it gives the driver full and complete control of the car at all times. It also allows him to take full advantage of the braking power of the engine in either high or second gear.

"For example, let us assume the driver is descending a long, dangerous grade, where it is desirable to use the braking power of the engine. With syncro-mesh he can instantly shift from high to second gear, even when traveling at a fast rate. Now, let us suppose he is climbing a hill and there is a slow-moving vehicle ahead. He can change swiftly and safely to second and pass with an unfailing burst of speed.

"Suppose a driver is traveling over a highway made slippery by rain or ice. He suddenly finds the car skidding toward the curb or ditch. He can throw the car into second in an instant and avoid further danger. Syncro-mesh will never fail the driver in an emergency.

Goodrich Testing Airplane Overshoes to Keep Ice Off Wings

Continuing a company policy of assisting other industries in the development of products involving rubber, the B. F. Goodrich Co., Akron, O., is perfecting a number of new products.

"In the automotive industry particularly, Goodrich has produced many rubber products to make riding and driving more comfortable, safer and economical," says E. R. Krenner, general manager of Goodrich Silvertown, Inc., 2301 Olive street.

"The automobile tire is but one of the many products manufactured by Goodrich. Fan belts, radiator hose, engine mounts which absorb vibration, floor mats, rubber running boards, steering wheels, molding, door stops and body insulation are some of the company's standard units.

"Goodrich also is interested in the development of airplane accessories and is making tests on wing "overshoes" to prevent the formation of ice in flight, one of the worst winter hazards in aviation.

The Goodrich airplane, "Miss Silvertown," soon will be similarly equipped and as the company's "laboratory of the air," will be devoted more completely than ever to aeronautic research.

"Preliminary tests on this new equipment to battle the elements were conducted in a refrigerated wind tunnel, the only one of its kind in the country, designed and constructed in our Akron O., factory by Goodrich engineers.

"The tests proved so successful that there is little doubt in the minds of Goodrich engineers and officials of National Air Transport, who are co-operating on the project, that this new ice-prevention device will be a success.

Drives Oldsmobile 86,000 Miles in 16½ Months in Business

F. M. Brown, salesman for a St. Louis shoe manufacturing company and president of the Indiana Shoe Travelers' Association, in less than 16½ months has driven his Oldsmobile more than 86,000 miles.

Brown purchased his Oldsmobile early in April, 1930, and by Aug. 12, 1931, had just turned the 86,000 mile. This mileage in such a comparatively short time is not the result of racing, but shows what steady driving does.

In his business, Brown covers Michigan, Ohio and Indiana. He is out every work day, driving 200 to 300 miles and making three to five business calls. In almost every case he makes but one call in a city. To maintain this schedule, he usually drives at about 50 miles an hour.

Three times he has had the carbon removed and valves ground and once he has had new piston rings installed. These, with a new spring in the clutch, represent all repairs and replacements other than the usual maintenance and lubrication operations, he reports. He now is using his third set of tires.

For five years he has been driving Oldsmobiles, having had a 1926, 1927, 1928 and his present 1930 model. He drove his 1928 Oldsmobile more than 85,000 miles before turning it in for his 1930 car.

Winners in Goodyear Sales Contest Guests Of Company in Akron

Tomorrow and Tuesday will be big days in Akron, O., when winners in the July-August sales contest for Goodyear tire dealers will be guests of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co.

The program tomorrow, said A. W. Ellis, Goodyear branch manager in St. Louis, will include an arrival parade, rides in a fleet of Goodyear nonrigid airships, a barbecue, sports and a dinner and theater party.

Tuesday, there will be a visit to the airship dock of the Goodyear Zeppelin Corporation, largest in the world, where the navy's giant dirigible, the Akron, is being completed and prepared for tests.

Dodge Brothers Add 226 to Dealer List

Dodge Brothers added 226 new dealers to their distributing organization throughout the country in July and August, according to A. Van der Zee, general sales manager.

The Dodge franchise includes the Plymouth, the Dodge six and eight, standard and heavy duty trucks and built-for-the-purpose school busses and taxicabs.

Buicks Lead All Makes Registered in City of Shanghai

Capt. James E. Snow of the Marine Corps, who has just returned to duty at the Marine Corps rifle range near La Jolla, Cal., has discovered the most cosmopolitan automobile city in the world. It is Shanghai, China, where for three years Capt. Snow was Provost Marshal of the foreign settlement.

Capt. Snow made a study of the number of makes of cars as well as the number of cars registered. The result probably could not be duplicated anywhere else in the world. In 5606 automobiles registered, Capt. Snow found 164 different makes.

"Buick led the registrations," said Capt. Snow, "with 646 cars, or 11½ per cent of the total. The 10 leading makes represented 59 per cent of all cars registered, and out of the 10 Buick totaled 20 per cent. Of these 10 leaders two are of foreign make and the remaining 154 makes each has registered 1 to 100.

"Every nationality under the sun is represented in the ownership of Buicks. One may see a native Chinese being driven on the narrow streets of Shanghai as well as an Afghan potentate in the latest Buick limousine. Buicks of undetermined vintage, but still going strong, wind their way on the crooked thoroughfares of the native section.

Tread of Tire on Light Car Wears Little in 1000 Miles

The tread of a tire on a car such as a Chevrolet or Ford wears less than one-fiftieth of an inch in 1000 miles of driving, according to J. Harry Evans, president of Royal Tire Service, 3229 Washington, United States tire dealer.

"The strength of rubber as it is produced today is such that a pound of rubber will absorb as much energy as a 50-pound steel spring," says Evans. "On account of this unusual vibration-dampening quality, it is used widely in the manufacture of automobiles."

A stride was made by solving the problem of shipping liquid latox, the natural juice of the rubber tree, direct from the plantations to the United States in tanks. Ordinarily, latex coagulates when exposed to the air. Scientific research directed by Ernest Hopkinson, vice president of the United States Rubber Co., made it possible to ship this latex without coagulation.

As a result, latex is used in its original form in the factories of the U. S. Rubber Co. In the manufacture of web cord, as developed by the U. S. Rubber Co., the cords are drawn through the latex, which deposits a layer of rubber on the cords which holds them together.

Washington Reporter To Broadcast Talks For German Listeners

Semi-monthly talks to the German radio audience on "What They Are Talking About in America" are to be broadcast by short waves from Washington this fall and winter by Kurt Soll, the Washington correspondent of the official German Wolff Telegraph Agency. Speaking at WRC, Washington, Soll's words will be carried to Schenectady by land lines and thence by short waves from WGY to a pickup station in Germany, which will relay them over the German network.

Soll's talks, the first regular west-to-east trans-oceanic broadcasts, will be delivered at 2:15 p. m., St. Louis time, but will be heard in Germany at 9:15 p. m.

Goodyear Still Making Tires for Buggies and Carriages

After 33 years making tires, pioneering tire development for trucks, busses, passenger cars and even aircraft, the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. is still making one of its original products—carriage tires, a solid rubber tire for the wheels of buggies and carriages.

Horse-drawn buggies are still much used in the mountainous sections of some states where paved roads have not yet penetrated.

In Michigan there is a good market, because no automobiles are allowed on the highways of historic Mackinac Island, where on the inside and outside drives, horse-drawn vehicles still carry the sightseer.

Solid rubber tires are exported by Goodyear to India and China where the victoria is a smart equipage. There are even some jinrikishas, man-propelled, which are equipped with these solid tires. Of course, Goodyear makes pneumatic 'rikisha tires as well.

De Soto Adds 35 Field Representatives

Thirty-five field representatives have been added to the district sales staff of the De Soto Motor Corporation, according to L. G. Peed, general sales manager. They are receiving a thorough training at the factory before taking up their duties in their territories.

"We found it necessary," said Peed, "to divide our districts into smaller territories, giving each field man a smaller block to work in. This has been due to the advent of the new Plymouth and to the recent announcements of refinements and improvements in the models made by De Soto as a result of which a large number of new dealers are being added to our organization weekly.

"Since June 1 we have contracted with 317 new dealers. In one week ending Aug. 22 we added 52."

"Holiday" deals with the emptiness of the lives of the rich who amass fortunes but make no attempt to enjoy them until it is too late. Johnny Case, the young hero, suspects that this method is all wrong and so he proposes to retire at the age of 30 and have a good time. But his fiancee, the daughter of a millionaire, has different ideas. She doesn't want to marry an idler. She doesn't understand the plans being made by her young man and he, rather than go back to work, flees to Europe, pursued by his fiancee's sister who knows just how Johnny feels about things.

The play depends, for its effect, upon the dialog and Philip Barry, the author, has provided a lot of brilliant talk for his zestful comedy. The New York reviews of the piece stressed the fact that the dialog was particularly swift and witty and many of them called "Holiday" one of the most entertaining comedies of the year.

There will be matinees today, Thursday and Saturday. A cooling system has been installed in the theater.

THE Coburns played in "The Plutocrat" when it ran in New York last year and were so successful that Miss Hart was determined to get them for her St. Louis opening of the comedy. After much negotiating she came to an agreement with the couple. The Coburns formerly maintained their own company and have made several tours of the country.

"The Plutocrat" was written by Arthur Goodrich, author of the roaring success, "So This Is London." Film rights to the piece have been purchased by the Fox company and Will Rogers will make a talkie of it.

Miss Hart has been busy for several weeks assembling the company which will form the background for the various guest stars who will appear in her attractions. Several of the performers who were successful here last season will return, notable among them being Pierre Watkin, the character leading man, and Dorothea Chard, the young leading lady. As a character woman Miss Hart will present Clara Palmer, who has had much experience in varied roles. She was the original mother in the musical production, "Sally, Irene and Mary" and also played in "Buddies." She was last seen in St. Louis with Bert Lytell in "Brothers."

Juvenile leads will be in the hands of Donald Miles, and Freddy Larimer will play the juvenile parts. Larimer was formerly with Fritz Lieber and also appeared with Mary Eaton in "Lucky." Yvonne Stebbins, who was with Miss Hart last season for the run of "Apron Strings," will return to play here for the entire season. Edward Butler, who comes here with an excellent reputation, will be the comedian.

'Holiday' at the Empress

Philip Barry's Comedy Begins Its Run Today With Two New Players in Woodward Cast—Mary Hart Announces That Her First Play Will Be "The Plutocrat," With Mr. and Mrs. Charles Coburn as Stars.

FOR the second week of the current season the Woodward Players at the Midtown-Empress Theater will offer "Holiday" beginning with a matinee this afternoon. The new piece, which succeeds "Tonight or Never" will bring two new performers to the Woodward cast in Miss Duane Thompson and Garth Rogers. Both are well known on the legitimate stage. "Holiday" just recently completed a long and successful run on Broadway and the presentation here will mark its first appearance outside of New York, where the leading feminine role was played by Hope Williams.

In the meantime Mary Hart is making plans for the opening of the Orpheum next Saturday night with "The Plutocrat" featuring Mr. and Mrs. Charles Coburn in the leading roles.

"Holiday" deals with the emptiness of the lives of the rich who amass fortunes but make no attempt to enjoy them until it is too late. Johnny Case, the young hero, suspects that this method is all wrong and so he proposes to retire at the age of 30 and have a good time. THE Coburns played in "The Plutocrat" when it ran in New York last year and were so successful that Miss Hart was determined to get them for her St. Louis opening of the comedy. After much negotiating she came to an agreement with the couple. The Coburns formerly maintained their own company and have made several tours of the country.

Edward Butler, who comes here with an excellent reputation, will be the comedian.

Harry MacFayden, formerly with Belasco and later with the motion pictures, comes to the Hart organization as director, and the stage management will again be in the hands of Kenneth Burton. Miss Hart will pursue the same policy that marked last year's efforts, that is, each attraction will run for two weeks.

THE Shubert-Rialto Theater will open its season next Sunday with "Three Little Girls," the operetta which was played during the summer at the Municipal Opera. Some of the opera company favorites, including Greta Alpeter, Evangeline Raleigh, Stephen Mills, Harry Puck and Clifford Newdahl, will be in the cast. Since the piece is done in 17 scenes, a revolving stage such as was used in Forest Park is a necessary and a portable affair has been constructed for the use of the road company.

Other attractions scheduled for the Shubert are "High Hat" and Ethel Barrymore in "A School for Scandal."

To Write on Hollywood.

Hollywood and motion pictures will serve as the background for the next novel by Vicki Baum, author of "Grand Hotel," the European writer said. She will write the novel in Berlin under the title, "Falling Star."

Brought to the United States to write for Paramount for a period of 24 weeks, Miss Baum spent the first half of her agreement at the company's New York studios and since has been in Hollywood. Miss Baum leaves Hollywood Sept. 28.

St. Louis Symphony Orchestra Season To Open on Oct. 23

THE St. Louis Symphony Orchestra will open its season of 1931-32 a week earlier than usual when, in gala concerts at the Odeon on Friday, Oct. 23, and Saturday evening, Oct. 24, it will present to St. Louis its new permanent conductor, Vladimir Golschmann, its new concertmaster, Scipione Guidi, and an orchestra in the course of the building up of which a dozen changes have been made this year.

Golschmann comes to make St. Louis his home, arriving Saturday, Oct. 10, from Paris, where he has been engaged this summer in preparing his St. Louis programs what time he has not been visiting as a guest conductor the continental music centers. Only tentative outlines of his programs have thus far reached St. Louis. They indicate a reliance upon the standard and classic repertory rather than upon sensation and novelty. A framework of German classics is rounded out with representative works of recognized composers from every nationality, including the American. The "first time" works are not in undue proportion and, according to Golschmann's correspondence with Arthur J. Gaines, the orchestra's new manager, have been selected for musical content rather than for sensation or novelty.

The arrival of Golschmann will usher in two weeks of intensive preseasonal rehearsal by the orchestra, which now, after four years of guest-conducting, returns to the policy of a permanent conductor. Golschmann, who has been artistic director of the concerts sponsored by the French Government at the Sorbonne, University of Paris, was chosen to that post after four concert pairs he conducted in St. Louis last spring.

The opening concerts will introduce to St. Louis the orchestra's new concert master and assistant conductor, Scipione Guidi, for the past 10 years concert master of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra and himself an international figure in music. In the orchestra several new faces will appear, replacements for the season having been made by the St. Louis Symphony Society with a view to building up the permanent ensemble.

The symphony season of 1931-32 will offer St. Louis the most brilliant and interesting group of soloists with the orchestra which has been presented in years. This includes four outstanding singers, Jeanette Vreeland, young American soprano whose successes have been outstanding; Paul Althouse, the distinguished American tenor; John Charles Thomas, who is not only a splendid artist, but the most popular baritone St. Louis audiences know, and Friedrich Schorr, foremost of all German baritones. Five pianists to be presented are Vladimir Horowitz, whose successes here have been sensational; Ossip Gabrilowitsch, conductor of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, and now, as for years, one of the world's greatest masters of that instrument; Myra Hess, the brilliant English pianist who is a great favorite here, and Edgar Shelton, a young St. Louisan who has won high position among pianists by recent sensational successes in New York and Berlin. Albert Spalding, foremost of American violinists; Samuel Duchkin, a young American who has had remarkable success in Paris; Adolph Busch, who stands at the forefront of the young German masters, and Scipione Guidi who has won international recognition as a virtuoso are the four violinists to be presented. Guidi and Philip Neeter also will appear as soloists of one concert, playing the Mozart concerto for violin and viola, and Max Steindel, the orchestra's solo 'cellist also will be one of the season's soloists.

The Week's New Films

—By—
DON H. THOMPSON

DESPITE a somewhat hackneyed plot, John Gilbert and a fine supporting cast contrive to make "The Phantom of Paris" at Loew's better than the ordinary run of screen entertainment. In less capable hands this film from a thriller by Gaston Leroux would have been a dull affair, but as played by Gilbert, Lewis Stone, Jean Hersholt, C. Aubrey Smith, Leila Hyams and Ian Keith, it has an element of suspense that carries it through.

The story, of ancient vintage, tells of a poor magician who is wrongly accused of murder and sentenced to death. He escapes from his dungeon, unravels the mystery with a series of surprising coups, unmasks the killer and, of course, wins the girl. Gilbert has successfully shed the elocution school mannerisms so noticeable in his early talkies and gives a smooth and engaging performance. There is nothing wrong with his voice. It registers perfectly.

Those Salesmen.

"TRAVELING HUSBANDS" at the St. Louis is, in the main, a lame and tiresome exposition of the didoes that are supposed to engage the attentions of salesmen while they are away from their happy homes. It seems that the first thing the boys do is to call up seven blondes and throw a party. At least, that's what they did in "Traveling Husbands," and a fellow was shot and a millionaire's daughter got mixed up with a drummer who had a wife (he should take the Roth Memory Course), and a thick-necked detective suspected Evelyn Brent and . . . Well, that will give you a rough idea. In the end everything comes out even and they take Evelyn away to the hoosegow while the heiress makes goo-goo eyes at the Nice Young Man. It's not as bad as it sounds for the whole drab business is relieved from time to time by good comedy.

Bill Robinson, greatest of all tap dancers, is the vaudeville attraction. When he turns on that contagious smile and unloosens those happy feet you'll forget all about "Traveling Husbands"—which is about the most extravagant praise we can think of for Bill Robinson.

A Changed Man.

"THE SQUAW MAN," one of the most sustained pieces of hokum ever written for the legitimate theater, has been done over once more for the movies and is at the Fox this week, with Warner Baxter in the role made famous on the stage by William Faversham. Belonging as it does to the unhand-that-woman era of the drama, "The Squaw Man" came in for considerable tinkering at the hands of the Hollywood surgeons, but the patient survived, looks much younger and expects to make a lot of money in the next few weeks. There can be no question but that the doctors did him a lot of good. They removed large patches of hooey from his first act, reduced his blood pressure and took him off the diet of ponderous platitudes upon which he had been existing since 1907.

Supporting Baxter are Lupe Velez as the Indian wife; Eleanor Boardman as the beautiful lady who did not understand; Charles Bickford as the base villain who is removed from the picture by an early death, and Dickie Moore, who is just about the most personable youngster this reviewer has seen upon any screen. They manage to make "The Squaw Man" fair-to-middling entertainment for a 1931 audience.

The Circus.

WINNIE LIGHTNER, able clown, tries her hand at a few assorted dramatics in "Side Show" at the Ambassador and the result is several scenes of pale emoting that slow the pace of an otherwise diverting comedy on circus life. Truth is that Winnie has neither the talent nor the architecture for touching scenes in which her best boy friend has just gone south with her dear little sister. She is much more at home chasing a roughneck through a train with a pillow or dashing out to prevent the bearded lady from whittling off her whiskers.

Charles Butterworth is the leading male attraction in "Side Show." A droll fellow he is and an excellent foil for Miss Lightner's wisecracks.

Aileen Stanley and Jack Osterman are the chief tid-bits of a humorous and tuneful vaudeville bill.

ALTHOUGH it doesn't make much sense, "The Last Flight" at the Missouri is a gay, witty and sometimes exciting picture. It's all about four war aviators—Richard Barthelmess, David Manners, John Mack Brown and Elliott Nugent—who are making the rounds of the Paris gin mills to forget the horrors of the great conflict. They meet up with a lady of obscure reputation and uncertain intentions, played by Helen Chandler, and all pack off to Portugal, just to see what might be going on there. They find that plenty of things are going on and, after a number of strange and violent adventures, just Barthelmess and Helen are left. They return to Paris together. The lines are clever, humorous and well turned and Brown does a great job as the exuberant youth whose claim to fame is that he once tackled a horse, football style. He ends his career by leaping into a bull ring and is gored by the enraged animal in a thrilling and realistic scene. All of these things make "The Last Flight" a distinctly different picture.

The second picture on the Missouri's program is "Tabu," a marvelous excursion into the South Sea Islands with F. W. Murnau, who used native actors for his entire production. It, too, is refreshingly different.

Kreisler Here on Oct. 30.

One of the first recitals of the season in St. Louis will be that of Fritz Kreisler, who will play at the Odeon the evening of Oct. 30. His accompanist will be Carl Lamson, and his appearance here will be under the management of Miss Alma Cueny.

As in the past, several numbers of the program will be the violinist's own arrangement of classical works.

When Sylvia Came Back

Little Miss Sidney, She of the Green Eyes, Once Found Hollywood a Flop, but Right Now She Is Riding on the Crest of the Cinema Wave With Two Big Picture Hits to Her Credit.

By NIE

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 19.

THINGS move fast out here in Hollywood even if directors seem to take days photographing a scene which will run, perhaps, four minutes when it finally reaches the cinema screens. Reputations are made and unmade in a moment—reputations as to acting ability, we mean. The other sort, good or bad, are more or less taken for granted. Right now a New York girl of Russian parentage, a little girl with green eyes and black hair is the subject of considerable conversation around the film studios.

Sylvia Sidney—St. Louis saw her a week or so ago in "Street Scene" and "An American Tragedy"—pleasingly round, tiny and impertinent, has shot Hollywood's Magna Charta of beauty full of holes. Being rounder of form, shorter of nose, fuller of mouth and wider of eye than the standard pulchritude requirements of the film colony Sylvia has succeeded in turning the roving eyes of Flickerville in her direction.

And when one accomplishes a corner on the roving eyes of Hollywood, one gets such parts as Roberta in "An American Tragedy" and Rose in "Street Scene."

Sylvia's small Oriental face flashed into its first closeup almost nine months ago when she replaced Clara Bow in "City Streets." New York knew her well. She had been a mild sensation on the stage in "Bad Girl." She was a protege of the Theater Guild School, and her legitimate career checkered with such titles as "Crime," "Crossroads," "Nice Women," "The Challenge of Youth," and "Mirrors."

SEVERAL years ago, Sylvia took a flyer in her first picture "Thru Different Eyes," for Fox, but she disliked her role and the notices that followed were not satisfactory. She packed up posthaste and was back on Broadway ready to make up for her disappointment with the smashing success of "Bad Girl."

Sylvia said then that she was through with Hollywood, that she would never return.

But she did. In less than two years she was donning special camera makeup in Paramount's Hollywood studios for "City Streets."

Success hailed her second leap into pictures. She was and still is a director's pet, which means that almost every megaphonist with a dramatic manuscript on his hands sighs for Sylvia Sidney in the leading feminine role.

Now in her twentieth year, with five years of stage experience behind her, Sylvia promises to become one of the most important figures in cinematic circles.

She was a scant dozen years old when she determined to become an actress. She announced her intentions to her mother and father, who had spent their youth in Russia where progeny respected the decisions of parents. Sylvia argued with her father and mother for three years, until they relented and permitted her to enter the Theater Guild School.

Upon graduation she played the lead in "Prunella," and diploma in hand searched up and down Broadway and Forty-second street for work.

Bit by bit she worked away at this part and that, and then Hollywood saw her again just last January when she arrived with her mother and five huge boxes of books. She found a home high up in the hills that had plenty of book-shelves adhering to the walls, and dug in for a busy winter.

SYLVIA tells me that, so far, Hollywood's social life is an unexplored land to her. She is reticent to admit that she likes evenings filled with reading, music and a few conversationally inclined friends.

She believes in marriage, children and lots of hard work. She is tremendously interested in all medical subjects and her library is filled with ponderous volumes on history and research work in medicine. Her father, by the way, Dr. Sigmund Sidney, is a dental surgeon.

When she works she is home to no one but her family and goes to bed at 8 o'clock. When she is not working she often forgets to go to bed at all.

Her black hair is long, and she tosses it up in the most careless of knots and succeeds in looking perfectly fascinating. One green eye has a large brown spot in the iris, a slipup of nature of which she is inordinately proud.

She loves furs and perfumes, but has little interest in jewelry unless it is an antique. She usually becomes attached to one hat and frock in her wardrobe and wears them constantly until they are threadbare.

Whenever she has a week to spare she takes a fast train to Minneapolis, where an old school chum lives, a friend with whom she can talk through several nights and days without feeling the need of rest and change.

When she gets three weeks between pictures, she dashes off to New York on several hours' notice, sees the new shows, looks up her stage pals of yore and spends hours in a tea shop that is the rendezvous of the youngsters of the legitimate stage.

Hollywood's young intelligentsia has stormed her doors and gathered her into their fold. Within several short weeks after her arrival, Sylvia was the center and mainstay of this group of youthful intellectuals.

Recently Sylvia explained her technique of acting.

"I don't act if I can help it," she replied. "No actor does, if he knows his business. If you do, you're sunk. Of course, there are tricks. Any one can learn them. The secret is to keep them from looking like tricks."

At this writing, Sylvia is memorizing lines for "Ladies of the Big House," a play heaped with drama dealing with women serving time in a penitentiary.

Comedy Is the First Theater Guild Show

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.

THE Theater Guild begins its season Monday with Chester Erskin's production of "He." This Alfred Savoir comedy was played on the road for several weeks last spring. Tom Powers, Violet Kemble Cooper and Claude Rains have the leading roles.

The Guild also is sponsoring the presentation of Paul Green's new play, "The House of Connelly," on Sept. 28. The production has been done by a group of young actors and directors headed by Cheryl Crawford, a Smith College girl.

NOSE-DIVING MOVIE CONCERN TRIED AIR RACE TO GET CASH

Dale Jackson Finished Third Instead of First at Cleveland and Promoter Is Held for Fraud.

A forced landing in a field of financial stumps brought Kismet Sound Films, Inc., to a sudden end, before the ink was dry on the preliminary incorporation papers. Backers of the venture, three Lambert-St. Louis Field airmen, had hoped through the company to build up a lucrative industrial advertising business.

Two circumstances made a short trip at low altitue out of the flight of Kismet Sound Films, Inc. First of all, its prospective secretary-treasurer, Dale Jackson of world record endurance flight fame, and its equally prospective vice president, Phil Jay Silverson, aerial photographer, thought their third associate, Anthony Kramer, former flying student, had plenty of money and was shortly to inherit $150,000.

Secondly, Jackson, flying a speed plane purchased by the three, failed to win the Thompson Trophy race at Cleveland on Labor day and the $7500 prize that went with it. He came in third, instead, for a prize of $2500—not nearly enough to help the venture out of its difficulties.

Promoter Held for Fraud.

So it is that Kramer, who lives at 2117 Utah street, is under bond on a warrant issued at Clayton charging he obtained property by false pretenses. A check for $1500 given him by to Von Hoffman Air College for repairing Jackson's plane in preparation for the air race, proved to represent more rubber than cash. It bounced back, marked "not sufficient funds," and the air college made the complaint on which the warrant was issued.

Meanwhile, the office and display rooms of the company at 3139 Olive street stand idle. The door is locked and there is a white window sign which reads "Kismet Sound Films, Inc., Offices and Studio."

The contractors who fitted out the place, the company which installed the electric sign at a cost of $2000, another company that installed $290 worth of floodlights on the stage within, these and others who did services for the new company, have sent in their bills, estimated by Silverson to total $10,000, but there is no money to meet them.

Silverson said he met Kramer three years ago at Lambert Field. "It was Kramer's own idea," said Silverson. "He came to me and said he would be the financial backer but wanted a manager with experience. Ever since I knew him he always seemed to have plenty of money. He showed me copies of telegrams about the estate he was to inherit.

"Each corporation officer was to have his own car. We were going in big — camera men, airplanes, sound machines, private bath in the office, everything.

"Then the checks began to bounce back. 'I'll have the money in a few days, sure. Stall 'em,' he said. That was the first part of this month, about the time the Air Derby to Cleveland was on."

At that time Lee Shoenhair, Detroit flyer, cracked up his speedy Laird biplane when taking off from Lambert Field. The ship was the winner of the Thompson race last year and was identical with the plane used by Maj. "Jimmie" Doolittle in setting the recent transcontinental record of 11 hours and 15 minutes.

It looked like a "natural" for the 1931 Thompson race and its fat first prize. Fate seemed to play in the hands of the Kismet backers when it developed they could get the plane by paying the $1500 bill owed the Von Hoffmann company for reconditioning the ship, and signing a contract to pay the rest later. The purchase price was said to have been $15,000.

Jackson's Nervy Race.

Jackson, a crack pilot, flew the plane to Cleveland and entered the race. The plane was fast but there were faster ones in the same race. Lowell Bayles in his Gee-Bee monoplane captured first money. Jackson, flying a nervy race in which he tipped a water tower and snagged a piece of fabric from a lower wing at 230 miles an hour, came in third with a streamer of wing fabric trailing behind him.

"When we got to Cleveland before the race," Silverson continued, "we got a wire from Kramer saying his check was no good and he was afraid he was going to be arrested. We left the ship in Cleveland and 'Red' and I came back. Since then I've been taking it on the chin from all our creditors."

Incorporation papers had already been drawn, with "$120,000 capital stock, $60,000 paid up." Kramer was to pay in $50,000 cash, taking stock in return, Silverson was to get $5000 in stock for his photographic equipment, and Jackson was to put in his endurance plane, "The Greater St. Louis," in return for $5000 in stock.

"I guess it was just a wild dream," Kramer said. "It's a good advertising idea, but there won't be any advertising company now. Silverson worried me for a couple of months to invest in a promotion with him. I finally told him I was going to inherit some money and I really thought I could raise enough from relatives and friends to get started. It looks as if I was

SHIPPERS' STAND CITED IN FIGHT ON HAULING MONOPLY

Chamber of Commerce Plea for Reconsideration of I. C. C. Action Says They Oppose It Unanimously.

The Chamber of Commerce, in a petition asking the Interstate Commerce Commission to reconsider its approval of the monopoly freight hauling contract between Columbia Terminals Co. and the Terminal Railroad Association, relates that "St. Louis shippers are unanimous and vigorous in opposition to the monopoly."

"The objection of shippers," the petition states, "is based upon the sole ground that off-track service, highly unsatisfactory as it is, would become more so in the hands of a monopoly."

Contention of Monopoly's Opponents.

Freight is transferred to St. Louis from the terminals of railroads in East St. Louis by truck, either to designated "off-track" stations, or direct to those to whom it is consigned. The Commission, in approving the contract which gives the Columbia company a monopoly on "off-track" business, refused increased allowances for direct delivery sought by railroads not a party to the monopoly contract. The low rates for direct delivery fixed by the Commission, opponents of the monopoly argue, will "stifle" the service by making it unprofitable for draymen.

The monopoly contract has been suspended through an injunction suit brought by Central Transfer Co., set for hearing in Federal Court tomorrow. The St. Louis Shippers' Conference Association and the Association of Team and Truck Owners have joined with the Chamber of Commerce in asking the Commission to reconsider.

First Report Forgotten.

The Chamber of Commerce petition, prepared by its general counsel, former lJudge Glendy B. Arnold, recalls that the commission in an earlier report, looked with favor on the direct delivery service, and adds: "The first report seems to have been forgotten when the second was being written. It is hardly possible that a greater disregard for previous utterances can be found outside of this second report."

In its earlier report, the commission had said: "There is no question but that the service (direct delivery) is beneficial and desirable. It benefits the shippers and receivers of freight because it saves at St. Louis, an additional station handling and thus expedites movement. It benefits the carriers at St. Louis because it relieves them of payment for the additional station handling."

The commission, at the time of its earlier report, ordered a cost study made for the determination of rates, and in its report said: "It is patent that the service will not be used to any appreciable extent unless it is attractive to shippers and draymen, especially the latter," and pointed out that draymen would not accept the business if it were not profitable.

Reference to Cost Study.

Referring to the cost study in its second report, the commission said: "The cost study before us does not purport to show the cost of that part of the direct delivery service theoretically covered by the allowances." The commission continued, however, to say: "It indicates that the smaller proposed allowances would not be greater than are reasonable for the services performed," and that the increases sought "are greater than would appear to be warranted."

The allowances approved were one cent per 100 pounds for carload freight an dtwo cents per 100 for less than carload. Opponents of the monopoly sought to have these charges fixed at three cents and five cents. These charges are for delivery from the East Side to Third street and Washington avenue, regarded as the point of "constructive delivery." Charges to that point are paid by the railroads, beyond it by the shippers.

"If the cost study does not show the cost of direct delivery service," the Chamber of Commerce petition asks "how can it indicate anything about it except that it does not show it?"

"Splendid Service Destroyed."

The Chamber's petition relates that, although the commission has found that direct delivery is a splendid service to both shippers and railroads, "the carriers, with the sanction of the commission, have destroyed it, and are now about to embalm its body, and that also with the aid of the commission."

In support of this assertion the petition quotes from the commission's original report, that 50 per cent of inbound less-than-carload freight consigned to St. Louis was handled by direct delivery in 1915, but only 3 per cent in 1926. The decrease, it holds, is due to inadequate allowances.

The cost study, the Chamber's petition declares, indicated that handling of carload freight by direct delivery costs ..0161 cents per 100 pounds, and less than carload freight, .0279 cents. "Of course, this means," it continues, "that a transfer company not only would make no profit, but would actually lose 12.2 cents per ton on carload and 15.8 cents per ton on less than carload movements."

ILLINOIS UNION ELECTRIC ENDS TAX DISPUTE; PAYS $201,931

Accepts Increase of $2,000,000 Is Assessed Valuation of Cahokia Plant.

The Union Electric Light and Power Co. of Illinois reached an agreement yesterday with the St. Clair County Board of Supervisors to settle its tax controversy, accepted an increase of $2,000,000 in the assessed valuation of the Cahokia plant, and paid the county treasurer $201,931 in taxes, including court costs, on disputed assessments of the last two years.

The new assessed valuation on the equipment and plant, under the agreement is $7,500,000 and is accepted for 1929, 1930 and 1931. On the 1931 valuation the taxes are payable in 1932. In 1929, the Board of Review increased the assessed valuation from $3,750,000 to $8,750,000, increasing it again in 1930 to $10,450,000, but reducing it to $5,500,000 for 1931, after court action became necessary to collect the increase.

UNION ELECTRIC BRANCH ROBBED OF $256 IN HOLDUP

Intruder Drives Employe Into Washroom but Loses His Hat in Running to Auto.

The Union Electric Co. branch at 249 Lemay Ferry road, St. Louis County, was robbed of $256 by an armed man yesterday afternoon.

After taking the money from the cash drawer, the robber forced an employe into a washroom and ran out to an automobile. In running to the door, he lost the gray felt hat he was wearing.

MACDONALD MEETS BANKERS

Prime Minister Makes Unexpected Visit in London.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—Prime Minister MacDonald paid a hurried and unexpected visit to London today, coming from his country place at Chequers, and conferred with authorities closely connected with the Bank of England. It was understood, however, that after a full discussion of the situation, lasting two hours, the Prime Minister was reassured and had no hesitation in returning to Chequers.

The stock exchange committee recently decided to open the stock exchange on Saturdays, beginning today, "in view of the situation in the country and the desirability of affording facilities for dealing."

Warning Against Soliciting Claims.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 19.—Deputy State Insurance Superintendent Joseph F. Holland today issued a warning order against the practice of some lawyers and insurance adjusters in St. Louis of soliciting life insurance claims from relatives of persons whose names appear in death notices in the newspapers. He said that with the exception of cases where there was a contest of legal liability by the insurance company, there was no necessity for payment of any fees to collect the proceeds of life insurance.

'MA' KENNEDY RE-WED; DYNAMITE SALVO FIRED

Marriage Ceremony Performed on Platform at Boulder Dam Works.

By the Associated Press.

BOULDER CITY, Nev., Sept. 19.—As a dynamite blast boomed out a salute, Mrs. Minnie "Ma" Kennedy and Guy Edward Hudson were married for the second time within three months today on Observation Point, nearly 1000 feet above the Colorado River and the Hoover Dam site.

The ceremony was performed by Justice of the Peace Frank M. Ryan, on a wooden platform extending out over the river far below. As Ryan pronounced them married mighty cheers went up from 600 workmen along the river and the dynamite salute was fired.

"He's mine again," cried the new Mrs. Hudson.

Many Las Vegas citizens, headed by Mayor E. W. Cragin, and District Attorney Harley A. Harmon, had journeyed to the river for the ceremony. Hudson registered in the Hoover Dam visitors' book as "Pa Hudson." They said they would make their home in Las Vegas, where the former Mrs. Kennedy plans to hold revival services.

They plan no second honeymoon trip. Their first, which followed their marriage on a moonlit lake at Longview, Wash., was interrupted by Mrs. Kennedy's discovery Hudson had negelected to divorce a former wife, Mrs. L. Margaret Newton-Hudson, whom he had married in Las Vegas two years before, but Mrs. Kennedy obtained an annulment and yesterday Hudson got his belated divorce.

All that remained today was a breach of promise suit against the bridgegrom in Los Angeles, brought by Mrs. Ethel Lee Parker Harbert, and Hudson said: "I feel certain Mrs. Harbert can't collect a thing."

Mrs. Kennedy's daughter, Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson, Los Angeles evangelist, was married a few days ago to David L. Hutton, a musician, who also has been sued for breach of promise.

Mexican Catholic's Home Bombed.

Watchman Shoots Self, Dies.

John Hambleton, 65 years old, a night watchman, of 115 South Twenty-seventh street, Belleville, died at St. Elizabeth's Hospital early yesterday of a self-inflicted wound in the abdomen. Hambleton was found in the bathroom at his home with a shotgun beside him. His family said he had been despondent over being out of work.

Roxy Going Abroad To Gather Ideas for New York's Radio City

Going abroad soon in the interests of New York's Radio City project, S. L. (Roxy) Rothafel and party will confer with artists and study the new broadcasting home recently completed in Berlin by the German Broadcasting Corporation and the one about to be occupied in London by the British Broadcasting Corporation.

Roxy will sail Sept. 23, accompanied by O. B. Hanson, engineering manager of the National Broadcasting Co., and a group of engineers, architects and technical experts.

Going directly to Berlin, Roxy will confer with Max Reinhardt, producer, and Mary Wigman, ballet director. He will seek to induce Miss Wigman to come to this country to stage dance programs. The architects will study building construction in Central Europe. Then they will go to Russia to study opera and ballet.

'The Shadow' Coming to Radio Show

Mary McCoy, of the N. B. C., Also Billed—All the Better Known Local Artists and Entertainers to Appear at Exposition.

Radio artists, including Mary McCoy, well-known soprano of the National Broadcasting System, and "The Shadow," one of the detective story characters in broadcasts over the Columbia network, will be heard daily at the Seventh Annual Southwest National Radio and Allied Products Exposition which will open tomorrow in the Coliseum.

Local radio stations are assisting in arranging the entertainment for the six days of the show. KSD, KMOX and KWK will broadcast daily from the Crystal Studio in the Coliseum.

KSD will take charge of the broadcasting for a half-hour period each day, from 4:45 to 5:15 p. m. KMOX and KWK will be on the air from the Crystal Studio each evening.

KMOX and KWK will operate on an alternating schedule. KWK will broadcast from the show for an hour on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings at 7:30. KMOX will have charge of the show broadcasting from 8:30 to 9:30 on those nights. On Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday the time will be reversed, with KMOX taking charge of the 7:30-8:30 hour and KWK broadcasting from 8:30 to 9:30.

The Shadow on Program Daily.

Announcers from the local stations will act as masters of ceremonies for the various programs. C. R. Yarger and R. L. Coe will have charge during the KSD broadcasts. Thomas Patrick Convey, Bob Thomas, Del King, John Harrington and William Vincent will be among the KWK announcers at the show. France Laux, Woody Close, Holland Engle, Melvin Maginn, Bob Holt and Bill Jones will do the announcing for the KMOX periods.

Mary McCoy and "The Shadow" will appear on the programs at 5 p. m., 7:30 p. m., 8:30 p. m. and 9:15 p. m. daily. "The Shadow," it is said, may comment on the St. Louis crime situation.

The local radio artists and entertainers will be given a more prominent part on the entertainment program this year than at any previous show.

"We have many popular local stars of unusual talent and I believe the radio public will welcome the opportunity of seeing so many of them assembled together on the same program," Eugene J. Straus, chairman of the Show Committee, said yesterday.

Feature Local Entertainers.

Among those heard regularly over local stations who will be featured on the evening entertainment program at the exposition are the KWK Merrymakers with Herbert Berger and Allister Wylie; the Anybodys, the couple heard so frequently in family chats over KMOX; Mme. Helen Traubel, soprano of the Community Forum Hour; Mrs. Georgia Clifford, conductor of children's stories; Grace McGowan, soprano, and the Phillips Flyers, all of KMOX; and the Musketeers Quartet, Rudy Baie, crooning tenor; Frank and Ernest, comedy and harmony duo; Emma Sampson Becker, mezzo-soprano, and Bingham and Wells, harmony duo, all of KWK.

Others from KMOX scheduled for the show are: Roy Queen, "Lone Cowboy;" Peggy Slieper, blues singer; Mrs. Phil Korndoerfer, contralto; Robert Betts, tenor; Miss Hazel Dopheide, dramatics; Ruth Nelson, organist; Estle Rucker, pianist; Maud Muller, contralto; John Willis, violinist; William Wahlert, basso; Three Blue Notes, girls' trio; Ted Streater, pianist; Fred Wilson's Cowboy Band; Mike and Mary; Rythm Hobos; Joseph Kalafetich; The Four Horsemen; Bob and Lee, harmony team; Dorothy Gibson; Myles Hasgall, tenor; Webster Schmidt; Louise Heimueller; Wayne Fletcher, tenor; Hawaiian Melodists; Pearl Boyer; Frank Spahn, baritone; Holman Sisters; Joe Johnson; Kendall Capps; Evening Choristers; Miko Child; Jan Sullez; Thomas Climie; Johnson and Preiss; The Dana Octet; May White; Helen McFarland and Eddie Johnson.

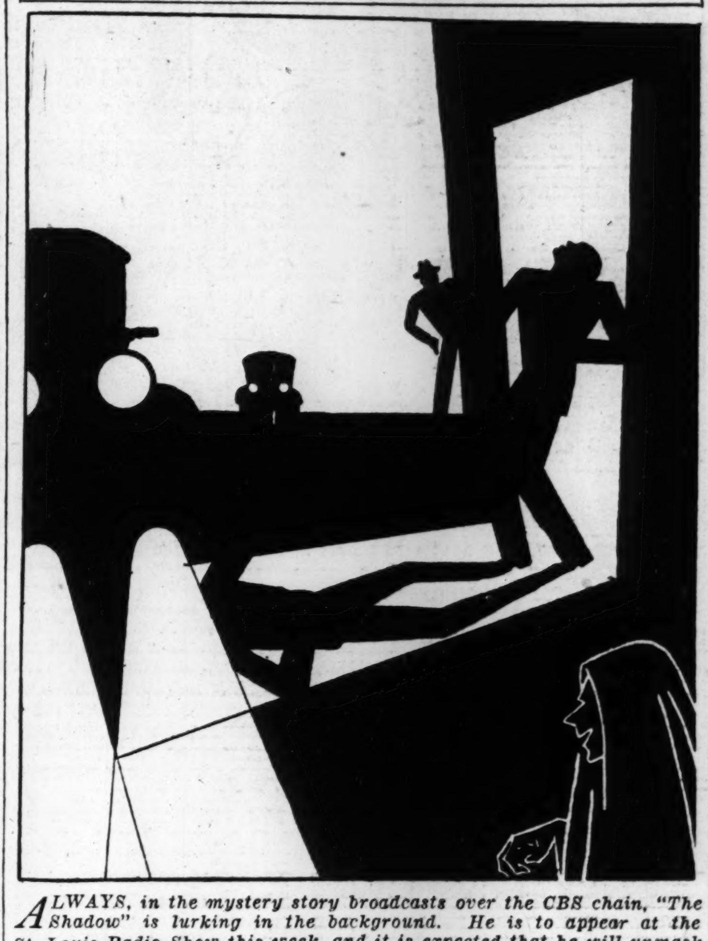
'Shadow' to Reveal Identity



ALWAYS, in the mystery story broadcasts over the CBS chain, "The Shadow" is lurking in the background. He is to appear at the St. Louis Radio Show this week, and it is expected that he will unmask in the Crystal Studio.

Latest in Sets May Be Found at Exposition

Demonstration of Television Progress, Home Talkie Apparatus and Electrical Appliances to Be Featured—Exposition Open From Noon to 11 P. M. Daily All Week.

Exhibits of the latest developments in radio; entertainment by radio artists and entertainers; demonstrations of television, and other features will be combined to make the Seventh Annual Southwest National Radio and Allied Products Exposition, which will open tomorrow in the Coliseum, Jefferson avenue and Washington boulevard, one of the three largest radio expositions to be held this week in connection with the observation of National Radio Week.

The exposition will continue through Saturday. Doors will be open from noon until 11 p. m. daily.

Most of the manufacturers of radio receivers and equipment in the country will exhibit at the show, introducing all the new and interesting receiver improvements. Midget models as well as those of larger and more elaborate cabinet size will be displayed. Another feature will be exhibits of allied products and accessories.

Wide Variety of Exhibits.

Fred A. Wiebe, president of the St. Louis Radio Trades Association, sponsor of the exposition, said yesterday that, in variety of entertainment and diversity of displays the show should surpass any previous radio show held in St. Louis.

"The Coliseum arena has been increased by several thousand square feet to house the displays and give more space for effective demonstration," Wiebe said: "While the new midget receivers perhaps will attract much attention, the exhibits of equipment of

Average Woman Listener Prefers Comedy Programs

Mother and her grown-up daughters are the most ardent radio fans. At least that is what the Minneapolis Council for Adult Education found in a recent survey among adults in 10,000 radio-owning families of that city. Of the questionnaires distributed through children in the public schools, who were asked to have the adults in their families answer them, 4375 replies were received, and some interesting facts adduced.

More than 21 per cent of the listeners included in the study said they listened to their radios more than four hours a day; 16.5 per cent said three to four hours; 17.8 per cent said two to three hours; 19.7 per cent said one to two hours, and 7.5 per cent said less than one hour.

More Than Four Hours Daily.

Mothers and grown-up daughters were preponderant among those who listen more than four hours daily, while fathers and grown-up boys led the group in the one to two hour category. The most popular hours for listening, it was found, are from 6 to 9 p. m., when 65.5 per cent of the persons included in the study said they listen; from 9 to 12 p. m., when 45.3 per cent listen, and from 6 to 9 a. m., when 18.9 per cent listen.

Asked their preferences as to types of programs, mothers gave first place to comic characters like Amos 'n' Andy, and placed financial reviews in last place; fathers and sons alike placed athletic contests first and beauty talks last; grown-up daughters placed dance music first and birthday parties last. The groups as a whole ranked comic characters first and birthday parties last.

Comedy Is Preferred.

The ten most popular programs in order of preference by the groups as a whole were: 1, comic characters; 2, popular music; 3, athletic contests; 4, dance music; 5, classical music; 6, light drama; 7, talks of the Lowell Thomas-Floyd Gibbons type; 8, news flashes; 9, plays, and 10, church services. Ranking from forty-first to fiftieth, or the least popular types of programs, were stock market reports, fashion talks, readings, health exercise, beauty talks, farm and horticultural programs, language lessons, finance reviews, bridge games and birthday parties.

On Chain Program From St. Louis

Faerber is to play a movement from the Mendelssohn Concerto today. He was born and educated in Munich, Germany. He has played as soloist with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, of which he is a member.

Betts, who is a St. Louisan, is a Juillard Foundation Scholarship winner, and has sung from New York over the CBS network, as well as from this city. He returned recently from a season in the East with the Chautauqua and Little Theater opera companies.

Miss McGowan, also a St. Louisan, is the Juliet of KMOX's Romeo and Juliet concert duo, the Romeo being Betts. She has sung over KMOX frequently for several years.

Miss Muller, whose contralto voice is of unusual beauty, lives in Wood River, Ill. She has sung over WGN, Chicago.

Spahn, a baritone who is widely known as a concert and recital singer, has sung from New York over the WEAF chain and from this city over the CBS net.

tainment artists, there will be many other special attractions, including Iceberg John Baker, whose feat is permitting himself to be sealed in a cake of ice for 45 minutes. Baker will be imprisoned in again at 9:30 at night.

Monarova, violinist, will give a special violin recital each day. He comes from Berlin.

The afternoon show programs will feature a children's revue, with a dancing chorus of youngsters and a number of St. Louis' leading juvenile entertainers. These programs will be directed by Johnny Hanley, for several years a member of the production staff of the Municipal Opera, and are scheduled daily from 4:30 to 5 p. m.

Among the children billed are Jackie Rascher, 8-year-old master-of-ceremonies, who has appeared at various St. Louis theaters and at The Arena, and has been heard over the air, and Lucille Matthews, who recently won a local theater personality contest and also a local Helen Kane Boob-a-doop contest, and has been heard frequently over local radio stations.

Tomorrow afternoon Bill Robinson of the RKO circuit will be one of the entertainers. Brooks Johns will appear Friday afternoon. Saturday afternoon Lida Grey Chaplin will be a featured entertainer.

Football Schedule Of NBC Begins With Broadcast Oct. 3

Oct. 10—Notre Dame vs. Northwestern and Princeton vs. Brown.

Annual St. Louis Radio Exposition Opens Tomorrow higher grade should prove even more interesting.

"There has been a decided change in the finer quality radios, particularly as regards to price. Receivers in large cabinet size of the type which formerly sold for $250 to $500 are now generally priced as low as $125, and in some cases even lower.

"The fact that a 10-tube superterodyne, with tone control, automatic volume control and selective tuning can now be purchased at such a low figure is largely due to improved radio engineering. Probably the most noticeable development in all receivers is the compactness and improvement in the design of circuits. No longer are units separated, as is the radio receiver of a few years ago.

Television Demonstration.

"There has been a definite development of the little refinements which are making radio receivers things of joy in the homes. The development of truer tone and finer tuning is particularly noticeable in the midget models and receivers for automobile installation."

A feature of the show which perhaps will prove of unusual interest to the public at large will be the demonstration of television. Demonstrations will be given each afternoon and evening, and it will be the first public demonstration of modern television in St. Louis.

A television transmitter will be in operation, broadcasting pictures and persons, and televisors will be operated throughout the building to receive the television broadcasts. Persons standing before a receiver will be able to hear the voices as well as see the faces of those appearing before the transmitter. Visitors at the show, if they desire, will be given the unusual opportunity and novel experience of having their pictures transmitted.

C. R. Ogle will be in charge of the demonstrations. The equipment will be furnished by the U. A. Sanabria Laboratories of Chicago, a pioneer in the development of television.

Another exhibit, new in the realm of home entertainment, is the home talkie set. This combines a talking moving picture machine, completely equipped with its own projector, screen and sound apparatus, with a 10-tube receiving set with super-heterodyne circuit. It may be used for talking pictures, silent pictures, phonograph music or radio reception. Standard home-size movie films may be reproduced.

Among the special exhibits will be a display by the St. Louis Amateur Radio Club, showing the strides which have been made in communication on short waves with low power. The St. Louis Public Library will display the latest books on radio. There also will be an exhibit by the David Ranken Jr. School of Mechanical Trades.

The entertainment program of the show, which will continue throughout the afternoon and evening daily, will bring several nationally known radio artists as well as most of the artists and entertainers heard regularly over local stations.

The two featured stars will be Mary McCoy, soprano of the National Broadcasting system, and "The Shadow," sinister character in the mystery story programs over the Columbia chain. They will appear in person in afternoon and evening programs.

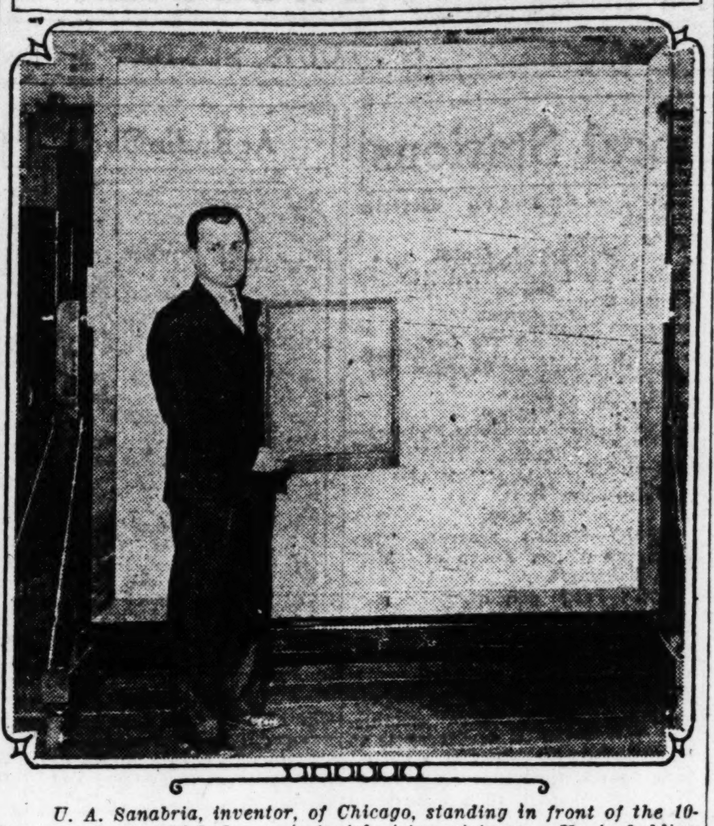
KSD, KMOX and KWK will cooperate and will broadcast from the Crystal Studio at the exposition daily. A number of features also will be presented at the show which can not be broadcast effectively.

The exposition will be officially opened tomorrow by Mayor Victor J. Miller, who has issued a proclamation declaring the entire week "Radio Show Week."

An added feature at the show is the "beautiful and talented" contest for children between the ages of 6 months and 6 years. More than 700 children have been entered in the competition. The judging will start with the opening of the show tomorrow, and prizes in the various classes will be awarded Saturday. Radio auditions are to be arranged for children judged to have sufficient talent.

The show committee of the St. Louis Radio Trades Association in charge of arrangements includes Eugene J. Straus, chairman; Dan Hyland, Ray C. Layer, George H. Niekamp and George Gaertner. William P. Mackle is show director.

Television Screen for Radio Show



U. A. Sanabria, inventor, of Chicago, standing in front of the 10-foot screen on which he projects television pictures. He is holding what was previously the largest television screen. Sanabria's television apparatus is to be used in the daily demonstration at the St. Louis Radio Show this week. It is understood that six-foot pictures will be thrown on the screen. Sanabria's apparatus is being developed primarily for theater use.

Radical New Tube Coming.

A new filamentless radio tube is reported to have been developed by a large independent radio manufacturer. It is said to amplify, rectify and oscillate—in other words, do everything the three-electrode vacuum tube can do. The tube, it is stated, has a high amplification factor, is simple to make and can be produced at a cost of only a few cents. Satisfactory tests are said to have been applied in a three-tube radio set. Having negligible internal capacity, the tube can be worked directly on short waves below one meter.

New General Electric Receivers Shown to Dealers.

A full new line of General Electric radio receivers, as well as electrical appliances, were shown to dealers Friday at a meeting and luncheon at Hotel Chase held by the Westinghouse Electric Supply Corporation.

Receiver chassis use four-tube t. r. f., eight-tube superheterodyne, nine-tube superheterodyne and 10-tube superheterodyne circuits. The four-tube chassis is used in a midget set with pentode audio.

The eight-tube chassis comes in the General Electric Junior model, the Junior model with clock and a Junior console with tone control.

The nine-tube circuit is used with automatic volume control and two pentode tubes in push pull audio comes in a grandfather's clock model and a full console cabinet.

The 10-tube chassis is used in a Longfellow clock model, a de luxe lowboy and a de luxe radio-phonograph combination which has an improved home record-making device, and automatic changer for records, in a Queen Anne cabinet. All the 10-tube sets have tone control, automatic volume control and other improvements.

There is also an end table phonograph which can be used with the audio amplifier and dynamic speaker of a receiver.

New Kolster Sets Are Backed by Big Mackay Concern.

Receivers using seven, eight, nine and 10 tubes in superheterodyne circuits make up the new Kolster line which is being distributed by the F. Tiemann Stove and Hardware Co.

All Kolster sets are completely shielded and have band pass circuits. The larger ones have automatic volume control, dynamic speakers are of large size, designed for tone quality with the new pentode audio tubes.

The mantel type Kolster comes in a cabinet with figured walnut front ornamented with pilasters.

The eight-tube model has a cabinet designed by Jan Streng after the style in vogue in the time of Charles II, with Oriental walnut top rail and butt walnut panel.

Another cabinet by Jan Streng, of Seventeenth Century English design, houses the nine-tube chassis, and has push-pull pentode audio.

The 10-tube Kolster has an interstage double band pass circuit, automatic volume control and special large audio transformers with push-pull pentode tubes.

Variable mu screen grid tubes are used also in all the Kolsters.

Ten New Radiola Models Are Now Available.

Ten models, including new eight, nine and 10 tube superheterodynes, are included in the R. C. A.-Victor Radiola line of receivers distributed by the Aeolian Co. of Missouri. There is even a 13-tube combination with two speakers, remote control, automatic tuning, home record

Radical New Tube Coming.

A new filamentless radio tube is reported to have been developed by a large independent radio manufacturer. It is said to amplify, rectify and oscillate—in other words, do everything the three-electrode vacuum tube can do. The tube, it is stated, has a high amplification factor, is simple to make and can be produced at a cost of only a few cents. Satisfactory tests are said to have been applied in a three-tube radio set. Having negligible internal capacity, the tube can be worked directly on short waves below one meter.

New General Electric Receivers Shown to Dealers.

A full new line of General Electric radio receivers, as well as electrical appliances, were shown to dealers Friday at a meeting and luncheon at Hotel Chase held by the Westinghouse Electric Supply Corporation.

Receiver chassis use four-tube t. r. f., eight-tube superheterodyne, nine-tube superheterodyne and 10-tube superheterodyne circuits. The four-tube chassis is used in a midget set with pentode audio.

The eight-tube chassis comes in the General Electric Junior model, the Junior model with clock and a Junior console with tone control.

The nine-tube circuit is used with automatic volume control and two pentode tubes in push pull audio comes in a grandfather's clock model and a full console cabinet.

The 10-tube chassis is used in a Longfellow clock model, a de luxe lowboy and a de luxe radio-phonograph combination which has an improved home record-making device, and automatic changer for records, in a Queen Anne cabinet. All the 10-tube sets have tone control, automatic volume control and other improvements.

There is also an end table phonograph which can be used with the audio amplifier and dynamic speaker of a receiver.

New Kolster Sets Are Backed by Big Mackay Concern.

Receivers using seven, eight, nine and 10 tubes in superheterodyne circuits make up the new Kolster line which is being distributed by the F. Tiemann Stove and Hardware Co.

All Kolster sets are completely shielded and have band pass circuits. The larger ones have automatic volume control, dynamic speakers are of large size, designed for tone quality with the new pentode audio tubes.

The mantel type Kolster comes in a cabinet with figured walnut front ornamented with pilasters.

The eight-tube model has a cabinet designed by Jan Streng after the style in vogue in the time of Charles II, with Oriental walnut top rail and butt walnut panel.

Another cabinet by Jan Streng, of Seventeenth Century English design, houses the nine-tube chassis, and has push-pull pentode audio.

The 10-tube Kolster has an interstage double band pass circuit, automatic volume control and special large audio transformers with push-pull pentode tubes.

Variable mu screen grid tubes are used also in all the Kolsters.

Ten New Radiola Models Are Now Available.

Ten models, including new eight, nine and 10 tube superheterodynes, are included in the R. C. A.-Victor Radiola line of receivers distributed by the Aeolian Co. of Missouri. There is even a 13-tube combination with two speakers, remote control, automatic tuning, home record making and slow and standard record-playing device.

The eight-tube superheterodyne circuit is used in the mantel and consolette type sets, and has "micro" tone control as well as full-sized dynamic speaker.

The nine-tube superheterodynes have "micro" tone control, automatic tone control and rubber-floated chassis. This nine-tube line includes an automatic radio-phonograph combination.

In the 10-tube line are several models of exceptional power and selectivity, among them a de luxe radio-phonograph combination with exceptional tone quality and volume. This combination, as well as the eight-tube t. r. f. radio-phonograph plays the new 33 1-3 r. p. m. records as well as the standard records.

Tube Serves Double Purpose in New Apex, Gloritone Sets.

Four new models just added to the line of Gloritone and Apex receivers distributed by the Simmons Hardware Co. give a range from five-tube to ten-tube superheterodynes. These sets are made by the U. S. Radio and Television Co., of which two former St. Louisans, J. Clarke Coit and Walter Dyer, are president and vice-president in charge of sales, respectively.

Two of the added sets are in the Apex line. Both are seven-tubers, one a table model, the other a console. Both have automatic volume control, tone blender, multimu and pentode tubes. They really are eight-tube sets, for one of the 24 tubes act as both detector and oscillator.

The other two added models are Gloritones. They use a five-tube "superheterodyne circuit, and have the same features and dual service tube as the new Apex sets. One is a table cabinet 16⅝ inches high, the other a console 38 inches high.

Neon Tube Used in New Fadas as Tuning Device.

Among features of the new Fada receivers shown by the Fuchs Appliance Co., distributer, are automatic volume control, tuning silencer, provision to prevent interference from marring reception, pentode tubes in push pull audio, shielded chassis and "flash-o-graph tuning."

Addition recently of a seven-tube lowboy model gives Fada a complete line of superheterodynes. This new lowboy is 37 inches high, 21½ inches wide and 13 inches deep. It uses the new multimu and pentode tubes. The largest Fada sets have ten tubes.

Using the "flash-o-graph," a Fada owner can tune by eye instead of by ear. In appearance the "fash-o-graph" resembles a thermometer, except that a column of vivid red light takes the place of the column of mercury. The device is operated by the carrier signal from a station. When the signal reaches its greatest intensity, as tuned by the receiver, the column of red light reaches its highest point in the neon tube.

Advanced Design Circuits in New Atwater Kent Sets.

Advanced design in superheterodyne circuits employing the new multi-mu and pentode tubes characterizes the new Atwater Kent receivers shown by the Brown & Hall Supply Co. The line is unusually complete, including sets for AC and DC current districts, for 25-cycle districts, and for operation with standard batteries or with the new two-volt "aircell" A battery in the rural districts.

One chassis has six tubes, another has seven tubes and a third employs 10 tubes. All models come with tubes. The 10-tube chassis all have two pentode tubes in push pull.

There is also an Atwater Kent automobile set with seven-tube chassis and dynamic speaker. The tuning control is on the steering post, and chassis and batteries are all in the one case.

The furniture designs are unusually attractive and varied, whether the model be a "compact," a lowboy or a highboy.

One series of compact models comes in cabinets with rounded arches of zebrawood, matched butt walnut panels and rope-carved pilasters. These have tone control and full dynamic speakers.

Another "compact" line has a seven-tube chassis, tone control and automatic volume control.

A series of lowboy models uses all three chassis with and without automatic volume control.

The highboy models have the 10-tube chassis, automatic volume control except in one case, advanced dynamic speaker, tone control and static reducer. This line includes a radio-phonograph combination.

Some Stewart-Warner Sets Tune in Short Waves.

Reception of both broadcast and short wave stations is featured by Stewart-Warner in some of the new sets exhibited at the show. There is a special Stewart-Warner adapter which can be added to virtually any receiver to make it a short wave set. Then there are five models which are so equipped that a turn of a switch makes them either standard broadcast receivers or short wave instruments.

That there is growing interest in the short waves is undeniable. More and more United States stations are sending out their regular programs on short waves as well as over their reguar channels. European stations often can be tuned in. There is a movement under way to have some of the more powerful stations in Europe broadcast special programs which may be tuned in by American listeners during the evening hours.

In addition to the adapter, the Stewart-Warner line includes 11 models, of which six are for regular broadcast reception. Multi-mu and pentode tubes, volume control, tone control and automatic volume control are among Stewart-Warner features.

Novel Features in Majestic Sets Include Twin Detector.

Spray-shielded tubes, twin power detection and a five-tube superheterodyne circuit are unusual features of the new Majestic receivers shown by the Koerber-Brenner Co., distributer.

The five-tube "super," of marked power and selectivity, has a special modulated circuit, tone control, spray-shielded tubes, pentode power tube and full dynamic speaker. It comes in a lowboy cabinet, mantel type cabinet, Duncan Fyfe end table and in a radio-phonograph combination in early English design.

The five-tube and nine-tube Majestics have tone control, while the 10-tube sets have automatic volume control as well. All the larger receivers have twin power detection and push pull pentode audio.

The new tubes, both muti-mu and 24 screen grid types, are shielded with a spraying of metal on the glass of the tubes themselves. This eliminates the necessity of shielding cans or boxes.

The twin power detection is an adaptation of a feature of a "perfect quality" set built by British engineers. It uses two detector tubes in push pull grid rectification instead of one tube with bias rectification.

Westinghouse Sets Include New Columaire Types.

New Westinghouse receivers, with superheterodyne circuits and pentode audio, are being shown by the Westinghouse Electric Supply Co., which has a Memphis branch as well as main house in St. Louis, with John Boos Jr. in charge of the radio division.

Prominent among the new sets are the Columaire Jr., in standard and de luxe styles. Both Columaire Jr. models have nine-tube chassis with push pull audio, and both have speakers in their tops that send sounds upward to be deflected sideways and downward by a special diffusion device. The de luxe Columaire Jr. has automatic volume control and pentode tubes in push pull and a clock.

Then there is a Columette WR-10 model, a consolette type with eight-tube chassis and push pull pentode audio.

A WR-5 lowboy model has a nine-tube chassis with push pull pentode audio.

New Zenith Sets Range From Five to 14 Tubes.

Among the new Zenith receivers distributed by the Geller, Ward & Hasner Hardware Co. are several 10-tube and a 14-tube model. These are in addition to a Zenette line of midget and consolette models and eight-tube Zeniths.

The 10-tube Zeniths use an improved superheterodyne circuit and come in lowboy and highboy cabinets.

The 14-tube receiver, in highboy cabinets, has an advanced type of superheterodyne circuit called the "hypermetron," which is said to give exceptional selectivity and distance range.

Features of the new Zenith models are automatic volume control, automatic line voltage regulator, automatic tuning, tuning meter, antenna balancer, light focus dialing, between-station silencer and use of multi-mu and pentode tubes.

The new Zenette sets include a table model, a semi-highboy and a full highboy cabinet, using a seven-tube superheterodyne, four-gang condenser circuit.

Super-Sonne Circuit Developed for New Sparton Sets.

The super-sonne circuit, a development by the Sparks-Withington Co., is used in most of the larger Sparton models, according to the E. J. Straus Radio Co., distributer. This has superheterodyne application as worked out for Sparton sets.

A number of the new Spartons are fitted with the new Lafoy automatic volume control, perfected by and named after a Sparton engineer. A tone and static control is regular equipment on practically all of the larger sets. The gyro speed regulator, an ingenious device that keeps speed constant on automatic combinations, is regular equipment on Models 30 and 35.

Because of its leadership in police radio work, Sparton this year incorporated many of its exclusive police radio features in its standard automobile radio. Most important of these are remote control, Lafoy automatic control and full dynamic speaker.

Perhaps most interesting of Sparton announcements this year was that covering the Visionola, a home talkie unit to bring the theater into the home. A film distribution plan, which will furnish

Here and There on the Air - - - - - - - - By J. L. B.

FORMER President Calvin Coolidge will speak in the first of a new series of "Frasier Hunt—Great Personalities" broadcasts, which will go on the NBC's WJZ chain, including KWK, at 8:30 Tuesday nights, beginning Oct. 6. Mr. Coolidge will speak only on the opening program. Hunt will take charge of the series thereafter. Hitherto untold incidents in the lives of famous living men will be related. Hunt, a noted war correspondent, reporter and author, has been featured recently in a radio series. He will have the assistance of an orchestra led by Rosario Bourdon.

Kate Smith, whose "S'wanee Music" made her so popular with listeners that she has been made the star of a sponsored program at a salary said to be $3000 a week, is somewhat akin to Vaugn de Leath, in that she is "hefty," good-natured and possessed of an unusually appealing voice of the deeper "crooning" type. Five years ago she was a student nurse in Georgetown University. Singing at a benefit at Washington, she was heard by Eddie Dowling, who engaged her for a small part in "Honeymoon Lane." After "Honeymoon Lane" closed, she played in "Hit the Deck." Then George White made her one of the principals in "Flying High." Not long ago she was given a chance to sing over the CBS chain. Almost immediately she made a "hit." She has been playing for several weeks at the Palace Theater in New York. Now the 217-pound singer is one of the most highly paid of radio performers.

Odette Myrtil, a French musical comedy actress, will have the spotlight in a new series at 5:15 Tuesdays, on KWK and the WJZ chain, starting Sept. 29. These programs will replace the ones that have been featuring Gus Van. Miss Myrtil will lead the orchestra. She came to this country in 1915, in "Ziegfeld's Midnight Frolics" and has starred in revues in London. Her home is at Douglaston, Iong Island, N. Y.

MISS RUTH ROLL, soprano, of 1750 Preston place, and Calvert G. Wellpot, baritone, of 4378 Forest Park boulevard, will represent the St. Louis district in the Missouri finals of the National Radio Audition next month over KMOX. They were adjudged winners in the district competition over KMOX. Winners of the State contest will represent Missouri in the Midwest finals in Chicago, winners of which will compete in the national finals over the WEAF chain in December.

Julius Tannen, of vaudeville and musical comedy fame, is to be featured, beginning tomorrow, on the programs over the CBS network in which Dennis King has starred. The new series will be broadcast at 5:30 Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings. Maximilian Pilzer will continue to lead the orchestra. A quartet headed by Frank Parker, tenor, also will be heard.

Harriet Lee, contralto, who has sung frequently over the CBS chain, has been re-elected to be "queen" of the New York radio show this week. George Breakstone, 9 years old, who takes part in the Lady Next Door broadcasts over KSD and the WEAF chain, is to be "prince" in her suite.

Paul Whiteman, the orchestra leader, has been appointed music supervisor for the Chicago studios of the National Broadcasting Co. His orchestra is playing weekly over an NBC chain. He will continue to conduct it. . . . Cab Calloway's orchestra is back on the WEAF chain, at 9:30 p. m. Mondays and at 10 p. m. Wednesdays, after an 18,000-mile tour of the country. . . . The "Eight Sons of Eli," a double quartet formerly of the Yale Glee Club, will begin a weekly program over the CBS chain on Sept. 27. . . . Belle Baker will sing over KWK and the WJZ chain at 6 p. m. Friday. . . . Joe Cook is billed with Rudy Vallee at 6 o'clock Thursday evening over KSD. . . . Angelo Patri, who twice a week talks over KMOX and the CBS network, about children and their care, was born in Italy, but has been teaching for 27 years in the New York City schools. Among his best known books are "What Have You Got to Give?" and "Problems of Childhood." . . . Adele Vasa, CBS chain soprano, sings with a range of three octaves. . . . Beatrice Belkin, of Roxy's Gang, has been signed for an Ed Wynn show.

Eddie Cantor accidentally made his debut as a radio master of ceremonies over two networks. For about a minute he was heard on the WEAF chain and the WJZ net as well. Cantor was taking part in the first of seven broadcasts he is to make Sundays with the Rubinoff orchestra. The comedian was announcing the next number to be played when studio guests and listeners to the opening of the new season of the weekly radio review with Uncle Henry and the Editor were surprised to hear him instead of Senator Smith W. Brookhart, who was to be picked up from Washington. It was only a minute before the error was corrected. The studio control man was responsible for the mistake.

Life behind the scenes of a circus will be depicted in a series of "Little Buster" programs on Saturdays, starting Oct. 3, over the WJZ chain, including KWK.... Another orchestra and a piano duo will replace Gitlin's orchestra in the 7:30-8 o'clock program on KWK and the WJZ network Monday night.... "The Adventures of Barbara Wayne" will be a new chain program on KWK at 4:45 p. m. Sundays, starting Sept. 27....Exercises at the unveiling of a statue of Thomas Jefferson at Richmond, Va., will be broadcast over KSD at 2:30 Tuesday. John W. Davis, one time candidate for President, will speak....Corse Payton of "ten, twenty, thirty cents" theatrical fame, will begin an old-time melodrama series over the WJZ chain next Saturday. His first play will be "The Streets of New York".... Ramsay MacDonald, the British Premier, will speak from London in a reroadcast over the CBS chain on Thursday...."Big Ten" coaches and coaches of leading Eastern college football teams are to do a behind-the-scenes series at 9:30 Friday nights, beginning Oct. 16,

Setback for Plan To Erect 267 New Local Radio Stations

The plan of Clarence R. Cummins, owner of WRAK, Williamsport, Pa., to erect 267 new local low-power radio broadcasting stations in as many communities in 16 New England, Middle Atlantic and Middle Western States, suffered its first setback when the Federal Radio Commision dismissed his application because of failure to file the necessary appearance papers indicating his intention to present his case for hearing on Oct. 16.

Men of international standing as authorities will discuss "What I Would Do With the World," in a series of international broadcasts scheduled to begin Monday, Sept. 28, at 2 p. m. The first speaker will be H. G. Wells, who will speak from London, introducing the discussion in the form of an examination. Wells will ask questions bearing on the world situation, causes and remedies. Sir Arthur Salter, a British economist and authority on international finance, will be the second speaker, on Thursday, Oct. 1. A dozen or more other notables have promised to take part. Some of them will be Americans and will speak from New York. These programs are scheduled for the WEAF chain, probably including KSD.

One of the first uses of the Federal Radio Commission's new recording apparatus, with which investigators transcribe and reproduce on phonograph disks radio programs of questionable character against which complaints have been made, led to a decision in favor of seven broadcasting stations in the New York metropolitan area over which broadcasts of a medical climic advertising treatments for varicose veins were being carried.

After listening to reproductions of the broadcasts and hearing the reports of two investigators who took the portable recording apparatus to New York last July, recording 10 of the programs, the commision held that "the broadcasts seem to contain nothing upon which the criticisms might be based."

The commission investigators found that while the advertising was being severely criticised by the medical profession, the persons administering the treatments are duly licensed physicians under the New Jersey laws. Questions and answers by clinic were said to be purely hypothetical, no diagnoses being made or attempted on the air.

Programs of the finer music scheduled over WLW include: Organ recital of music by Beethoven, Wagner and Mendelssohn at 9 o'clock this morning; recital by 'cellist and pianist at 5:30 this evening; orchestra and Alys Michot, soprano, in music by Thomas, Debussy, Deliles and Massenet, at 9 o'clock tonight; music by Adam, Zemecnik, Massenet, Debussy, Golterman, Durand and Rachmaninoff, in a Chime Reveries concert at 10 o'clock tomorrow night.

New Radio Receivers

new films and synchronized records at reasonable rentals, has been worked out within the last week and is now ready to function.

New Crosley Receivers Include 10-tube Superheterodynes.

The new Crosley sets range from the little "Show Boy" to ten-tube superheterodynes, according to announcement by the Electric Light & Supply Co., co-distributer in St. Louis.

Every type of receiver is represented in the Crosley Line, from mantel type superheterodynes and tuned radio frequency circuits to six-tube sets for rural use employing the two-volt tubes and the air-cell "A" battery that does not need to be recharged, and to an elaborate radio-phonograph combination.

The multi-mu screen grid tubes and the pentode power tubes are used in the new Crosleys.

There are two special clock model Crosleys. One is the "Oracle" with a synchronous electric clock in a five-ply walnut veneer cabinet. The other is the "Playtime", of grandfather clock type. This has an eight-tube superheterodyne chasis with auditorium type dynamic speaker, push-pull tenode audio and variable-mu tubes. The cabinet is 66 inches high and comes in mahogany with front instrument panel of four-piece figured and matched walnut high lighted. The clock face is in antique parchment finish.

Many Custom Built Sets in General Motors Line.

In addition to the standard superhetorodyne receivers, there are nine custom built models in the new General Motors line distributed by the Beck & Corbitt Co.

All models in the line have improved superheterodyne chassis, there being three circuits, one with seven tubes, one with eight tubes and one with 10 tubes. The seven and eight tube chassis use a single pentode audio tube, while the 10-tube chassis has two pentodes in push pull.

The custom models include a walnut and an oak end table set, one in Colonial design, the other done in the seventeenth century English style. Then there are two massive occasional table designs, both seventeenth century English.

Philco Making 7000 Sets Daily and Increasing Force.

It will be necessary to increase the number of workers in the plant of the Philadelphia Storage Battery Co., maker of Philco receivers and Transitone auto sets, James M. Skinner, president of the company, said in a recent interview. The reason, he stated, was a growing demand for Philco radio.

During the first week in August the number of employes was 4019, while in the last week this number was increased to 5200. The Philco plant is operating at 60 per cent of capacity and turning out 7000 radios daily. The full capacity is 12,000 sets per day, which would necessitate 6500 employes. In 1930 the company's high mark for number of employes was 3902 and in 1929 it was slightly more than 5000.

Addition to the Philco line of a new Model 50 mantel type set was announced recently by the Artophone Corporation, distributer. The chassis has a five-tube tuned radio frequentcy circuit using three 24 type screen grid tubes, a pentode power tube and an 80 rectifier tube. The sets all have dynamic speakers The series includes a Baby Grand model and a lowboy cabinet design.

Philco receivers now range from this newest five-tuber to 11-tube superheterodynes of advanced design.

Sibelius' symphonic poems, "Finlandia" and "The Swan of Tuonela," and his "Valse Triste" are to be played by the Roxy Symphony Orchestra at 6 o'clock tomorrow evening over WENR.

Season's List Of Debutantes Unusually Long

More Than 40, Almost Twice as Many as Last Year, Scheduled to Be Presented—Party Dates Set.

WITH the jewelers of the Veiled Prophet busily engaged in fashioning a new crown for his 1931 Queen of Love and Beauty, it is interesting to note the personnel of the debutantes and to guess the recipient. The number has increased to more than 40, almost twice the list of last season, and with dates being set rapidly to avoid a conflict, it is safe to predict that the next few months will be unusually gay for the younger set. One or two additional names may be added before the festivities begin. Following is a list of young women to make their debuts this season:

Miss Caroline Kennard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Scruggs Kennard, represents at least three of St. Louis' prominent families—Kennard, Scruggs and Nugent. Her mother was Miss Louise Nugent, and she is a granddaughter of Mrs. Daniel Casey Nugent. Miss Kennard is a graduate of the Sacred Heart College at Maryville, and has recently returned from Europe, where she spent more than a year in travel with her mother and sister, Louise, and in study at the Sorbonne in Paris. Three parties have been planned for her. On Dec. 12, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brookings Wallace will give a dinner dance at the St. Louis Country Club, and similar parties are planned for Dec. 19 and 22. Her home at present is at the Park Plaza.

Miss Marjorie Capen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pond Capen, 4750 Westminster place, and Miss Jane Bond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bond, 6339 Waterman avenue, graduated from the John Burroughs School together a year ago and last season attended the Bellevue School at Tours, France. At the close of school, Mrs. Bond chaperoned them on a trip through Europe. Miss Bond, who is a granddaughter of the late Judge Henry S. Priest, will be introduced formally at a dinner dance at the St. Louis Woman's Club the night of Nov. 27. Miss Capen's plans are not definite. The Capen family has long been prominent in the affairs of the Veiled Prophet.

Miss Japuelin Chapman is the younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin G. Chapman Jr., 58 Kingsbury place, and sister of Mrs. Arthur Furber Greer of New York, who as Miss Alice Chapman, was first special maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball a few years ago. She was educated at the John Burroughs School and Miss Mary Wheeler's School, Providence, R. I. She will make her debut at a dinner dance at the Bellerive Country Club, Oct. 16. Miss Eleanor Conant, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Kimball Conant, 19 Portland place, completed her studies at Miss Porter's school in Farmington, Conn., after attending Mary Institute. Miss Conant will be presented at a dinner dance at the St. Louis Country Club, Oct. 31. She has traveled extensively and recently returned with her family from a motor tour of the West.

Miss Lillian Bixby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Bixby, 13 Portland place, and Miss Caro Holmes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Holmes of the St. Louis Country Club grounds, who have been schoolmates at Mary Institute and last year at Mlle. Boissier's School at Neuilly, France, will be in the list of the season's buds. Miss Bixby is a granddaughter of W. K. Bixby, St. Louis capitalist and philanthropist. Prior to their departure in the spring for their summer home in Lake George, N. Y., her party was set for Thanksgiving eve at the St. Louis Country Club. The family is expected home this week. Miss Holmes will be the guest of honor at a dinner dance to be given by her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. John Howard Holmes, at the St. Louis Country Club Nov. 7, and will make her bow at a similar party to be given at the same club by her parents Dec. 18.

Miss Eleanor Hoblitzelle, sister of Miss Trimble Hoblitzelle, 6450 Ellenwood avenue, a member of the younger social set, and daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George K. Hoblitzelle, will make her debut at the St. Louis Country Club the night of Nov. 20. Miss Hoblitzelle attended Mary Institute and the Finch School in New York. She has been spending the summer traveling in Europe with her sister, and her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Hoblitzelle and Miss Janet Wallace.

Miss Marjorie McKittrick, who has been traveling in Europe with her mother, Mrs. Marjorie Holland McKittrick, is spending the winter in St. Louis, and will be among the debutantes. Miss McKittrick was educated at Fermata School, Aiken, S. C., and Dobbs-Ferry, N. Y. She is with her father, Walter McKittrick, at 4616 Lindell boulevard.

Miss Dorothy Ross Weds W. F. Spencer

THE marriage of Miss Dorothy May Ross, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Ross, 25 Amherst avenue, University City, to William Foulke Spencer Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Foulke Spencer of Muncie, Ind., took place yesterday afternoon at the Kingshighway Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Arnold H. Lowe officiating. The church was decorated with palms and ferns and illuminated by tall tapers.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Ralph C. Dean, formerly Miss Eleanor Frances Ross, who was her sister's matron of honor, and by Miss Myrtle Olliver, maid of honor. William Foulke Spencer Sr. was his son's best man, and the groomsmen were Edmund Ball, James Kimbrough and Dewitt Davis.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory Spanish lace over ivory satin, fashioned with a close fitting bodice and full skirt. A short lace jacket completed the ensemble, and she wore an ivory velvet turban adorned with an ostrich plume. Her flowers were white roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Dean was gowned in salmon pink lace over matching crepe with a pink velvet Empress Eugenie hat and slippers to match. She carried Joanna Hill roses and pink dahlias. The maid of honor wore gold lace with velvet hat and accessories of jade green and carried bronze dahlias.

After the ceremony, dinner was served at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Ross for the wedding party and a few additional guests. The house was decorated in garden flowers and greenery, and a wedding cake surrounded by white candles formed the centerpiece on the table.

Mr. and Mrs. Spencer will spend their honeymoon in the East and will make their home at the Rector apartments, Muncie, Ind., after Oct. 20.

the ceremony. Chrysanthemums in shades of red, orange and yellow were used in decorating the reception hall and living room. Talisman roses and lilies of the valley were used in the dining room.

Upon their return from a honeymoon at Asheville, Mr. and Mrs. Hein will reside in St. Louis, where they have taken an apartment at 415 Belt avenue.

One of the important but small weddings of yesterday was that of Miss Virginia Henslee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude E. Henslee, 5519 Pershing avenue, to William Julian Williams, son of Mrs. Soledad Yanez Vd. de Williams, and the late Thomas James Williams of Mexico City, Mexico. The marriage took place at 8 o'clock yesterday morning at St. Roch's Church. The Rev. John Spencer officiated.

The bride wore a gown of golden brown velvet made on straight lines with trimming of D'Alencon lace. The sleeves of the gown were puffed at the upper part with an insertion of the lace both there and at the elbow. The skirt was ankle length. The only ornament worn by the bride was a diamond clip, the gift of the bridegroom; it was fastened at the V-neck line. She wore a hat of brown felt with a brown plume. Her flowers were a shoulder corsage of brown orchids.

Mrs. Clement William Nelson Jr., the bride's only attendant, wore a frock of black and cream satin with a hat of black felt. Her flowers were talisman roses and lilies of the valley.

Mr. Williams had as his best man James J. Glennon of Chicago. The ushers were Clement William Nelson Jr., Ralph Prewett and H. Hunter Look. A wedding breakfast at the Coronado Hotel and an informal reception at the home of the bride's parents, followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Williams will go to Salina, Kan., to make their home following a honeymoon.

A wedding of the late summer season was that of Miss Dorothy Lila Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Brown, 509 Warren avenue, University City, and James Campbell Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James Campbell, 5543 Enright avenue, which tok place at the Second Presbyterian Church, Sept. 5, at 5:30 p. m. Dr. Norman L. Euwer performed the ceremony.

The bride was preceded to the altar by the following bridesmaids: Miss Alice Patterson, cousin of the bride; Miss Marcella Anderson, Miss Mary Campbell, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Arelene Anderson, Miss Ethel Lee and Miss Virginia Brown, sister of the bride. Miss Velma Brown, another sister of the bride, served as maid of honor.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was gowned in chantilly lace made over cream satin, designed on princess lines, which flared below the hip line into a long train. Her veil of illusion fell from a fitted cap trimmed in pearls and orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white lilies.

"Thick, lively suds!" says Mrs. T. Grau, 2911 Sidney St.

"I use Rinso, the hard-water soap, in my washer and it gets clothes the whitest white, colored things nice and bright! Without boiling, too! I like the way Rinso whips up instantly into a lot of thick, lively suds in our hard water—not the flat, lazy kind that die out. I can trust my best linens to these safe suds. I use Rinso for all kinds of cleaning, it's such a work saver."

MRS. T. GRAU,
2911 Sidney St., St. Louis, Mo.

No softener needed

Far less mending for clothes washed the Rinso way! No scrubbing—clothes last longer.

Cup for cup, Rinso gives twice as much suds as lightweight, puffed-up soaps. All that's needed, even in hardest water—no bar soaps, chips or softeners.

Great in washers, too; the makers of 40 leading washers recommend Rinso. Get the BIG package. Try it for dishes and all cleaning.

There May be Poison in YOUR System!

STEP out tomorrow morning with the fresh buoyancy and briskness that comes from a clean intestinal tract. Syrup Pepsin—a doctor's prescription for the bowels—will help you do this. This compound of fresh laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other mild ingredients will cleanse the system thoroughly—without griping or discomfort.

Poisons absorbed into the system from inactive bowels cause that dull, headachy, sluggish, bilious condition; coat the tongue; cause unpleasant breath; sap energy, strength and nerve-force. A little of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will clear up trouble like that, gently, harmlessly, in a hurry. The great difference it will make in your feelings over night will convince you of its merit.

Dr. Caldwell studied bowel troubles for forty-seven years. This long experience enabled him to make his prescription just what men, women, old people and children need. Its natural, mild, thorough action and its pleasant taste commend it to everyone. That's why "Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin," as it is called, is the largest selling laxative in drug stores everywhere.

Daughters of 1812.

At a meeting of the St. Louis chapter, Daughters of 1812, at the home of the Regent, Mrs. H. R. Kreitz, 4000 Flora boulevard, on Wednesday, plans were made for the eighth annual birthday luncheon which will be held at the Park Plaza on Sept. 23 at 1 p.

Nervous Light-Weight becomes 12 Hour Sleeper

Julia Jenkins was 5 lbs. under weight—used to toss around terribly before going to sleep. Then she began drinking Thompson's "Double Malted" (chocolate flavor) at lunch and bed time. She is now up to average weight—sleeps 11 to 12 hours. How is it that Thompson's "Double Malted" produces such amazing results?

Little bodies become nervous unless they digest enough food to grow—more food than grown-ups. Thompson's "Double Malted" (because of the double amount of malt enzymes) digests five times its own weight of other foods. This helps young, growing bodies to get full benefit from the food they eat. Then they eat more—hence gain in height, weight, energy—lose nervousness and irritability. Thompson's practically doubles the food value of milk, and is rich in the food elements that develop strong bones and teeth, firm flesh and sturdy muscles.

Resolve that your boy or girl shall have the tremendous advantage in life that a vigorous body gives. Order Thompson's "Double Malted" from your druggist or grocer now.

WATCH YOUR CHILD'S LIFE LINE

understand the first duty of a fabric

THAT duty is style—authentic, Paris style—but style plus quality. And that is what these three new fabrics have—the right texture, weave and color, the right firmness for fine seams, the right softness for graceful draping, the right weight for perfect tailoring. Style plus quality has been Cheney's uncompromising standard for nearly one hundred years—and these three new fabrics prove it to perfection.

CREPE MARCANIA*

—a rich, pure silk canton with the fine ribbed finish of faille. From the brilliant high shades borrowed from Tunis, to the deep dark tones of glowing jewels, every one of the colors has fashion significance. . . . $2.50 yd.

MOSSDELL* SATIN

—a lustrous, luxurious satin with crepe back that gives it a dual personality. In all the colors Paris insists upon satin. . . . . $2.50 yd.

MEDICI* VELVET

—a flattering, new, transparent velvet that because of its slenderizing short pile, its soft suppleness, and its glorious colors is sure to rule the fashion world with a gentle but compelling hand. In black, of course. $4.98 yd.

GUESSWORK?... NEVER!

There's no guesswork in dressmaking when you look at Cheney's "Fabric-into-Fashion"* posters in the silk department before making a dress. These posters show you how the very silk at which you are looking will be when it's ready to wear. They tell you which patterns are best, show you smart color-combinations, and say exactly to the inch how much fabric you'll need.

Why do so many women prefer this tooth paste?

• For its amazing results and that $3 saving

THIS delightful thrift dentifrice contains remarkable cleansing and polishing agents—noted for their gentle action. We searched for years before discovering them. They are harder than tartar and consequently remove it. But they are softer than the precious tooth enamel and are therefore harmless to it.

So, teeth cleansed by Listerine Tooth Paste retain their natural health, firmness, and brilliance.

If you are not already using this unusual tooth paste, get a tube today and try it. Compare it with any tooth paste at any price. And judge by results alone.

More than 3,000,000 men and women have made this comparison. Now they pronounce Listerine Tooth Paste their favorite. They like the quick but gentle way it gets rid of discoloration, stains, and tartar. They like the thorough way it cleans. The beautiful brilliance it imparts to teeth.

And they welcome that wonderful feeling of freshness it leaves in the mouth—a sensation associated with Listerine itself.

Incidentally, at 25¢ the large tube, Listerine Tooth Paste saves you $3 a year over dentifrices in the 50¢ class, on the basis of a tube per month per person. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

Romance of Commerce To Be Depicted in Parade Of Veiled Prophet Oct. 6

ROUTE OF PARADE

The Veiled Prophet parade will begin at 7:15 p. m., Oct. 6, and will follow the same route as last year, on approximately the same time schedule, with the exception that the return to Ranken avenue will be over Laclede avenue instead of Market street. The route follows: West on Laclede avenue to Sarah street; north on Sarah to Olive street; east on Olive to Jefferson avenue; north on Jefferson to Washington avenue; east on Washington to Broadway; south on Broadway to Olive; west on Olive to Jefferson; south on Jefferson to Laclede; west on Laclede to Ranken.

THE Veiled Prophet parade, on Tuesday evening, Oct. 6, is designed to divert its spectators from the occasional tragedies of trade and industry to their romance in all ages and all parts of the world, from the purple sails of Tyre to the immemorial caravans of Sahara.

Artists in the Prophet's Rankin Avenue Den are putting the finishing touches on the 20 floats, of which 19 are to present scenes in the history of commerce. Float No. 1 will bear the Prophet and his court.

The route of the parade, except for the substitution of Laclede avenue for Market street on the return to the Den, is the same as last year.

Descriptions of the floats have been prepared in a folder to be distributed tomorrow to school children competing for $105 prizes for 300 to 500 word essays which must be mailed to Postoffice Box 766 by noon of Oct. 5.

The floats will appear in this order:

The Veiled Prophet—His Mysterious Majesty sits under a canopy of red, purple and gold on an ornate galley rowed by two Negro slaves. On either side of the ship sit the First and Second High Priests, the Almoner and the Herald. A huge sea monster swims alongside.

Commerce of the Colonies—Swiftly the men who settled the 13 American colonies tapped the wealth of the land, and soon their graceful ships were sailing to the Old World with tobacco from Maryland and Virginia, tar and turpentine from North Carolina, rice, shingles, bacon and salt beef from South Carolina and Georgia, cod, salmon, whales and mackerel from New England. The float shows the bustle and color of the docks. A sailing ship puts in to the wharf, where waits a high-stacked cargo of hogsheads, crates, bags and bales shifted by hand derricks manned by husky laborers in knee breeches.

India and Arabia—Centuries before the dawn of civilization in the West, the caravans of the Orient carried rich silks and spices between the cities of India and Arabia. The shrewd and courageous Phoenicians—first of the great sailors—took the goods westward across the blue Mediterranean, and Europe developed a taste for tea, silks, jewels and spices. The trade passed in time to Rome, and later to Venice and Genoa. On this float, "the elephant waits," before an old bazar, while a jeweled Prince of India barters with a white-robed merchant of Arabia for brilliant rugs and silks, vessels of gold and silver.

Whaling—Out of colonial Nantucket the great whalers sailed the seven seas to lay down one of the most stirring chapters in the adventure of trade and the foundation of our ocean commerce. In return for hardships and hazards the whalers reaped a harvest of oil, candles, ambergris and whalebone and, in consequence, a huge business with Mother England and the Continent. This is decidedly an "action" float. The crew of a wave-tossed small boat, in oilskins, strain at the oars while a seaman stands in the bows, harpoon in hand and eyes fixed on a whale which "blows" just ahead.

West Indies—Here is a source of the world's wealth replete with tragedy and romance. Slavery was an early trade of the Islands, and their development began in and passed through periods of war, pestilence and revolt not entirely stilled even by the modern ballast of foreign capital. Long before the colonization of North America, the immense resources of the West Indies made them a trade center of Spanish, Dutch, English, French and later Americans. Spices and fruits were early commodies, and sugar cane was introduced to become a staple of the trade with the United States. An adobe hut, surrounded by stacks of bananas, pineapples and tobacco nestles at the foot of slender coconut palms on the float. Natives gather fruit. Monkeys play in the trees, and a laden mule cart stands near by.

Germany—The third greatest industrial nation of the world has one virtual monopoly on the fancies of childhood—its toys. Not all the German toys, even today, are made in the great factories. Following the custom of their fathers, the farmers of Thurungia and Erzebirge spend the long winter evenings fashioning marvels by hand to delight children everywhere. The float is a child's Utopia. Quaintly costumed craftsmen of Toytown are busily at work among stacks of fabulous playthings surrounding a huge rocking horse in front of a brilliant Christmas tree.

Southern States—Tobacco, rice, hemp and sugar are second to Cotton in the South. The cotton trade, through the demand for slaves on the vast plantations, led to the Civil War, and the trade was long in recovering from the blockading of Southern ports by the North. The float shows a cabin of the cotton fields, surrounded by bales on which sit singing, banjo-playing plantation Negroes with a Mammy with a bright bandana does a shuffle.

Alaska—The trade of Alaska, which every year approaches ten times the $7,200,000 which the United States paid Russia for it in 1867, is of particular importance to St. Louis, sealskin capital of the world. Here the skins of the Pribiloff Islands are dressed and dyed for distribution to the rest of the world. The float represents a seal-hunting expedition. Indians of the Aleutian Islands cautiously maneuver a frail canoe among the ice floes toward a pair of seals, while a harpooner stands watchfully in the prow. Two Polar bears show menacing fangs, and a grotesque totem pole stands in the background.

Japan—In the little more than a half-century since Commodore Perry opened the doors of Japan to the Western World, the island empire has become the sixth nation in world commerce. A country scene in old Japan is the subject of the float. Laborers gather rice before a pagoda where Japanese women in kimonos sip tea among the cherry blossoms.

Street Merchants—The immemorial trade of the peddler has come down from the ancient market place to the hawkers who ply mid-city alleys, to the annoyance of late sleepers, and the downtown sidewalk orators who test the sales possibilities of a myriad novelties. On the float stands a rickety wagon overflowing with pots and pans and boxes while the peddler haggles with a shrew in a sunbonnet. Near them are an expansive woman carrying a pair of geese and peddlers of glass jewelry, balloons and "hot dogs."

Commerce of the Desert—Temple inscriptions show that Egypt sent trade expeditions across the desert to Nubia, the Lybian Oasis, India, Syria and Babylonia thousands of years ago. On the float, a caravan sets out into the desert in the shadow of the Sphinx, while merchants wish the Bedouins a prosperous journey.

China—Efforts of Europe to enter China for trade, distinguished by war and revolution, accomplished adoption of an "open door" policy only in recent times, but China today is an important factor in world trade, particularly in silks. Two great dragons dominate the float. Coolies carry cases of tea and bundles of tobacco among paper lanterns and fluttering prayer sheets, while a mandarin looks on and two maidens dictate notes to a public scrivener.

Argentina, South America—Settled 100 years before the United States, South America was retarded commercially by Spanish dominance and scant production of world commodities. The Panama Canal, foreign capital, Argentine sheep and cattle raising, and discovery of gold and diamonds, nitrate and guano deposits, have contributed to phenomenal growth in the last 50 years. The float shows a scene on the Pampas, with mounted gauchos driving cattle among the cactuses.

Holland—This independent, adventurous and equable nation, occupying territory a fourth the size of New York State, once was the greatest trading nation in the world, with its cities the workshops for every land. Cheese and tulips and a windmill are featured on the float in a canal-bank scene peopled by Dutch children in wooden shoes.

Mexico—The dictatorship of Porfirio Diaz beginning in 1876 was the turning point for this nation, previously torn by strife and now, under stable government, a great source of oil, gold, silver, copper, lead, coffee and palm hats. A Gargantuan sombrero on the float is surrounded by piles of newly woven hats, with an emblematic palm tree, while native women fashion hats from stacks of the fiber.

Ireland—Skilled lace-makers fled to Ireland in the sixteenth century from the Inquisition and the Huguenot massacre. Later William III invited Crommelin, a Huguenot refugee in Holland, to develop the linen industry in the Lisburne district. The twin industries still flourish. A hand loom and spinning wheel are operated by Irish girls on the float, against a background of huge shamrocks, bolts of the finished goods and other specimens of Irish handicraft.

Frontier Trade—Within three years after the establishment of this trading post on the Mississippi St. Louis fur traders had pushed their way up the rivers and into the wilderness to establish monopolies with the 28 principal Indian nations. The float shows a Pueblo trading post, where a trader barters coffee with a half-breed Indian for a beautiful blanket.

Italy—The commercial tradition that Rome passed on to Venice and Genoa continues in Italy's modern eminence in objects of art, silk, wine, eggs, olives, oranges, lemons, tobacco, hemp, lace, coral and sponges. The float pictures two chief industries—art and wine making. Italian girls pick grapes

ACTIVITIES OF BOY SCOUTS

SEA SCOUT TRAINING CLASSES THIS WEEK

Those Who Attend Will Instruct Others in Watercraft for Older Boys.

Thomas J. Keane, national director of the Sea Scouts, and Charles F. Smith, instructor in scouting and recreational leadership at the Teachers' College, Columbia University, will arrive in St. Louis this evening to complete plans for a training course in Sea Scout leadership they will conduct at the Michael School every evening this week. The course, which is sponsored by the St. Louis Boy Scout Council, will be given to 54 council scoutmasters and other officials.

The class will be the first of its kind in St. Louis. Its graduates will train classes which will be added to the regular Boy Scout leadership courses. The Sea Scout course is open only to Scouts 15 years of age or more, and dealing with watercraft and boating.

Keane and Smith are scheduled to arrive at Union Station at 6:10 o'clock. They will go to the Coronado Hotel, where council officials and representatives of class will confer with them on final plans for the training. The class will open tomorrow evening.

A St. Louis Sea Scout committee has been formed to direct the new program. Its members are Harry Holbrook, commodore; C. E. Colgate, skipper, and E. E. Thiemeyer, Frederick Goldtrap and Capt. J. R. Parker.

The council's regular fall leadership training courses will begin Oct. 5. These will include an elementary course for leaders of little or no experience, an advanced class for those who have completed a previous elementary course, and several specialized classes in such subjects as first aid and troop camping. Three courses in Cub, or junior scout, leadership also will be given.

Scout leaders who have attended previous training courses, but who missed one or more meetings, are privileged to attend corresponding meetings in the coming classes, when attendance is necessary to qualify for a training certificate.

Troop Notes

WEST DISTRICT.

A trip through the Police Headquarters building was taken by 45 Scouts from Troop 30 of the Y. M. H. A., in place of holding the regular troop meeting last Thursday evening. With a detective as a guide, the troop visited the radio station, the Rogues' Gallery, the finger-print department, the Shadow Box, pistol range, ballistic department, the cells and the gymnasiums. The trip was the first of a series of monthly visits the troop has scheduled to interesting buildings and industries in the city.

Troop 93, of the Church of the Redeemer, resumed regular meetings last week, after a short suspension during the summer. The troop has a new leader in Scoutmaster Carl Gifford. Two other new troop officers were elected at the meeting, Scout Edward Hill becoming scribe and Scout Jack Lower becoming patrol leader of the Flying Eagle patrol. Work also was started at the meeting on troop projects and a nature study collection, several of the Scouts making plaster of paris leaf casts while others organized into groups for project work. A game of volley ball was played. After the regular meeting the troop officers met to decide on a program for next week.

More than half of the active scouts of Troop 116, at the Pershing School, will receive second class, first class, or Star badges at the troop's first Court of Honor next Thursday evening. Several special awards for achievement at the troop's annual camp also will be presented at the court, which will start at 7:30 o'clock. Assistant Scoutmaster Oliver Eberle will become a Life Scout at the fall Court of Honor Sept. 28. Troop 116 performed a troop good turn for the Citizens' Relief Committee Aug. 22 by assuming charge of a bundle show at the Missouri Theater that day.

Troop 208 has organized a football team, averaging 125 pounds, to play other council troops this fall. Troops wishing to schedule games may do so by getting in touch with Ralph Grimsley at FOrest 1437W.

NORTH DISTRICT.

Twenty-five scouts and Scoutmasters Simons, Collins and Moore of Troops 3, 161, and 206, attended a hike and picnic at the Chain of Rocks last Sunday under the sponsorship of Troop 3. Scoutmaster Simons of Troop 3 is Deputy Commissioner for North District Region 1, in which all three of the troops are located. A flag ceremony and an inspection were held in the morning, Troop 206 winning the latter event. After a dinner of barbecued ribs, inter-troop contests in knot-tying, first aid, and signalling were conducted. Prizes were awarded to the three highest scouts in each event, as follows: knot tying, Scouts Ernst Grate, Millard Himholt and Stanley Hansbbin; first aid, Scouts Charles Runde, Ernst Grate, and Fred Pomery; signaling, Ernst Grate, Millard Himholt and George Collins.

Scout Louis Klick of Troop 33, with headquarters at St. Peter's Evangelical Church, has left the troop temporarily to attend college. He will return to active membership next summer. This troop recently held its regular meeting at the Lorelei swimming pool, under the leadership of Assistant Scoutmaster Charles Wernle.

SOUTH DISTRICT.

Troop 198, of St. John's Episcopal Church, carried out a troop good turn last Wednesday evening, when every scout in the troop brought to the meeting a bundle of clothing for donation to the Citizens' Relief Committee. It was estimated that more than 145 serv-

FINAL REVIEW OF CANDIDATES FOR EAGLE SCOUT HONORS

All Boy Scout candidates for the badge of Eagle Scout, highest rank in scouting, must appear at local Scout headquarters, 505 Chemical Building, at 4 o'clock either tomorrow or Tuesday afternoon for a final review in Eagle Scout requirements, if they wish to receive their badges at the fall Court of Honor, Sept. 28. The examinations will be conducted by a special Eagle Board of Review, which alone may authorize the presentation of this badge.

The fall court, which will be held at the Scottish Rite Cathedral, will be the first since spring empowered to award the Eagle badge. Eagle palms, Life, Star and merit badges also will be presented at the court, but no first or second class badges.

All applications for merit badges to be awarded at the court must be filed at headquarters before tomorrow evening. National scout regulations require merit badge applications to be filed one week before the badges are to be presented.

iceable articles were gathered. Patrol Leader Edwin Edmonson's Flying Eagle patrol, formerly in second place in an interpatrol contest, started by the troop Sept. 9, passed the former first place Beavers, under Patrol Leader Ernest Brach, last week. The Wolf and Panther patrols remained in third and fourth places, respectively.

SUBURBAN DISTRICT.

Troop Overland 1, with a score of 109 8-12, barely nosed out Troop Home Heights 1, with a score of 109 7-12, for first place in a five-troop rally held at Marvin Park a week ago yesterday. Overland 2 took third, with 104½, followed by Marvin Park 1 and Mount Pleasant 1. The rally was based on Camparall methods, with a contest period, troop cooking, and a campfire program. Nearly 300 participants and spectators gathered around the council fire for stunts and games. Specialties in signaling and fire by friction were put on by Overland 2 and Home Heights 1.

CENTRAL DISTRICT.

Seven scouts of Troop 23, Gibson Heights United Presbyterian Church, accompanied by Committeemen Hall and Roebeff, held a four-day camp near Ironton, Mo., over Labor day. Much of the time at camp was spent fishing, swimming and hunting Indian relics. One of the scouts found 25 arrowheads and a stone axe in two days. After breaking camp the scouts visited Graniteville to see the Elephant Rock and other granite formations.

Scotland—Commercial spirit of the Scotch developed slowly, but steadily under royal encouragement since the time of David I. The float shows shepherds tending their flock before a sod-roofed Highland cottage, while a kilted dandy plays the bag-pipes to a girl.

Hawaiian Islands—Trade relations which began in 1790 when Capt. Gray of Boston put in to "the Paradise of the Pacific" grew immensely with the large scale cultivation of sugar cane, and the islands were annexed by the United States in 1893. Hula girls garlanded with leis dance to guitar music before a thatched hut on the float.

BUSINESS BLOCK SOLD AT ST. LOUIS AND VANDEVENTER

Name of Buyer of Six Stores and Six Flats Withheld for Present — Price Not Announced.

EXCHANGES SOUGHT ON OTHER HOLDINGS

Commercial Properties and Apartments Involved in Deals But There Is Lack of Ready Cash.

By BERRY MOORE.

The business block at the southwest corner of Vandeventer and St. Louis avenues has been purchased by a client of the Glick Real Estate Co. The site has a frontage of 100 feet on Vandeventer and 142 feet on St. Louis, extending to an alley.

The building is a modern two-story structure, consisting of six stores and six flats on a substantial rental basis. The Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. occupies the corner store under a long lease, at a record rental, it is understood.

The name of the buyer is withheld pending the passing of the title. A. Rosenfeld was the grantor in the transaction.

The price was not announced. The purchase was mentioned as a feature of the week, the corner being one of the strongest in that part of the city.

The Glick Real Estate Co. also reported having closed contracts for the sale of other larger properties, particulars of which will be announced later.

A building at 7552 Wydown boulevard was purchased by Albert Schofield, a client of the Anderson-Stocke Real Estate Co. It contains six apartments with bath, electrical refrigeration, etc. The lot is 65 by 115 feet. The consideration was not mentioned.

Negotiations are on an aggressive scale again for business blocks in the midtown centers and for apartment buildings, but in the majority of instances exchanges are contemplated, owing to the lack of capital available for transactions on a cash basis. Contracts were reported as having been closed involving several large holdings of these types, contingent on the renewal of mortgages which shortly will expire. This situation is the only deterrent to a spirited revival in trading in these fields, real estate men contend.

The renewed enthusiasm displayed in apartments at prevailing prices is predicated on the assurance from real estate men that vacancies in buildings under these classifications will fast be absorbed with the revival of business. The practice of "doubling up" is declared to be only a temporary device. Consequent higher prices will obtain with profits for those who take advantage of present conditions, it is argued.

A brisk market for houses also is reported, buyers apparently being attracted by the lower prices, as a result of a drastic revision. This applies to small homes, especially bungalows and cottages, as well as to the more luxurious homes. The week's sales included one of the most attractive places in St. Louis County. The reported purchase price for this property, which includes large acreage, was $100,000. Further details are withheld pending the passing of the title. Negotiations also are reported for several other holdings in this class,

Plans for apartment buildings were disclosed with construction to begin as soon as conditions warrant. Contracts also were closed for lots on Teasdale avenue, west of Warder, included in the Remmert purchase. This tract comprises 1000 feet on both sides of Delmar boulevard and 1000 feet on both sides of Teasdale avenue. The Teasdale avenue frontage is reserved for residences.

MOTION PICTURE FOLK INVEST IN FRONTAGE

Many Stars and Directors Buy Hollywood Business Property, Survey Shows.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 19.—Motion picture people are turning from stocks to real estate. Individual investments of film stars, producers, directors and other studio employes in Los Angeles property have reached a total of $20,000,000, according to a survey by the Los Angeles Times. This represents only purchases of homes and other properties by individuals connected with the screen industry.

The bulk of the real estate acquired by film individuals is in the Hollywood district and in the residential and business areas which are tributary to the motion picture capital.

More homes have been bought by motion picture actors in the last two years than during any five-year period in the city's history, the majority of purchasers being new residents who came here following the advent of sound pictures, the survey states.

Real estate transfers show that many stars and directors after investing substantial sums in homes have acquired Hollywood business and income frontage. In the Vine street area alone Cecil B. De Mille, Carl Laemmle, Mike Gore, Al Christie, Lloyd Hughes, Richard Barthelmess, Thomas Beaudine, Jessie Lasky, Abe Gore, Henry Bergerman, William Boyd and others have invested in frontage. Two motion picture companies hold almost a mile of income and business frontage in the Vine area.

Investigation shows that individuals in the industry are taking advantage of the present buyers' market, and are increasing their real estate holdings. The survey estimates that 10 per cent of the annual motion-picture pay roll of $45,000,000 is being diverted into real estate channels in payments on properties already acquired, in making new purchases and in meeting the cost of improvement.

The lease was made for the Weber Auto Loan Co. to M. C. Stanley, who operated a restaurant in St. Louis for 22 years on Easton avenue at Sarah street.

WEBSTER TO BEGIN CITY HALL NOV. 1

Structure to Rise on Site of Old Building Will Cost $100,000.

Construction of a new $100,000 city hall at Lockwood and Elm avenues, Webster Groves, on the site of the old building now being wrecked, is expected to begin about Nov. 1.

The new building will be of brick and stone. Its design suggests the more substantial town halls of New England. Outstanding features are a portico of six stone columns, two stories high, and a clock tower. It will be two stories high, with quarters for the police department in the basement.

The building is to be T shaped, with two one-story wings at the side and another to the rear. It will be set well back on a large lot on which trees and shrubs are plentiful, and will be approached from a wide plaza. Within the entrance will be a large rotunda, from which corridors will radiate in three directions. A circular staircase will lead to the council chamber, the Mayor's office and committee rooms on the second floor.

Quarters for the police department, although in the basement, will be at the street level on Elm avenue because of the slope of the ground. A jail and garage space for three automobiles are to be provided for the police department.

The new building was authorized by voters who approved a $100,000 bond issue last July. The old city hall was a converted frame residence.

New Wolf-Pollack Salesman.

The Wolf-Pollack Real Estate Co. announces it has employed Barnard Stiffelman, formerly with the Tevis Motor Car Co., to handle commercial leases.

JIM MOONEY, NEW HURLER, REGISTERS HIS 7TH VICTORY

Cardinals and Farms Champions In Four Classes

THE victory yesterday of Rochester, which clinched the International League pennant for the Redwings, give the St. Louis Cardinals and their farms 1931 championships in the three highest baseball classes.

The Cardinals themsedves won the pennant in the National League, the major league. Rochester, a farm, is in Class AA. Houston, another farm, won the flag in the Texas League, Class A. Springfield, Mo., a third farm, won the pennant in the Western Association, Class C.

By J. Roy Stockton.

Jim Mooney, the stylish young left-hander who reported to Manager John McGraw in mid-August, scored his seventh victory for the Giants yesterday afternoon, beating the Cardinals in the third and final game of the series, 10 to 6. The triumph assured the New York team of second place money in the National League derby, as the Cubs could finish no better than third if they were to win all their remaining games and the Giants were to go through without another victory.

Mooney was supported by a strong batting attack. The Giants bombarded Flint Rhem for 10 hits and six runs in six innings and knocked Tony Kaufmann out of the box in the eighth, scoring four runs at his expense.

While Gabby Street's pitchers were being handled so roughly, Mooney was holding the Redbirds to nine safeties. With better support in the field the young southpaw would have won by an even larger margin.

Hafey Takes Batting Lead.

Chick Hafey, the slugging son of California, used the contest as a stepping stone to the batting leadership of the National League. He collected three singles in three trips to the plate and now sets the pace for the league hitters with a mark of .346, four points ahead of Bill Terry.

The Cardinals started the scoring. With one out in the second inning, Hafey singled to deep short and Martin walked. Mancuso's infield out advanced the runners and they scored when Leach dropped Gelbert's line drive.

New York took the lead in the fourth. Leach doubled and scored on Fullis' single and Fullis stole second and scored on Vergez's single. O'Farrell was safe on Gelbert's fumble and Marshall singled to score Vergez.

The Giants added another run in the fifth on singles by Allen and Leach, Allen crossing the plate while Terry was hitting into a double play.

Cardinals and Farms Champions In Four Classes

THE victory yesterday of Rochester, which clinched the International League pennant for the Redwings, give the St. Louis Cardinals and their farms 1931 championships in the three highest baseball classes.

The Cardinals themsedves won the pennant in the National League, the major league. Rochester, a farm, is in Class AA. Houston, another farm, won the flag in the Texas League, Class A. Springfield, Mo., a third farm, won the pennant in the Western Association, Class C.

By J. Roy Stockton.

Jim Mooney, the stylish young left-hander who reported to Manager John McGraw in mid-August, scored his seventh victory for the Giants yesterday afternoon, beating the Cardinals in the third and final game of the series, 10 to 6. The triumph assured the New York team of second place money in the National League derby, as the Cubs could finish no better than third if they were to win all their remaining games and the Giants were to go through without another victory.

Mooney was supported by a strong batting attack. The Giants bombarded Flint Rhem for 10 hits and six runs in six innings and knocked Tony Kaufmann out of the box in the eighth, scoring four runs at his expense.

While Gabby Street's pitchers were being handled so roughly, Mooney was holding the Redbirds to nine safeties. With better support in the field the young southpaw would have won by an even larger margin.

Hafey Takes Batting Lead.

Chick Hafey, the slugging son of California, used the contest as a stepping stone to the batting leadership of the National League. He collected three singles in three trips to the plate and now sets the pace for the league hitters with a mark of .346, four points ahead of Bill Terry.

The Cardinals started the scoring. With one out in the second inning, Hafey singled to deep short and Martin walked. Mancuso's infield out advanced the runners and they scored when Leach dropped Gelbert's line drive.

New York took the lead in the fourth. Leach doubled and scored on Fullis' single and Fullis stole second and scored on Vergez's single. O'Farrell was safe on Gelbert's fumble and Marshall singled to score Vergez.

The Giants added another run in the fifth on singles by Allen and Leach, Allen crossing the plate while Terry was hitting into a double play.

Walter Roettger doubled to drive in two runs to tie the score in the Top Flight is undoubtedly the best juvenile of the year. She packed her full weight, broke well, was rated along with the early pace, moved up and into lead in final three-sixteenths and, displaying a great burst of speed, rushed into long lead and won going away. Mad Pursuit broke last and slowly worked his way up in the middle of the track and finished with a good rush. He is a good colt. Morfair got away well in his stride, set a very fast pace, but quit badly in the final furlong. Pompeis, never far from the leader, finished with good courage. Tick On is best in the soft going. He closed gamely. Masked Knight was hustled along with the early pace, but weakened fast in stretch. Mad Frump showed a flash of speed, but was never a serious contender. Faireno was kept on the outside all the way. Semaphore and Curacao were both outrun. Burgoo King and Brandon Mint were trailers all the way.

Top Flight, win 6-5, place 2-5, show 1-6; Mad Pursuit, place 5-1, show 5-2; Morfair, show 1-2.

By the Associated Press.

BELMONT RACE TRACK, N. Y., Sept. 19.—Sweeping America's richest thoroughbred racing program, the silks of the Whitney clan flew high today at Belmont Park as three champions from the family's barns accounted for the $115,000 Futurity, the $32,000 Grand National Steeplechase and the $10,000 Jockey Club Gold Cup.

Top Flight, unbeaten filly, flying the famous Eton blue and brown capped colors of C. V. Whitney, led a classy field of two-year-olds home in the Futurity; Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Green Cheese outgamed a smart band of jumpers in the Grand National and Mrs Payne Whitney's Twenty Grand again won a galloping victory in the Gold Cup.

Filly Outclasses Field.

Twelve of the leading two-year-olds in training opposed Top Flight in the rich short seven-furlong dash down the Widener straightaway, but they were no match for the heavily burdened filly as she bounded away in the final furlong. Victor Emanuel's Morfair kept pace and at one time led the Whitney miss, which went to the post the even money favorite, but at the judges' stand was back in third place as Walter J. Salmon's Mad Pursuit closed fast to finish two lengths back of the winner. Morfair was a length back of Mad Pursuit with W. R. Coe's Pompeius leading the remainder of the pack.

In accounting for her sixth straight victory, Top Flight left no doubt as to her right to rule the juvenile division. She carried 127 pounds, the largest package ever picked up by a filly, and reeled off the distance in 1:21 to earn the major share of the purse, amounting to $94,780. The triumph sent her total earnings soaring to $162,830, only about $12,000 short of the amount won by Princess Doreen, leading American money winner of her sex.

It Runs in the Family.

The youthful master of the blue and brown silks was the third generation of the Whitney family to see his colors carried to victory in the classic juvenile event. W. C. Whitney, his grandfather, won the event for the first time with Ballyhoo Bey in 1900 and Harry Payne Whitney, his father, repeated with Pennant, Thunderer, Bunting, Mother Goose and Whichone.

Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Green Cheese, considered no better than a 12 to 1 shot to capture the gruelling steeplechase test over three miles, started the Whitney silks on their march to victory. Green Cheese just nosed out A. C. Schwartz's Cree, with Mrs. T. W. Durant's Sydney, the 5-to-2 favorite, back in third place. In winning he established a new track record of 5:39 2-5. Roger McKinney, an amateur rider, kept Green Cheese back of the pace for the greater part of the test over the 19 jumps and the flat, but after taking the last fence sent him up fast to nip Cree in the final strides. The victory was worth $28,250 to the winner.

Cleveland Sandlotters Win.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 19.—Cleveland sandlotters won the first game of their playoff for the national amateur baseball championship here today by defeating Cincinnati, 15 to 2. It was Cleveland's seventh straight victory in the National Baseball Federation tournament here. The playoff consists of a two-out-of-three series.

Nurmi Wins 1500-Meter.

WARSAW, Poland, Sept. 19.—Paavo Nurmi, Finnish athlete, ran 1500 meters today in 15 minutes 8.2 seconds, beating the Polish runner Kusocinsky, by a yard in a meet here.

Wray's COLUMN

Just Another Fight.

ONE of the important heavyweight boxing events of the year is scheduled next Wednesday at the Chicago Stadium, where Ernie Schaaf meets Tuffy Griffiths.

Schaaf is a hope who is rapidly approaching that point when he deserves a serious test. Tuffy is it. The boys all say that Schaaf will have plenty of trouble. All we can say is: Ho, hum!

There are two reasons for this view. One is that Griffiths, having realized that he can't break any hard eggs in the heavyweight class, has been resigning himself to the attitude of making a "good showing." That means making the other fellow look bad. He did that against Stribling. And as Stribling was in the ring with the same idea, the result was appalling.

Griffiths is, to this writer at least, an exploded phenomenon. The boxing world sat up and took notice when Jack Sharkey, two or more years ago, dignified Tuffy by refusing to meet him. Sharkey's reasons were economic, not fistic. But the boxing world took it that Jack was AFRAID of Tuffy. Yeah—about like a wild cat is afraid of chinchilla muff.

The other reason for the believing that the Griffith-Schaaf fight may be uninteresting is that Schaaf, while he has shown a knockout punch against targets that will stay put, has not shown the alertness necessary to corner a fighter like Griffiths, who does not want to be hit. Ernie's record is against him.

If he should break down Griffiths' famous clutch defense and knock him out, we'll be prepared to back water and take off the chapeau. We will then believe that there is a new heavyweight genius in the world named Schaaf.

Jack Is Logical.

JACK Sharkey is on record with the statement that he will "quit the ring if Carnera beats me."

That's a waste of breath. Sharkey having previously called Carnera "cheese" and a "big bum," would necessarily be worse than either if Primo beats him.

Lefty Reached the Top.

LEFTY GROVE has definitely established himself as the greatest pitcher of all time. Not only was he the first of the portsiders to win 30 victories in a season, but he proved willing, dependable and enduring.

There is every reason to believe that Grove will work in three world series games, or at least in parts of three, because of his tremendous power, his steadiness and stamina. That brands Lefty with the hall mark of Perpetual Fame.

Waddell? Well, the old boys

CREAVY BEATS SHUTE FOR PROFESSIONAL TITLE

20-YEAR-OLD ALBANY STAR WINS, 2 AND 1, IN 36 HOLES

By the Associated Press.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 19.—Tom Creavy, 20-year-old Albany, N. Y., professional, today won the professional Golfers' Association 36-hole championship match, defeating the seasoned Densmore Shute of Hudson, O., by two and one on the difficult Wannamoisett course.

This highly exacting competition, which demands an entire week of airtight golf, and its $1000 first prize went to the Albany youngster because his marvelous approach shots were more effective than the deadly accurate putting that Shute employed to defeat the world's outstanding champions, Tommy Armour, British open winner, and Billy Burke, holder of the American open title, on two successive days.

Shute's Putting Spectacular.

Shute's greens work against Creavy was even more spectacular than against Armour and Burke on yesterday and the day before. Denny, during the 35 holes, used his putter only 58 times and had 10 one-putt greens. He sank 10 and 15 footers with amazing ease and on the twenty-fifth hole he got a birdie three by canning one that was fully 25 feet from the pin. This achievement, although Shute made it appear easy, stunned the gallery and caused Mrs. Shute, who stood in the front row, to scream excitedly and loudly.

That sharp-shooting, however, could not be compared with Creavy's chip and explosion shots. He put them so close to the pin that he had to putt only once on 15 greens and only 54 times during the entire match.

Both Creavy and Shute, had many lapses getting over the fairways. They trapped many drives on the numerous tricky short holes and sometimes were ragged with their distance irons. Tom carded a 73, three over par, on his morning round, which contained three birdies, and used up 68 strokes on the 17 afternoon holes, cracking par on two of them.

Shute's morning trip, during which he snared a pair of birdies, gave him a 76 and in the afternoon, when he shot three more birdies he required 67 blows.

Shute Rallies.

Two down at lunch, Denny gamely set after the approach shot wizard early in the second round and, by holing extra long putts, on the nineteenth and twenty-fifth for birdies, cut Creavy's lead in half.

Creavy met this challenge by snaring birdies on his own, on the twenty-eighth and twenty-ninth, and his par three on the thirtieth put him four up on his valiant foeman. This three-hole sweep spurred Shute on to greater efforts and he captured the next hole with a par four, and when Creavy missed a short putt, halved the thirty-second in fives. He became only one down by winning the thirty-third with an 18-footer, which gave him a birdie deuce, and the next with a par four, when Creavy blew another short putt after chipping almost dead to the pin.

Then Shute tossed away his last chance to win. He had the honor and hooked his drive into the rough. Then, gambling with a spoon, he put his second shot outside the fairway and it cost him a stroke to get back on. He reached the green in four and took the usual two putts, dropping the hole to the now cautious Albany boy, who played safe for the par five that ended the match.

Argentine Four Beats Hurricanes, 11-8, for U. S. Open Polo Title

By the Associated Press.

WESTBURY, N. Y., Sept. 19.—The Santa Paula four, Argentine polo champions, galloped to victory today over the Anglo-American Hurricanes, 11 to 8, and won the United States open polo championship. The result was a big upset and gave Argentina the title for the second time in 10 years.

Santa Paula scored a smashing triumph despite handicaps, including the loss of their regular No. 1. Their captain and back, Manuel Andrada, played despite an injured shoulder and hand but was a tower of strength. Andrada scored five goals and was easily the outstanding star.

The Hurricanes, defending champions, were on the defensive from the outset. They tied the score four times but never were in the lead, despite the most sensational efforts of their 10-goal ace, Captain "Pat" Roark.

Argentina last won the United States open in 1922. The victory of the South Americans today aroused tremendous enthusiasm and the blue-shirted riders were given an ovation by 20,000 spectators.

FAVORITE LOSES BY A HEAD; 'DAILY DOUBLE' PAYS $78; 8000 ATTEND OPENING CARD

Gracious Gift, showing excellent form under 102 pounds, accounted for the Jefferson Hotel Handicap, feature of the opening day's racing at Fairmount yesterday afternoon. The F. T. Carpenter gelding, second choice in the betting, after being outpaced in the early running of the six-furlong event, came around the tiring Flag Bearer at the stretch turn and under urging challenged Malolo, the leader. But it was only after a sharp drive that lasted all through the match that Gracious Gift was able to score.

Just before reaching the finsh Malolo, evidently finding his impost of 123 pounds burdensome, tired slightly and Gracious Gift was the winner by a short head. Lary Seth earned third money. The feature carried a purse value of $1500, with $1000 to the winner in addition to a cup.

The day's sport which ushered in the 23-day meeting compared well with the opening day last year, both from point of attendance and well-contested races. The crowd, rather slow to arrive, doubtless on account of the warm weather, was estimated at 8000, most of whom remained for the entire program.

Outside of the racing events the installation of the "Daily Double" as a means of extra mutuel speculation easily attracted the most attention. The second and third races were designaed as the two events for the special pool and the patrons lined up early at the specified windows where tickets were sold. The winners of the races, Bill Orange and Jack Collins, paid the holders of "daily double" tickets who had designated those horses, $78.49. A parlay on the two winners would have returned $63.26.

Reno Rides Two Winners.

Jockey T. Reno, an apprentice, distinguished himself by riding two winners, on both of which he displayed good horsemenship. The first, Title Oak, a one-time member of the Oak Ridge Stable, an Eastern owned establishment, won through Reno's staying in on the rail, where he saved considerable ground and was able to come through on the inside after reaching the stretch. His other winner, Judge Direnzo, was likewise handled smartly.

Favorites and outsiders divided the card. Title Oak in the first, Bill Orange in the second and Peter in the last, all paying big returns. Of these Peter was the longest shot of the day to win, he paying $26.24. Jack Collins, a favorite, won the third; Hoops, another choice, took the fourth, while Rejuvenation and Judge Direnzo, both well back, accounted for the sixth and seventh.

Judge Direnzo Wins Good Race.

Judge Direnzo's winning effort was rather noteworthy. He was in close pursuit of Shark around the first turn and half way down the back stretch, finally racing that horse into submission. Then at the stretch turn Morocco, coming with one of his famed stretch runs, gave a serious challenge on the inside. Judge Direnzo disposed of him, however, only to be ridden out sharply to withstand a last sixteenth rush of Don Fernando, which almost nipped the Judge right at the wire. In fact, the racer showed considerable gameness throughout the race under the hustling ride that Reno gave him.

The defeat of Nichelson by Bill Orange in the second race came right at the finish. Nichelson had assumed the lead after turning for home, and after a drive to put away Bill Cain's Alamae. This he did but his rider apparently was taking it easily in the last 50 yards and when Bill Orange closing with a rush came alongside the horse was unable to respond to another drive and Bill Orange nailed him right at the finish. Merry Windsor, a wonner of 10 races this year and owned by John T. Ireland, one of the racing stewards, who absented himself from the stewards' stand during the running of that race, as is his usual custom, set a fast pace all down the backstretch, but quit badly after Alamae had challenged and passed her.

There were four races over a distance of ground during the afternoon, two of them being at a mile and an eighth. They were the sixth and eighth, the last being a split of the former, which had received enough entries to make two contests instead of one.

The track was in good condition and the time in most of the races was fair. Gracious Gift's six furlongs in 1:12 3-5 being the best race of the day.

NOTES.

It was reported that 55 tickets were sold on the winning combination of Bill Orange and Jack Collins in the newly installed "Daily Double."

The construction of a new bridge on Route 16 over the creek that runs just west of the track has caused automobile traffic to take a short detour through the parking grounds of the Fairmount Jockey Club. A fence has been built to guide motorists in making this short detour.

ATHLETICS PASS 1930 RECORD OF 102 VICTORIES

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 19.—Taking both ends of a double-header today and sweeping the three-game series with the Chicago White Sox, the World Champion Athletics tied and passed their 1930 total of 102 victories. The Mackmen won by scores of 10 to 3 and 3 to 1.

Al Simmons strengthened his claim to his second straight American League batting championship by poling out six hits in eight times at bat in the two games. He hit two singles, a double and his twenty-first home run of the season in the opening game and connected for two singles in the closer.

Third Baseman Irvine Jeffries of the White Sox suffered a dislocated elbow and lacerations of the forehead and knees when he crashed into the grand stand going after a foul ball in the first game. He was given treatment at a hospital.

In the first game the Athletics had their full championship line-up on the field with the exception of Boley for the first time in weeks.

JOHNNY MILES SECOND IN CANADIAN OLYMPIC MARATHON TRIAL

By the Associated Press.

HAMILTON, Ont., Sept. 19.—Harold Webster of Hamilton today won the Olympic trial marathon race, coming from behind after 18 miles of the grind to finish ahead of a clubmate, Johnny Miles, former Halifax runner. M. Anderson of Calgary was third.

Webster's time for the 26 miles, 385 yards was two hours, 37 minutes, 46 seconds, a record for the local Marathon course.

By placing first and second today, Webster and Miles were virtually assured of places on the Canadian Olympic team, which will compete at Los Angeles in 1932.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—The Browns made a sad finish of their New York series this afternoon showing no punch and being shut out by George Pipgras, 3 to 0.

It was the Yankees' eighth straight victory and the second shutout one of their pitchers has attained in the series, Ruffing having worked the whitewash brush in Thursday's first game.

But there was one bright spot for Boss Killefer. He sent Bob Cooney, his youngest right-hander, to the box and the ex-collegian gave Pipgras a battle every step of the way until he was taken out for a pinch hitter in the eighth. Cooney gave seven hits, held Ruth to one blow (a single) and sent Lou Gehrig back hitless in four trips to the plate. The lesser members of the Yankees gave him trouble, however, for a three-bagger by Chapman in the second was followed by a double by Dickey and another three-bagger by Lazzeri in the seventh was bunched with a single by Combs. The second run was no fault of the pitcher's.

Cooney had a lot of speed and showed remarkable poise for a youngster.

The Yankees took two hits from Chad Kimsey in the one inning he worked and the last hit, by Chapman, resulted in the best show of the afternoon. The Yankee flash stole second, then stole third, each time beating fine throws by Bengough, and finally attempted to steal home. This time he was out, for Kimsey got the ball to Bengough just in time to let the catcher kneel Chapman over for the last out. The steals were Chapman's sixtieth and sixty-first of the year.

The Browns got only four hits and had few scoring chances. When they did Old Man Gloom put a damper on them as some Yankee pulled a sensational play. A blazing double-play saved Pipgras in the second and a one-hand stab by Lary on Burns' blow in the sixth killed another scoring chance. Melillo batted fiercely into a force play in the fourth after Goslin and Kress had singled.

The Browns departed tonight for Boston, where they have a double-header scheduled for tomorrow.

Today's victory gave New York undisputed possession of second place as Washington lost and dropped to third. Also, the Browns dropped to seventh.

HORSESHOE PITCHING TOURNEY A FEATURE OF DAIRY SHOW

Entry blanks for the National Dairy Show horseshoe pitching championship to be held at The Arena Oct. 10 to 18, as a feature of the Silver Anniversary National Dairy Exposition, have been sent out by Jack H. Claves, president of the Municipal Horseshoe Pitchers' League and chairman of the Dairy Show Horseshoe Committee.

The National Horseshoe Pitchers' Association rules will govern the tournament and entrants must shoot 100 shoes between Oct. 12 and 17 to qualify. There will be cash prizes of $10 and $5 each day for the two scoring the highest points in the qualification rounds and the eight highest scorers will play, round robin, in the finals on Oct. 18, the winner to be declared the National Dairy Show champion.

Cash prizes in the finals will be: First, $100; second, $85; third, $75; fourth, $50; fifth, $40; sixth, $25; seventh, $20, and eighth, $15.

The tournament will mark the first time in the 25 years' history of the National Dairy Association that horseshoe pitching has been made a feature of the show.

FREE WHEELING AND HONEY DEW NINES IN TITLE CONTEST TODAY

The deciding game of the Municipal Baseball Association championship series will be played at Fairground Park this afternoon when the Free Wheeling and Honey Dew team meet for the third time. The game starts at 3 o'clock.

With both teams having scored a sensational victory, another close and exciting battle is expected. Free Wheeling won the opening game, 4 to 3, after 11 innings, while the Honey Dews took last Sunday's encounter, 10 to 9, with a six-run rally in the ninth.

In the games played between these teams the Honey Dews have shown a better hitting attack, having amassed 26 hits as against 19 by Free Wheeling. In the first game they led in hits, 11 to 10, while Free Wheeling made but nine hits to the Honey Dews' 15 in the second contest. The Honey Dews also have the edge in fielding with only three errors against six.

Del Gehner, who has allowed but two hits in the eight innings he has worked, has been the most effective pitcher and will no doubt shoulder the Honey Dew hurling duties in the final game. George Govenant, who except for his ninth-inning performance last Sunday, has been effective, is expected to make his third start for the Free Wheelings.

The Mohawk and De Bellis teams will play the deciding game of the intermediate championship when they meet in the third game of the series starting at 12:30 p. m. The De Bellis team won the first game, 11 to 4, while the Mohawks reversed the decision last Sunday, defeating De Bellis, 10 to 7.

The games this afternoon will be played to a free gate.

South Broadway To Hold Amateur Program, Oct. 1

Amateur boxing will get started here indoors on Oct. 1 when the South Broadway A. C. has scheduled its first show opening the Mississippi Valley Association season, but on next Tuesday night a team of amateurs identified with the A. A. U. will go to Kansas City to meet a team there. Dan O'Keefe, coach of the Business Men's A. C., is being sought as coach.

Among those going to Kansas City are Leslie Schulte, former junior heavyweight champion of the United States, Pete Little and Harry Greb of the Business Men's A. C.

It is planned to send a team of A. A. U. boxers to New Orleans in December.

Willie Miller, matchmaker of the South Broadway A. C., is planning a return match between Tony Viviano, senior flyweight champion of the Mississippi Valley, and Ocie Merritt, junior titleholder, for one of four special bouts. Viviano scored a technical knockout over Merritt in the third round of their previous battle, while in a return engagement Merrit forced Viviano to go an extra round before winning the decision.

Another special is planned between Freddy Willen, junior lightweight champion of the Mississippi Valley ,and Tex Saunders of the East St. Louis Knights of Columbus.

St. Louis U. Varsity Shows Real Power in Defeating Sturdy Freshman Team, 68-0

By James M. Gould.

Showing four fine sets of backs and practically three interchangeable lines, all in apparently fine physical condition, the St. Louis U. varsity eleven yesterday steam-rolled the freshmen team in four full 15-minute quarters, 68-0. The enthusiasm over the excellent early-season showing of the varsity Billikens was somewhat tempered by an accident to Carl Pike, first-string quarterback. The game was played at Walsh Memorial Stadium.

Pike was directing the team and, carrying the ball, accidentally was kicked in the face by one of his tacklers. He was taken to St. John's Hospital with a probable fracture of the left cheek bone. Pike probably will be out of action for the first regular game of the season, scheduled for next Friday night with James Millikin at the Walsh Memorial Stadium.

In Every Quarter.

The varsity scored in every quarter and, in the final period, earned 25 points to add to the 43 rather evenly distributed through the first three.

Coach Walsh used nearly every man of his varsity 38. Pike, Feldman, Bassett and Thompson shared the quarterback role, with Feldman doing most of the work after the injury to Pike. Naturally, in a high-scoring game, the backs took most of the limelight and the 11 touchdowns—only two kicks for points after touchdowns were good—were made by Rapp, Schumacher, McCoole, Stephan, Arenz, La Presta and Donohue.

Not once was the varsity forced to kick, so the choice of a kicker for the regular season still is "open." The Freshmen only once had the ball in varsity territory and that was in the third quarter when they recovered a fumble.

Reports of the power of the St. Louis team resulted in an attendance of nearly 1000, a fair enough attendance for any opening game but, in this case, of course, bringing in no revenue.

Perhaps there was a bit of stiffness in backfield play. The best set of backs in action were Pike at quarter, Salinsky at full and Schumacher and Stephan at the halves. This is the most experienced four under Walsh's command and, as a unit, they functioned smoothly.

The Score Sheet.

The Freshman held the varsity to 12 points in the opening quarter, let them gain 19 in the second, held them again to 12 in the third and then, thoroughly tired out under the heavy pounding, were hit for 25 in the fourth quarter.

Schumacher, Stephan, Rapp, Arenz, McCoole and LaPresta tore around end and through line for many long runs. The showing of Schumacher and Hoy, the latter a sophomore, was especially pleasing.

'CHILE' WALSH MADE DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS AT ST. LOUIS U.

Charles F. Walsh, now in his second year as head coach of the St. Louis University football team, last night was appointed director of athletics by the Rev. Robert Johnston, S. J., president of the university. Walsh will continue to direct football but also will have complete charge of the sport program of the school.

WALSH

Walsh, known to football followers as "Chile," is a product of Notre Dame and, under the late Knute Rockne, became one of the great ends of the game. When "Hunk" Anderson, now senior coach at Notre Dame, became coach at St. Louis U. four years ago, Walsh was his assistant and, last year, succeeded him as head coach.

Walsh's appointment marks a change in policy at St. Louis. In past years, the director of athletics has been a member of the clergy and of the university faculty. Walsh's direct predecessor was Father Dean Conway, recently transferred to Rockhurst College at Kansas City.

Announcement also was made that Robert Finch, for 10 years at Drake University at Des Moines, Ia., had been named business manager of athletics for the football season. He will have charge of tickets and all arrangements for all games.

Walsh, naturally pleased at his appointment, said that, for the present, emphasis would be put on football. "We intend to have a full sport program in force at St. Louis, including track and baseball. But, first, it will be necessary to put most of our stress on football in order to gain the income necessary to install these additional sports. I feel that we have a fine personnel and I am looking forward to loyal support from alumni and undergraduates."

HAFEY TAKES LEAD IN BATTING; CARDS LOSE TO GIANTS, 10—6

home half. Gelbert singled, but was forced by Rhem. Adams singled to center and Roettger then doubled to right center.

Giants Pound Kaufmann.

It didn't take the Giants long to break the tie. Vergez led off in the sixth with a single to right and on O'Farrell's grounder to short, both runners were safe when Vergez beat Gelbert's throw to Flowers. Marshall doubled to left center, scoring Vergez, and Allen's infield out sent O'Farrell home.

Kaufmann, who went to the hill in the seventh, breezed through that inning, but was pounded in the eighth. Vergez singled to center and on O'Farrell's bunt Vergez beat Mancuso's throw to second. Marshall singled to center, scoring Vergez and O'Farrell scored while Mooney was forcing Marshall at second. Singles by Allen and Leach filled the bases and after Stout replaced Kaufmann ,Terry singled to right, scoring Mooney and Allen.

The Cards scored their final brace of runs in the eighth on Hafy's single to short, Martin's double to left and two long flies.

Redbird Notes.

THE battery for the Cardinals this afternoon will be Johnson and Street. Sylvester will be the pitcher and Gabby, the old Sergeant, will be behind the plate for four or five innings of the opening game with the Robins.

The Giants' final game of the season at St. Louis attracted 6389 cash customers and a new record of 2320 girls, who saw the game as guests of Sam Breadon.

Melvin Ott, who was hit on the head by a pitched ball thrown by Burleigh Grimes Friday afternoon, was reported much improved last night, but he will remain at St. John's Hospital for several days under observation. His bride of less than a year arrived last evening, having departed from their New York home on receiving news of his injury.

Five events will be on the field meet program before the game today. The program and Cardinal entries in each event follow:

75-yard dash—Martin, Orsatti, Gelbert, Hafey, Adams, Watkins, Flowers, Cunningham and Wilson.

Circling the bases—Martin, Collins, Orsatti, Frisch, Watkins and Gelbert.

75-yard dash for pitchers—Kaufmann, Stout, Rhem, Grimes, Hallahan and Derringer.

Accurate throwing contest for catchers—Street, Wilson, Gonzales and Mancuso.

Cardinal Pitchers Have Allowed Fewer Runs a Game Than Connie Mack's Stars

Birds' Hurlers Have Permitted 3.8 Tallies, While Grove and Co. Have Yielded 4.1 Each Contest.

By Herman Wecke.

Records for the season indicate that two well matched teams will fight it out for world baseball supremacy in the classic starting at Sportsman's Park, between the Cardinals and Athletics, Oct. 1.

Statistics show that as teams over a season's play, there is very little to choose between the pair. For instance, the Athletics own a batting average of .286, whereas the mark for the Redbirds is .282. The fielding figures are .977 for the Mackmen and .974 for the Cardinals. In both departments there is a slight advantage in favor of the American Leaguers.

But all the advantage is not with the present world champions. Everyone will admit that Lefty Grove is a great pitcher—probably the best in the majors in many years. Grove's work, however, does not make up for the loose twirling of some of the other members of Mack's supposed "great" staff, and as a whole, the Cardinal hill men have stopped the enemy with fewer runs than have those of the Athletics.

Figures on Runs.

This is true in spite of the fact that Grove in winning 30 games and losing but three, has held his opponents to fewer than three runs a battle. Figures show that in the first 147 games played by the Redbirds, the enemy tallied 572 runs, an average of 3.8 a game. The Athletic pitchers, on the other hand, in the first 145 contests played (one was a 0-0 tie) permitted 590 scores, or 4.1 each battle.

It's a very narrow margin in favor of Gabby Street's men, but it is nevertheless there, and it indicates that the Redbirds' hill staff is well able to take care of itself.

Offensively, the margin is with the Athletics, the team having scored 822 runs, or 5.7 a game, against 776 tallies, an average of 5.3 for the Cardinals.

However, if the teams play up to their season's performances in the title competition, it should result in one of the closest series since 1926, when the Cardinals, kees for the National League's last victory in the competition. Since then the American League in winning four straight has chalked up 16 victories against but three for the Pirates, Cubs and Cardinals, representatives of the John Heydler circuit in these classics.

If outstanding stars were to win the world series, then Mack's team would have to be favored by a wide majority since there are no Lefty Groves, Al Simmons or Mickey Cochranes on the Cardinal club. But stars do not always live up to expectations in the title contests.

Team-play Will Count.

The Cardinals, however, have been playing as a unit all year. No one man has stood out in the

Cards Have Turned 159 Double Plays To 144 for Macks

THAT the second base combination of the Cardinals, consisting of Frank Frisch and Charley Gelbert, is speedier than any set which Connie Mack can employ in the world series, is indicated by the fact that the Redbirds this season have turned 159 double plays, or 15 more than the Athletics.

The Redbirds have continued to chalk up two-ply killings, even when Gabby Street has called upon his second stringers.

American League Champions Have Outscored Street's Men — Athletic Lead in Hitting and Fielding.

under Rogers Hornsby, went to t seventh game to defeat the Ya success of the club. All the pitch ers have had their chances. That the reason that Grimes and Derringer are tied in victories with 1 each, while Hallahan has 18. Grove, Earnshaw and Walberg form Mack's big three. They have won more battles than any three on the Cardinal club, but also they have worked oftener. They labored especially hard earlier in the campaign, when the Athletics work up their big advantage. But Wa berg has not bten doing so well late, having dropped five straight before beating the White Sox yesterday. Maybe the heavy work Walberg was given early in the year has taken its toll.

None of the Cardinal pitchers is suffering from overwork. Gabby Street for most of the year was able to give his regulars almost a week's rest between battles. That may be one of the reasons why each member of Mack's "Big Three" owns more triumphs than any member of the Cardinal hurling corps.

One thing may work in favor of the Cardinals. That is the fact that Frankie Frisch, Jim Bottomley and Chick Hafey have only recently hit their best stride. If they continue this in the world series there's no telling what may happen. The Athletics may or may not be at their best. Simmons, Foxx, Boley, Bishop and Dykes have been out quite a bit this season. They were important factors in the victory over the Redbirds last season. If they are not at top form it may work to the advantage of the Redbirds.

still tell about his wonderful southpaw pitching feats; of his tremendous speed and strikeout stuff; and how he would wave in the outfielders so that he could finish by striking out the enemy or at least forcing them to tap to the infield.

But in the printed history Waddell does not show up anything like Grove. One of the strangest things to note is that the Rube's name does not appear in the world series records, although he was at his best in 1905 when he helped pitch the Macks into the championship. Waddell was not permitted to pitch, the world series burden having been borne by Pitchers Bender, Plank and Coakley.

Great In Defeat.

EDDIE PLANK was a great hurler, but not as durable or as effective as Grove. Lefty is almost a pitching staff in himself and the Cardinals will be fortunate on Oct. 1 if, in facing Lefty, they are able to win the opening contest—or any subsequent one, as we see it.

This writer saw Grove pitch against the Browns and lose; but he was a tremendous pitcher in defeat. Only some very fortunate breaks and fielding boggles caused his downfall then.

His record indicates that unless the opposing team gets a few breaks, beating Lefty is just as easy as re-financing Europe. With an earned run efficiency average of two, and winning record of .909 for an entire season, it will take a miracle team to tame him.

But miracles happen. Look at Gabby Street!

What About Babe?

CARDINAL fans, feeling certain that the reluctance of managers to use "freshman" pitchers will not keep Gabby from using Derringer, are asking about the dope on first year pitchers, particularly the world series feat of Babe Adams of Pittsburg.

Some time ago in this column the suggestion was made that Derringer might prove to be the Babe Adams of the series and win three games. Adams pulled that trick in 1909, beating Detroit in the first, fifth and seventh games.

Adams beat the three great pitchers of the Tiger staff—Mullin, Donovan and Summers, Mullin being the only opposing pitcher to stay the entire route.

Derringer could face the Athletics three times provided he were used in the first or second game, sent back on Monday or Tuesday and then ordered in again on either Oct. 9 or 10.

That he may get a chance to do this is indicated by the injury to Haines and by the failure of that great old warrior Grimes to register up to his standard of last year. The club hopes to have both men at their best by October. However, there is a good chance that Haines will not have recovered fully, compelling the use of a first year man.

Well, if they use him, we look for Derringer to give 'em both barrels.

"My Error," Jackie.

JACKIE CALLAHAN, who proved that he had something under his hat besides hair by getting out of the fight game early, points out that the 15-round bout to be fought here next Wednesday at The Arena will not be the first at this distance since the days of the old West End Club in 1905.

"My eyes can't betray me that bad," commented Callahan. "I saw two or three of them along about 1921. One in particular was between Johnny Noye of St. Paul and Joe McMullen. What helps me remember it was the surprising decision in favor of McMullen, made by the referee, Noye won all the way, but McMullen got the nod.

"Harry Kabakoff also fought what was to have been a 15-round bout against Artie Root, but it ended in the thirteenth when Kabby won by a knockout. There was another 15 rounder and this one you surely ought to recall—one between Harry Kabakoff and Kid Bandy."

About this time the 'phone rang and to show that fight minds run in the same channel, none other than Kid Bandy was on the wire.

"Boy, you're all wet about that 15-round situation," he volunteered. "They did fight 15 rounds because I was in one of them man-killers myself and the notch was moved up from 12 to 15 rounds just to make sure of a decisive test as between Kabby and me," Bandy explained. "You see, Kabby and I had fought a couple of eight-round bouts and a 12-round affair and the fans decided that it would take a 15-rounder to decide the winner. We fought and the newspapers disagreed about the verdict as I recall it."

A Bird of a Meet.

IT goes without saying that the baseball field day which the Robins and Redbirds will indulge in this afternoon will be a bird of a meet.

Fans who measure baseball by the base runner's fleetness, by the long hits of a batter or the miracle throwing arms of the outfielders will find plenty to interest them in such contests.

Pepper Martin's flying spikes Chick Hafey's tremendous distance throwing and hitting will be hard to surpass.

Circling the bases, another event on the program, is one that grips the attention of the observer. It is surprising how few persons can guess even close to the time required to make the circuit, touching all sacks.

A fleet runner, starting from a bunt, ought to get down to first in something under four seconds. But it does not follow that he can make all the sacks at the same rate. The runner is compelled to turn wide. The actual circuit covers considerably more ground than the 120 yards of base-to-base measurement.

St. Louisan Holds Record.

The record for this event is held by a St. Louis boy, Maurice Archdeacon, who, on Sept. 1, 1921, set the record at 13 2-5 seconds. A truly remarkable performance, this, when we consider that the time on the straightaway for 120 yards is 11 3-5 seconds, held by the great Negro sprinter, Howard Drew. Considering the three turns taken and the greater distance the base circler traveled, not to mention the fact that Archdeacon ran in full baseball paraphernalia, his performance seems great enough to stand for some time to come.

Revive National Meet.

INCIDENTALLY, why would it not be a good plan to revive these field meets on a nationwide scale, by having events precede the world series contests?

That would stimulate interest in all phases of baseball performance and also help seat the big crowds that attend series games at an earlier hour.

PRINCESS C

UNENCUMBERED CLOSE SECOND IN $5000 RACE AT LINCOLN FIELDS

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—It looks like a filly year among the two-year-olds of the country.

Princess Camelia snatched victory by a neck from Unencumbered, owned by Herbert Woolf of Kansas City, with Colonial Belle, owned by Anthony Pelleteri of New Orleans, third.

The winner sprinted the seven furlongs in 1:24 4-5. It was the first time the juveniles were raced seven furlongs in the West this season.

Nine two-year-olds went to the post with Liberty Limited, the $35,000 colt owned by W. T. Waggoner of Arlington, Tex., absent. It was discovered at noon that Liberty Limited had a badly filled forleg which means he probably will not race again this year.

Princess Camelia was coupled with her stablemate Prince Farthing as an entry, and ruled the favorite, paying $5.18 to win, $3.02 to place and $2.56 to show. Unencumbered paid $4.92 to place.

With nine starters, the Dearborn had a gross value of $7360, with $5490 going to Owner Leiter.

Princess Camelia was ridden by Jockey Landolt, who was forced to give the filly a determined ride at the stretch to get the decision. In 13 starts this year Princess Camelia has won seven races and finished out of the money only three times.

On Sir, owner by James G. Norris, set the early pace, followed by I Say.

WOMEN'S NATIONAL GOLF TOURNEY OPENS AT BUFFALO TOMORROW

By the Associated Press.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 19.—Quiet reigned tonight along the front where on Monday the big guns of the premier women golfers of the world will boom forth.

The Buffalo Country Club, scene of the thirty-fifth annual playing of the Women's National Amateur Championship has rung during the past two days, to the smashing drives of Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, who will seek her sixth national title; the accurately placed iron shots of Miss Enid Wilson, who will seek to take the title back to England with her and the superb play of Miss Maureen Orcutt, Canadian champion.

In addition to this mighty triumvirate more than a score of outstanding golfers have tested the rugged hills and gulleys of the championship layout and are prepared to do battle for Mrs. Vare's throne. Miss Helen Hicks, Miss Virginia Van Wie, Mrs. Leona Pressler, Mrs. O. S. Hill, Miss June Beebe, Miss Jane Weiller, Martha Parker, Marion Hollins, Mrs. Marion Turpie Lake, Peggy Attles, Margaret Curtiss, Bernice Wall and Mrs. Leo Federman, all champions in their own districts, are among the title seekers. Most of the contenders shot their final practice rounds today and will spend tomorrow resting for the six days of strife ahead.

The opening day's play will consist of a medal play round, the best 32 scores to qualify. Beginning Tuesday, 18-hole match play will be the order until Saturday, when the finalists will meet in a 36-hole battle.

Tulane Line to Average 195 Pounds

under Rogers Hornsby, went to the seventh game to defeat the Yan... success of the club. All the pitchers have had their chances. That's the reason that Grimes, and Derringer are tied in victories with 17 each, while Hallahan has 18. Grove, Earnshaw and Walberg form Mack's big three. They have won more battles than any three on the Cardinal club, but also they have worked oftener. They labored especially hard earlier in the campaign, when the Athletics worked up their big advantage. But Walberg has not been doing so well of late, having dropped five straight, before beating the White Sox yesterday. Maybe the heavy work Walberg was given early in the year has taken its toll.

None of the Cardinal pitchers is suffering from overwork. Gabby Street for most of the year was able to give his regulars almost a week's rest between battles. That may be one of the reasons why each member of Mack's "Big Three" owns more triumphs than any member of the Cardinal hurling corps.

One thing may work in favor of the Cardinals. That is the fact that Frankie Frisch, Jim Bottomley and Chick Hafey have only recently hit their best stride. If they continue this in the world series, there's no telling what may happen. The Athletics may or may not be at their best. Simmons, Foxx, Boley, Bishop and Dykes have been out quite a bit this season. They were important factors in the victory over the Redbirds last season. If they are not at top form it may work to the advantage of the Redbirds.

Handball Matches Today.

The semifinals in the City Outdoor Handball tournament will be played in Forest Park today near the Pavilion, east of Jefferson Memorial, starting at 1 o'clock. Roth and Molof oppose Hovorka and Westerman in one contest while Widener and Fischer meet Tolstoi and Cohen in the other. The winners will play the finals next Sunday.

1921, set the record at 13 2-5 seconds. A truly remarkable performance, this, when we consider that the time on the straightaway for 120 yards is 11 3-5 seconds, held by the great Negro sprinter, Howard Drew. Considering the three turns taken and the greater distance the base circler traveled, not to mention the fact that Archdeacon ran in full baseball paraphernalia, his performance seems great enough to stand for some time to come.

Revive National Meet.

INCIDENTALLY, why would it not be a good plan to revive these field meets on a nationwide scale, by having events precede the world series contests?

That would stimulate interest in all phases of baseball performance and also help seat the big crowds that attend series games at an earlier hour.

PRINCESS CAMELIA FIRST BY NECK IN THE DEARBORN HANDICAP

UNENCUMBERED CLOSE SECOND IN $5000 RACE AT LINCOLN FIELDS

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—It looks like a filly year among the two-year-olds of the country.

Princess Camelia snatched victory by a neck from Unencumbered, owned by Herbert Woolf of Kansas City, with Colonial Belle, owned by Anthony Pelleteri of New Orleans, third.

The winner sprinted the seven furlongs in 1:24 4-5. It was the first time the juveniles were raced seven furlongs in the West this season.

Nine two-year-olds went to the post with Liberty Limited, the $35,000 colt owned by W. T. Waggoner of Arlington, Tex., absent. It was discovered at noon that Liberty Limited had a badly filled foreleg which means he probably will not race again this year.

Princess Camelia was coupled with her stablemate Prince Farthing as an entry, and ruled the favorite, paying $5.18 to win, $3.02 to place and $2.56 to show. Unencumbered paid $4.92 to place.

With nine starters, the Dearborn had a gross value of $7360, with $5490 going to Owner Leiter.

Princess Camelia was ridden by Jockey Landolt, who was forced to give the filly a determined ride at the stretch to get the decision. In 13 starts this year Princess Camelia has won seven races and finished out of the money only three times.

On Sir, owner by James G. Norris, set the early pace, followed by I Say.

Granite City To Open Grid Season With New Team

Although losing 14 lettermen from last year's squad, Granite City High School, defending champions of the Southwestern Illinois Conference football race, is expected to have another good eleven. There are but three lettermen back this year, but Coach Byron Bozarth has some fine second-string material with which he hopes to turn out another championship aggregation.

The three lettermen the "Happy Warriors" will have back are Taylor, a substitute end of last season; Marcousky, an all-conference tackle, who is likely to play fullback this year; and Aufderheide, captain of this year's eleven. Besides these three, there will be six of the last year's first squad, who did not receive major letters, these being Holland, Worthem, McCormick and Lignoul, all backfield men, and Zacny, guard, and James Kostoff, tackle.

The Granite City team this year will probably be heavier than last year's championship eleven. The average will be around 153 pounds.

Following are the members of the squad: Ends: Moss, Houstan, Taylor and Bushel. Tackles: Curry, Kostoff, Slay, A. Williams, Konvica and C. Nelson. Guards: Neipert, Houstan, Acquavia, Curry, Zacny, Bushel, Konvica, Harris and Bozarth. Centers: H. Wilson, Berendt, and Slay. Quarterbacks: Lignoul, Aufderheide, Bushel and Houstan. Halves: McCormick, Johannigmier, Cusanelli, Henson and Holland. Fullbacks: Marcousky, Rupp, Kostoff, Konvica, and Worthem.

The "Happy Warriors" will have one of the hardest schedules they have ever faced. Hillsboro High School, undefeated champions of the South Central Illinois High School conference, will furnish the opposition in the first game, Oct. 3.

Sept. 26—Open date.
Oct. 3—Hillsboro, here.
Oct. 10—Belleville, here.
Oct. 17—East St. Louis, there.
Oct. 23—Madison, here.

Nov. 7—Collinsville, there.
Nov. 14—C. B. C., here.
Nov. 21—Wood River, there.

The Penthouse.

WHEN I can read my title clear
To mansions in the skies
I'll bid farewell to every fear
Of peddlers, ants and flies.

Beneath the stars and silvery moon
With all its quiet joys
My penthouse there will be a boon
Far up above the noise.

And like our well-beloved Browns,
So game and pennant proof
I'll have my share of ups and downs
When I live on the roof.

The Spirit of Baseball.

"ALTHOUGH I never miss a day,"
Said Otis P. McGlinn
"I never go to see them play,
I go to see them win."

That's So.

THE Beautyo Shoppe with its spelling quaint
Makes women sisters underneath the paint
And if a certain poet we may copy,
The paths of beautye lead but to the shoppe.

Lay Off the Hen.

"Eggs Hailed as Cook's Best Friend."
Eggs can be used a hundred ways—
Fried, scrambled, boiled or in souffles.
In fact a cook without his eggs

HANS KAMPFER TO MEET LONDOS HERE SEPT. 30

Hans Kampfer, German heavyweight wrestler, will meet Jimmy Londos, title claimant, in a one-fall finish match, scheduled as the main event of a mat card announced last night by Promoter Tom Packs for Sept. 30, at The Arena.

Kampfer gained his first victory in five local appearances last Wednesday when he defeated Rudy Dusek. Packs stated he got Londos' agreement to the match over the telephone.

Kampfer has come along with a rush since his introduction to American wrestling circles some four months ago and has scored a string of 21 successive victories to date, including those he recorded at the expense of Ivan Vacturoff, Don de Laun, Indian Jim Clinkstock and Joe "Toots" Mondt in local engagements prior to his setto with the rowdy Dusek. The German matman is 25 years old and weighs around 218 pounds. He captured finalist honors last winter in a Greco-Roman mat tourney at Breslau, Germany.

Chicago Cricket Team Wins, Plays Here Again Today

The Chicago cricket team, here for a two-game series, won from St. Louis yesterday afternoon on the Forest Park grounds by a score of 76 to 46, showing a much superior brand of play to that of the home team. The second match will be played this morning at 11 o'clock.

This old English sport has been revived in St. Louis this summer after six years of absence. To the baseball-minded spectator, the sport appears rather strange, what with bowlers (pitchers) running two or three yards before releasing the ball that hits the ground before reaching the batter, and fielders surrounding the batters.

The Chicago team was slow to get started, but after gaining 30 runs the remaining points piled up rapidly. Casson Butcher of the visiting team, who is better known for his bowling surprised by making the most runs, 26, while E. Gordon Harburg, former player of the famous Middlesex County major league team in England, was second, with 22. Alec McLaren, St. Louis, was best local bowler against the visitors, taking four wickets with only 12 runs being scored.

St. Louis' best batter was Fitzroy Younge, from British Guiana, and now a student at University of Illinois, who says he has played this game since he was knee high. He had a powerful stroke which enabled him to pile up 20 runs, but luckily for Chicago he was caught out in the early stages of of the game.

The best bowler for the Chicago team was John Ingram, with five wickets, 18 runs.

The lineups and summaries:

DISTRICT HANDICAP GOLF TOURNAMENT AT ALGONQUIN FRIDAY

Belgium had speed, saved ground and weakened in final quarter. Yargee never threatened seriously, raced wide and quit in final drive.

MRS. DUEKER WINS PARK TENNIS EVENT

Mrs. Virginia Dueker, district women's singles tennis champion, won the women's special trophy event in the O'Fallon Park Tennis Club tournament yesterday afternoon by defeating Wilma Benson, Granite City women's titleholder, 6—0, 6—4. The men's semifinals in the tournament, which were scheduled for yesterday, between Ray Wiese and Gus Serrano, and Edmund Serrano and Robert Norton, were postponed.

The women's title match was closer than the score indicates. In the second set Mrs. Dueker led 5—2, then Miss Benson took two games. The ultimate winner, however, won her own service and then broke her opponent's to win the match. Mrs. Dueker employed a nice volley game.

ONE FIFTEEN-ROUND BOUT ON ARENA FIGHT CARD THIS WEEK

EDDIE SHEA TO FACE O'DOWD, IN FEATURE EVENT AT TEN ROUNDS

Schwake to Meet Debolt, Sept. 28

JOHN SCHWAKE, Webster Groves heavyweight, and Tiny Debolt of Cleveland have been signed for a 10-round contest as the semi-wind-up to the return match between Davey Abad and Joe Ghnouly at The Arena, Monday, Sept. 28, Sam Slotsky announced yesterday.

Schwake leaves tonight for Chicago where he boxes Salvatore Ruggirello at the Stadium Wednesday on the Schaaf-Griffiths card.

Abad has been training hard all week to get in the best possible condition for the contest. Ghnouly is due to arrive here Tuesday.

By W. J. McGoogan.

Midget Mike O'Dowd, Columbus, O., will be the opponent of Eddie Shea of Chicago in the 10-round feature bout at The Arena Wednesday night, the program promoted by Jack Tippett, matchmaker for the Walter Hatzfeld Post of American Legion, which will usher in decision fights in Missouri under the new law.

O'Dowd was signed after Tippett learned that Johnny Farr, Cleveland, would not be able to arrive here until Tuesday night, while O'Dowd promised to get here tomorrow. Tippett had announced previously that Farr would meet Shea.

The Columbus battler has fought Shea twice, losing a 10-round decision once and on a foul another time. O'Dowd was recently knocked out by Tracey Fox, Indianapolis lightweight, a brother of Royal Cox whom Johnny Kaiser knocked out on the last show at the Battery A Arena.

O'Dowd is about 28 years of age and his best fighting weight is said to be 125 pounds.

Tippett also has announced the first 15-round bout under the new law will be between Lou Terry and Sammy Ward who fought Edgar Terry here recently. That bout will be the final on Wednesday's card which has 50 rounds on the schedule starting with a five-rounder between Cliff Doetzel and Frank Doxey, former amateur stars, and including two other 10-round contests besides the Shea-O'Dowd affair.

Johnny Kaiser will meet Babe Ruth of Louisville, Ky., in one of the 10-round scraps, while Dave Barry, Springfield, Ill., boxes Jimmy Sayres of Michigan in the other.

Seat prices will range from 55 cents to $3.30.

Wednesday's Card

Lou Terry, St. Louis, vs. Sammy Ward, San Antonio. 15 rounds. 135 pounds.

Eddie Shea, Chicago, vs. Midget Mike O'Dowd, Columbus, O. 10 rounds. 128 pounds.

Johnny Kaiser, St. Louis, vs. Babe Ruth, Louisville, Ky. 10 rounds. 128 pounds.

Dave Barry, Springfield, Ill., vs. Jimmy Sayres, Ypsilanti, Mich. 10 rounds. 124 pounds.

Cliff Doetzel, St. Louis, vs. Frank Doxey, St. Louis. 5 rounds. 120 pounds.

EARLY FOOTBALL GAMES ON COAST SCHEDULE PACKED WITH COLOR

EUGENE, Ore., Sept. 19.—Some of the most colorful competition in Pacific Coast football play this season will come at the start of the conference schedule.

One of the outstanding games will be the renewal of the rivalry between Doc Spears' Washington and Jimmy Phelan's Oregon teams at Seattle Oct. 10.

The friendly feud, which began when Spears, Minnesota coach, and Phelan, Purdue mentor, were transferred to the coast last year. Spears with a veteran combination won a 7 to 0 victory over Phelan's inexperienced lineup.

But this season Spears, minus his stars, Kitzmiller and Christensen, faces an even chance of giving his ancient rival revenge.

Oregon State against Southern California Oct. 3 and the Southern California-St. Mary's clash Sept. 26 will furnish other early season contests of more than usual interest.

Retains Tennis Title.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 19.—Miss Margaret Carspecken of Morgantown, W. Va., today retained her Philadelphia district grass court tennis championship. She defeated Mrs. Harrison Smith of Philadelphia at the Germantown Cricket Club, 6—1, 6—3.

SONS OF NOTED STARS TO MEET ON GRIDIRON

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Sept. 19.—Ghosts out of an heroic past will take form in present-day reincarnations in the Michigan Stadium on Oct. 10, when the Maize and Blue lines up against Chicago. Fielding H. Yost Jr., offspring of the noted "Hurry Up," and two sons of the immortal Willie Heston will battle for Michigan against Paul Stagg, son of the Chicago coach, and Pat Page Jr., a new edition of the fast-flying Maroon catapult of two and a half decades ago.

The fathers of these young stars will see the battle, Yost as Michigan athletic director, Stagg as Chicago coach, Page as Stagg's assistant and Heston as an interested spectator. Heston recently changed his residence from Detroit to Ann Arbor to be present at every Michigan practice session this year.

HOFFMEISTERS PLAY WALTHER NINE TODAY

The Walthers, winners of the second half of the Southern St. Louis County League championship, play the Hoffmeisters, winners of the first half on the grounds at 9800 South Broadway this afternoon in the first of a three-game series to decide the championship.

FIRST GAMES IN COUNTY LEAGUE THIS WEEK-END

The county league's short period of training for this season's opening games will be brought to a close this week, with four schools scheduled to start the 1931 season Friday, and four continuing Saturday, with one having an open date. Practice during the week for the most part was very light, for the hot weather did not permit the boys who have had just one week of training previously to work very hard. Coaches have been drilling their men on fundamentals, and have given them plays to practice, with dummy scrimmage daily. On Friday, most schools scrimmaged for the first time this season. Unless the weather cools off this coming week, the opening games may be poorly played.

Friday, Ritenour will go to Wellston and open the league season, while in nonleague games, St. Louis U. High visits Normandy, and Central plays St. Charles at night on the St. Charles field. Saturday, University City journeys to Wood River, Ill.; Clayton to Chaminade, and Webster to Farmington, while Kirkwood entertains Belleville. Maplewood is the only school that does not open its season this week-end, playing its first game Oct. 2.

Close Race Expected.

All indications point to one of the closest races in county league history, with the six strong schools of the league having good teams. The strong schools are: Webster, University City, Maplewood, Normandy, Kirkwood and St. Charles. The first four mentioned are unusually strong this year, and are fairly equal in strength. The league schedules of these schools, therefore will have an important bearing on their championship aspirations.

Maplewood has the hardest schedule, playing Webster, Kirkwod, University City, Normandy, St. Charles and Wellston, with only the last one to be counted as an easy game. University City also plays six games, but not as hard a schedule, meeting Kirkwood, St. Charles, Webster, Maplewood, Wellston and Clayton; only two of these games will be easy. Webster's schedule is fairly easy, with Maplewood, University City and Kirkwood the hard games, and Wellston and Clayton the easy ones. Normandy has the easiest one, playing but four games, and meeting Maplewood, Ritenour, St. Charles, and Wellston.

The main reason for this difference in scheduling is due to the fact that the governing board of the county league does not recognize a county champion. The rules of the league in regard to the number of league games a school must schedule to be recognized as champion are therefore not enforced; if they were, many schools would be ineligible for the title, for, according to the rules, a school must schedule 60 per cent of its games with county league schools.

Coach Armin A. Wahlbrink of Maplewood is again pushing Maplewood High to the front, this time by printing a weekly bulletin about athletics, keeping the school members, and those interested in the school, informed of the progress of the team. He also has worked out a new ticket plan, selling season tickets on the installment plan, in order to boost the attendance at the games, and to give students of the school a reduced admission to each game.

Practice Scrimmage.

Last Friday St. Charles came to Kirkwood for a practice game, the scrimmage affording both coaches a chance to see their men in action, and to notice the teams' weaknesses Both schools showed by their tackling and blocking that they were in need of scrimmage, Kirkwood's defense being especially weak. Joe Moore, backfield man of St. Charles, looked as though he would be one of the stars of the season if he gets good support. Malcolm Patrick of Kirkwood was another ball-carrier that was hard to stop, repeatedly going around St. Charles' ends.

BOWLING NOTES

The first special tenpin event of the bowling season will be held at the Washington Alleys, Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 3 and 4, when an eight-game individual classic open to any bowler in the St. Louis district will be featured. The entry fee is $5 per man.

The unusually hot weather failed to disturb the various members of the Washington Scratch League in its weekly meeting. Chief honors for teams were gained by the Wolff quintet, which won the odd game from the Witter Razz by scores of 976, 1060 and 1044 for a total of 3080 pins.

The Charlottes, last year's champions, won three from Alexander & Sons, scoring 3047 with games of 1023, 1009 and 1015 and advancing to a tie for the league leadership. The Generals had 2965 pins, trouncing Pop's Sixth Floor for the odd game and remaining tied with the Charlottes. The Baden Recreation Five scored 2806 in whitewashing the Washington Five. The clean sweep enabled the Baden five to advance to third position.

The Schapers and the Silver Seals stand at the top of the Major City Bowling League with three victories and no defeats. The Silver Seals and the Schapers defeated the Witter Razz and Jule Echmitt's, respectively.

The Generals lost two games to the Henry Schaeffers, who had the high game of the night, 1020, and a total of 2831. The Generals' total was 2786. The high total of the opening round was 2886, rolled by the Q. M. Recreation team, which won two matches from the Wooster Lamberts. The Q. M.'s also furnished the high individual bowler, Gene Winterose, who totaled 687, including a 258 game.

Galloway Now Umpiring.

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 19.—Jim Galloway, former baseball player, manager and owner, has started umpiring in the Texas League.

SCHAAF FAVORED OVER GRIFFITHS IN COMING BOUT

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—Ernie Schaaf and Tuffy Griffiths are both in near perfect condition for their ten-round battle at the Chicago Stadium next Wednesday night.

This match has the good old burg all steamed up because, among the men who have challenged the winner, are Charley Retzlaff, Young Stribling, Paulino Uzcudun and Otto Von Porat, newly crowned champion of Scandinavia.

In addition Jack Sharkey, who advises Schaaf, has said that if Tuffy defeated Schaaf he, Sharkey, would give Griffiths a match.

The Chicago fight is an elimination event in the heavyweight title scramble, both men being among the first ten of the "hopes."

Because of his rapid rise through knockouts of good men and decisions over other high rank fighters, Schaaf has come to be considered the ranking candidate of the newer group of heavyweights.

Reservations for this fight have been received from nearly all the important cities of the Middle West. The prices of ringside seats are only $5.99, indicating that the "repression" has at last made fight promoters considerate. The event is good enough to rate a $15 top under ordinary conditions.

Schaaf is favored at 8 to 5.

MRS. PROCTOR WINS WOMEN'S TOURNEY

Mrs. E. M. Proctor, Midland Valley, won the women's low net tournament held at St. Clair Friday with an 89. Mrs. W. C. Pannell, Crystal Lake was runnerup with 91; While Mrs. J. T. Strubinger, Woodlawn, won the prize in the first flight offered for fewest putts with 33.

In the second flight Mrs. A. W. Gilpin, Algonquin, was low with a 90, while Mrs. Gordon Hale, St. Clair, and Mrs. N. T. Paterson, North Hills, tied for runnerup with 95. Miss Annabel Hoppe, St. Clair, had the fewest putts, 31.

Mrs. Harry Bancroft, St. Clair, was low in the third flight with 92, while Mrs. E. C. Greenman, Glen Echo was next with 94. Mrs. H. E. Green, North Hills and Mrs. Robert Neill, North Hills, tied for fewest putts with 38.

Mrs. H. Wilms, North Shore had 77 in the fourth flight while Mrs. J. L. Van Ness, St. Clair, had an 82. Mrs. H. Hensely, Osage, had fewest putts, 34.

SYRACUSE STAR OUT WITH INFECTED HAND

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 19.—The Syracuse University football squad suffered its first casualty of the season when Joe Moran, backfield ace, was taken to the University Hospital suffering from an attack of blood poisoning. Moran received a slight cut on the little finger of his left hand, and the infection spread rapidly.

After four days of drill, the Orange squad was divided into two teams this morning. There was a scrimmage which lasted more than an hour. Oppressive heat bothered the ball-carriers, but Vic Hanson, coach, was pleased with results.

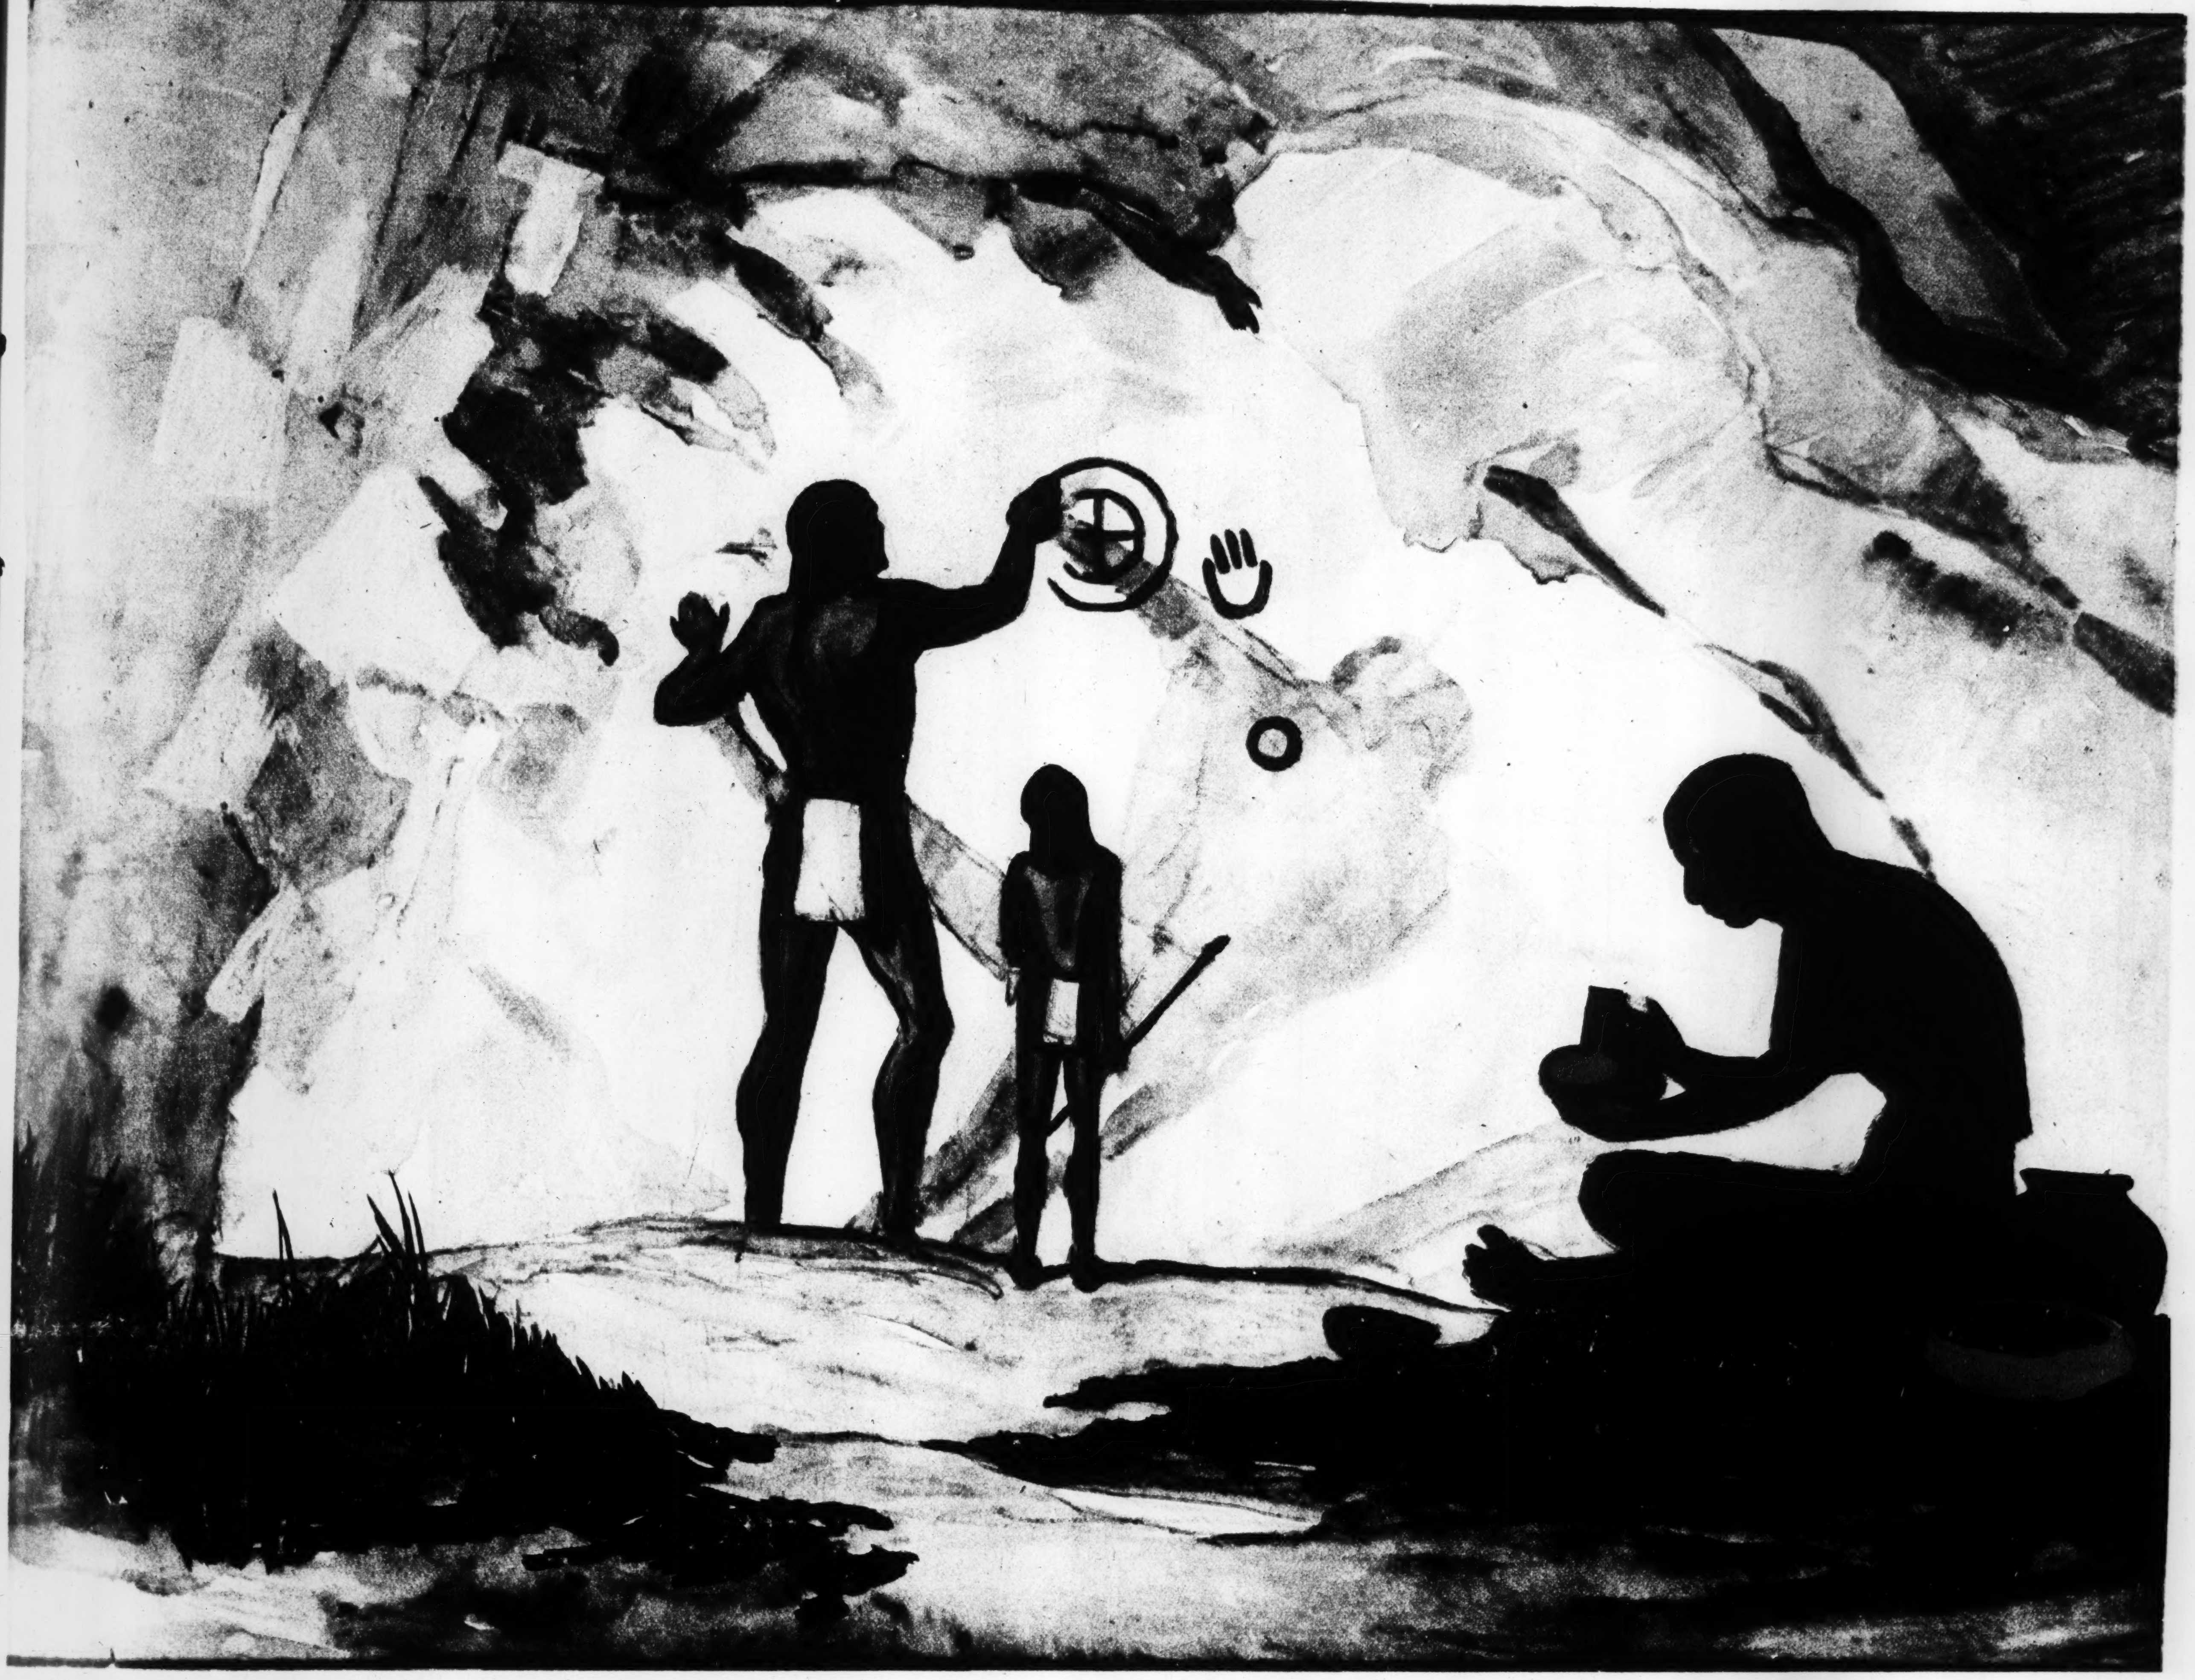
Sunday September 20, 1931—Supplement of the ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH Magazine



Imaginary scene in the life of an early Illinois artist, painted by Albert Ross Carter, staff artist of the University of Illinois archeological expedition.

PROBING THE MYSTERY OF PREHISTORIC ILLINOIS

By M. W. CHILDS

Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

Interesting Relics Found Near Murphysboro by the State University's Archeological Expedition Indicate That Several Cultures, Some Highly Developed, Flourished There.

MURPHYSBORO, Illinois.

FRAGMENTS of faded red pottery are picked out of a shallow grave with infinite patience and care. Pieced together, with the same patience and skill, it is seen that they form a heart-shaped vessel with a smooth-rimmed edge, cut off as though by a knife. A sacrificial vessel? Perhaps. For mixing cornmeal in the everyday household routine? Perhaps. This strangely shaped bowl, with its curious workmanship, may have been for any of a dozen uses.

It is one of a number of clews to the secret of prehistoric Illinois. As Egypt and Greece and Rome have been made to yield their hidden treasures, so now Illinois has come under the all-seeing eye of the archeologist. It is of course, quite plain that the people who lived here were a primitive people. But the riddle of their origin, of whence they came and why they vanished and how they lived, is as mysterious and as complex as any secret that the earth holds.

Under the direction of Professor A R. Kelly the University of Illinois has had an expedition in the field here during the past summer. With the aid of C. W. Clancy and Vern Kinietz, assistants in archeology and anthropology, and Albert Ross Carter, staff artist, a great many relics of the long dead past have been accumulated. These will be taken into the laboratory at the university and subjected to the most searching analysis. Until this has been done, Dr. Kelly and his assistants will venture very few general conclusions.

The University of Illinois expedition is part of a concerted effort to map Illinois archeologically. Some time ago the State was divided into a northern and a southern half. The University of Illinois took the southern half, the University of Chicago the northern. The latter university has had an expedition in the field at Lewistown, Illinois, during the past four months, working along lines similar to those followed here.

It was necessary to pick out a fairly representative section to study—a sample, as it were, of what the southern half of the State might contain. Professor Kelly chose the country around Murphysboro because of the numerous relics known to exist here. Moreover, it has always been more or less definitely known that the whole State of Illinois, and the southern half in particular, was a meeting place for tribes from the far South and from the North and Northwest. In the same way, Southern Illinois is today a mixture of North and South, a border-line region.

The Indians made no permanent records and so, according to the archeologists' way of thinking, everything before the first coming of Marquette in 1673 must be regarded as prehistoric. The white man succeeded in obliterating much of the Indian culture that he encountered. Whole tribes were destroyed, notably the Kaskaskias, who were, according to early observers, a very highly developed people. The Cahokias, whose culture encompassed the building of large and elaborate mounds for the burial of the dead, had disappeared before the white man came. These now vanished people and numerous other tribes passed this way, camped for a time and then moved on.

So it is that the expedition has discovered a confusion of material. For example, a stone pipe was found of workmanship so fine that only two previously unearthed in the United States are known to compare with it. It is a "platform" pipe, so called because it rests on a flat base. It is about six inches long and a little less than six inches in height. The pipe is carved from red pipestone in the figure of a crouching woman. Carter, the artist of the expedition, says that in elimination of detail and sense of balance, it parallels the work of the archaic Greeks. It might almost be the work of the highly cultured Mayas to the far south.

Equally mysterious are the numerous rock drawings found in this region. A hand is frequently represented. Often it is not naturalistically portrayed, but a stylized hand, made with three or four lines, showing a rather high degree of pictorial ability. Symbols are found hewn on the rock that have hitherto been associated exclusively with the Indians of the Southwest—the cross within a cross, for example. According to Dr. Kelly, there is little hope of ever deciphering these petroglyphs. Or, at any rate, before their meaning can be known it will be necessary to discover a great deal of additional material.

Frequently close by these examples of a relatively high culture the diggers have found primitive earthenware pots. These are the most utilitarian forms, devoid of all ornamentation. Other pottery has been found that is ornamented with considerable skill.

In the face of this bewildering confusion of relics it is possible to assume only that the people who used these things were the predecessors of the Indians whom Marquette discovered, the Kaskaskias, the Tamaroa, the Mitchigamea and others. They

George Pond's Deathbed Confession A Dramatic Epilogue to the Famous Clyde Showalter Case.

MOUNT CARMEL, Illinois.

THEY have found out at last who murdered Clyde Showalter here 26 years ago—and it wasn't Jesse Lucas.

It's pretty late in the day to be finding that out, for Jesse Lucas has already spent 23 years in the State Penitentiary at Chester serving a life sentence for the crime. In prison he has become an old man prematurely at 50. Acquaintances say he is leathery and gray and cynical. But the prospects are that he will be out before long. As soon as the pardon and parole authorities have had time to pass on his case he probably will be able to come home and try to make something out of what remains of his life. Mount Carmel plans to meet him with the band and give him a big reception to show how sorry it is about the mistake.

It was George Pond who murdered Clyde Showalter—if Pond's own deathbed confession is to be believed. Pond killed the well-to-do young trader with a hammer to get the $1400 he thought Showalter carried. It happened on the Southern Railway bridge over the Wabash River here the night of October 19, 1905. Pond hid the body in the river and later that night took it across to the Indiana side and buried it in a sand bar a quarter of a mile up Patoka Creek. It was found seven months later when high water washed out the bar.

Nobody ever suspected Pond. He kept quiet during the investigation and trial that sent an innocent man to prison under a life sentence. He kept quiet through the years that followed until as a gaunt and haggard old man he came down with dropsy a few months ago. Told that he had but a few days to live, he unburdened his conscience to his wife and a woman neighbor who had urged him to confess his wrongdoings so that he might "pray through" before death overtook him. Affidavits have now been made and these, together with the testimony of the two women, will be presented when the State Board of Pardons and Paroles meets this fall at Chester. The immediate pardon of Jesse Lucas is expected to follow.

Much depends, of course, upon whether the pardon board is convinced that the Pond confession is bona fide, but it appears now there will be little trouble on this score. Dr. E. F. Small of Decker, Indiana, who attended Pond during his last illness (Pond lived at Decker the last six months of his life) declares he believes the sick man was in his right mind to the end and has made affidavit to that effect. Members of the family and neighbors say the same thing. Moreover, Pond's widow and his son and daughter by a previous marriage say now that many times during his life Pond was heard to declare he knew who killed Clyde Showalter and that an innocent man was in prison for the crime. He often mentioned the Showalter case, they recall, and was always very mysterious about it. His irritable disposition and generally violent temper led them to refrain from asking questions.

Residents of Mount Carmel and vicinity are rather more than ready to credit the confession. They are saying now they never did believe Jesse Lucas was guilty. Notwithstanding the fact that he was convicted on supposedly eye-witness testimony and the Illinois State Supreme Court upheld the conviction, doubt has persisted ever since the trial. Jesse was a hard-working boy who had a steady job at the canning factory. He had never been in trouble before and about the worst thing against him prior to this charge was his mother's reputation. Somehow he never did quite fit into the picture as the murderer.

POND fits in much better. He had a reputation of his own, and it was an evil one. He had served two years in the Indiana State Penitentiary at Michigan City, and he had been suspected (although nothing was done about it) of murdering two of the four wives he had at various times. Besides, he was known throughout his life in this part of the country as a disorderly and even dangerous character. Neighbors were afraid of him. Acquaintances of long standing look back now and wonder why he didn't fall under suspicion a long time before he confessed. The main reason seems to have been that nobody reported seeing him in Showalter's company on the day the young livestock trader disappeared.

The disappearance of Clyde Showalter was for a long time a famous mystery of Southern Illinois. Showalter lived with his wife and small son on a farm five miles north of town. On the morning of October 19, 1905, he drove to Mount Carmel with a horse and buggy and sold a carload of hogs for which he received $1485 in cash. He spent the remainder of the forenoon purchasing supplies and in the afternoon was seen on the street and in two or three different saloons where, it was said, he had a few drinks. He did not return home that night and when he was still missing the next day a search was instituted.

His horse and buggy were found at a livery stable in Mount Carmel where he had left them the day before. It was found that he had deposited $1400 of the hog money in two banks. Several persons were found who had seen him during the afternoon and one reported seeing him at 7:30 o'clock that night walking toward the river front with two other men. Beyond this there was no trace. Police expressed the belief he had run away and others advanced the theory he had been murdered, probably by some one who thought he had that $1400 in his pockets. The family offered a reward and the search was carried to other parts of the country. No clew was found, however, until May 26, 1906, seven months after his disappearance.

On that morning two boys, Melvin Gabbert and Albert Chapman, were rowing a boat up Patoka Creek, looking for mussel shells, when they saw what they thought at first was a log protruding from a sand bar. On looking closer, they found it was a man's body. They notified the Sheriff and Coroner of Gibson County, Indiana, Patoka Creek being on the Indiana side of the Wabash, and the body was identified from papers in the pockets as that of the long-missing Showalter. His skull had been fractured by a blow with some blunt instrument. His purse was empty and his watch was missing. Plainly enough, he had been murdered and robbed. His body had been thrust feet first into a hole in a sand bar and the hole filled over. Spring rains and a swollen creek had brought the corpse to light.

Rumors that the slayer was about to be apprehended were frequently heard during the next few months, but the case dragged along without an arrest until September 30, 1908. Then officers went to the canning factory on the river front and arrested Jesse Lucas as he was quitting work for the day. They put him in jail charged with the murder. Shortly afterward they arrested his mother, Mrs. Margaret Lucas, and locked her up on the same charge. Subsequently, the two were indicted jointly and brought to trial during the April term of court in 1909. The State charged that Jesse had killed the young stock trader on the porch of the Lucas home and that his mother had then helped him carry the body to the river, where it was concealed until later that night, when Jesse buried it in the sand bar.

ON JUST what evidence the State based these charges it was not generally known until the trial was on, but the Lucases had few friends and nobody bothered much about them. People were ready to believe the worst about Mrs. Lucas—"Lib," the boys around town called her. She owned two houses down on the flat, known as the "Commons," on the river front, and she rented one of these to Moll Garrison, who ran a resort of ill-fame. The two houses adjoined and Mrs. Lucas was generally regarded as a partner in Moll's enterprise. There were always two or three girls about the premises and people who passed by late at night—of course respectable folk only passed by—told shocking stories of goings-on at the place. Sometimes there was the sound of dancing and carousing until 2 o'clock in the morning.

Against the protestations of innocence on the part of Jesse and his mother, the State produced three witnesses whose testimony clinched the case for the prosecution. These were "Curly" Conrad, Ruth Henson and Myrtle Mercer. All were shady characters, it is true. Ruth Henson was an inmate of Moll Garrison's resort. Myrtle Mercer, a waitress at a hotel, was known as a frequenter of the resort, and Conrad, at the time of the trial, was serving a sentence at the Pontiac Reformatory for assault upon a young woman. But they gave what purported to be eye-witness testimony and stuck to their stories.

Conrad was on the stand first. He testified that on the night of the murder he and a young woman, Oma Johnson, were sitting on a lumber pile 100 feet from the Lucas home, and between the house and the river, when he saw Showalter come out of the Lucas house, followed by Jesse. Jesse was armed with a club, the witness related, and struck Showalter on the head from behind. Showalter fell, the account continued, and then tried to get up, whereupon Lucas struck him a second blow and took something out of his pockets. Lucas covered the body with a quilt, Conrad related, and carried it to the river bank, passing within a few feet of the lumber pile. The next day, he said, Lucas paid him $35 to keep quiet about what he had seen and subsequently paid him other sums at various times.

Ruth Henson testified she was in her room in the Moll Garrison place when she heard a blow and a cry of distress over at the Lucas house. A moment later, she said, she saw Mrs. Lucas and Jesse carry a man's body past her window. She had refrained from reporting the occurrence, she related, because Mrs. Lucas saw her the next day and told her that if she had seen anything she had better not say anything about it or she would "go to the river," too.

While Myrtle Mercer didn't say she had actually witnessed the killing, she told a story that strongly supported the testimony of the others.

The Lucases denied the charges and testified they were both asleep at the time the prosecution said the murder had taken place. Jesse declared he had never seen Showalter in his life or heard of him before his disappearance. Other witnesses tried to show that it was impossible to recognize anybody on the Lucas porch at night from the point where Conrad said he was when he saw Jesse strike Showalter with a club. The jury, however, went out and returned a verdict of guilty, with a life sentence for both Jesse and his mother.

THE case was appealed and the State Supreme Court reversed the conviction as to Mrs. Lucas, granting her a new trial. Subsequently the charge against her was dropped and she was released. But Jesse went to prison and has been there ever since. About six years ago he was allowed to come home to attend the funeral of his mother and agitation was begun to win him a parole. It was said by persons in authority at the time that a parole might be obtained if Jesse would confess the crime. But this he steadfastly refused to do and went back to the penitentiary.

Nothing more was heard of the matter until after the death of Pond on June 30. Then there reached the ears of Mayor T. B. Wright of Mount Carmel a report that Pond had made some kind of a deathbed confession. Recalling that Pond had lived in the Mount Carmel "Commons" at the time of the murder and used to hang around Moll Garrison's place, Mayor Wright surmised that the confession might possibly have some bearing on the Showalter case. So he got in touch with Dr. Small and Ray S. Sisson, justice of the peace at Decker, Indiana, and asked them to try to get more particulars. From Mrs. Pond and Mrs. Smith they learned the facts. The women said they had meant to report the confession to the authorities, but had thought it improper to bring the matter up so soon after the man's death.

IT WAS George Pond's attempt to "pray himself through" before his death that led to the confession, Mrs. Smith explained to me when I visited her at her home at Decker the other day. A few years ago, he "got religion" and began to attend camp meetings. He often prayed and asked others to pray for him.

"Well, he got sick with the dropsy a few months ago," Mrs. Smith related. "The doctor told him there was no hope for him and he got more religious than ever. He would send for me to pray for him nearly every day. I had known him for a long time. I used to live near him over at Allendale. I knew him as a mighty mean man, too. He was mean to his children and he used to threaten his wife. They used to say he had killed two wives. I don't know about that, but I do know that his third wife—that was the one before this one—died of a broken neck, and her corpse turned black around the head and face. He said it was an accident. But he didn't have any doctor or an undertaker or anything. He just went over to Mount Carmel and bought a casket and buried her himself. Then he married her younger sister.

"I didn't have any objection to praying for him, though, and when he got sick and sent for me I went. About 10 days before he died he sent word for me to come quick; that he wouldn't live till morning. When I got over there—they lived in two rooms of the old schoolhouse up the road—his face was swollen and he was excited. He wanted me to pray.

"Well, I was worn out. I had been praying for him and he had been praying himself, but it hadn't seemed to ease his mind at all. He would get up to a certain point and it would seem there was some kind of barrier there that kept him from getting any farther. I said, 'George, you have got to confess all your wrong deeds and ask for forgiveness or praying won't do any good.' He said his deeds hadn't all been bad; that once he had found a purse with $97.50 in it and had returned it to the owner when he might just as easily have kept it. He often mentioned that in his prayers, trying to show the Lord how good he was.

"But I said, 'No, it won't ease your conscience to talk about your good deeds; it's your bad ones that hurt.' Then he said he guessed I was right, and started out by telling me he had said things about Ike Sanders. Ike Sanders is a township trustee and George once gave him a cussing because he wouldn't give him an order on the county for groceries. Then he told about saying things against Dr. Small. I got tired of this. I said, 'George, your soul's at stake. The thing for you to do is to make peace with the Lord and pray to die.'

"He started telling me about a blacksmith named Jargo he had killed, or thought he had killed, over at Milltown many years ago. He said the blacksmith had got him sent to the penitentiary for making white mule and that when he got out he went to the shop and clubbed the blacksmith over the head with an iron bar. He left the country then and never did

THE system under which the Czarist government of Russia kept down its crop of revolutionaries was unique and for many years highly effective. They were almost literally buried alive in the vast unknown expanse of Siberia, Russia's northern hinterland. How deep in the cold silence they were buried depended upon the severity of their offense. For minor political crimes it was often the town of Irkutsk, at the end of one branch of the Siberian Railroad, to which they were exiled. But if the crime was a serious one—participation in a plot against a grand duke, say—they were moved closer to the outer boundary of this frozen desert.

It remained for Vladimir Zenzinov to get the limit, the farthest north in exile. Having twice escaped from Siberia, he was sent, the third time he was caught working for the downfall of the Czarist regime, to within 60 miles of the Arctic Ocean, to the lost town of Russkoye Ustye, forgotten even by the map-makers. In "The Road to Oblivion," written in collaboration with Isaac Don Levine (Robert M. McBride and Company), he has just told the story of this living death. It was like going to another planet, to the cold, dead surface of the moon.

BUT in a foreword no less a polar authority than Vilhjalmur Stefansson says he believes about 90 per cent of what Zenzinov relates. The other ten per cent he puts down to the inevitable mistakes of a novice observer in the Arctic. Lest he seem ungracious in his appraisal of the book, this exploder of Arctic myths adds that about 25 per cent of what he himself recorded on his first Northern expedition he later found to be contrary to fact.

There was some evidence that Governor Kraft of the Siberian province of Yakutsk regretted his order condemning Zenzinov to Russkoye Ustye. The order had followed a scene in which the prisoner had refused to take off his hat when the Governor visited the prison. Governor Kraft let it be known that if Zenzinov made the first opening, he would modify the order. But Zenzinov was proud.

Under the Czarist system the political prisoners were gathered in prisons in Siberia, at Irkutsk and Yakutsk. Then one by one the Governor or police officials in St. Petersburg and Moscow told them off to the distant hamlets in which they would have to spend the remainder of their sentence.

The Government furnished the means of transportation and a living allowance; often, too, instruments for scientific observation. Just before Zenzinov was to leave the Governor volunteered a concession—if life was insupportable in Russkoye Ustye, the exile might move to another point in the Verkhoyansk district. Verkhoyansk has been established as the coldest point on earth. This was in early December of 1911.

Vladimir Zenzinov Tells of His Enforced Stay in a Country That Was Like the "Cold, Dead Surface of the Moon."

Lest he seem ungracious in his appraisal of the book, this exploder of Arctic myths adds that about 25 per cent of what he himself recorded on his first Northern expedition he later found to be contrary to fact.

Vladimir Zenzinov.

There was some evidence that Governor Kraft of the Siberian province of Yakutsk regretted his order condemning Zenzinov to Russkoye Ustye. The order had followed a scene in which the prisoner had refused to take off his hat when the Governor visited the prison. Governor Kraft let it be known that if Zenzinov made the first opening, he would modify the order. But Zenzinov was proud.

Under the Czarist system the political prisoners were gathered in prisons in Siberia, at Irkutsk and Yakutsk. Then one by one the Governor and police officials in St. Petersburg and Moscow told them off to the distant hamlets in which they would have to spend the remainder of their sentences.

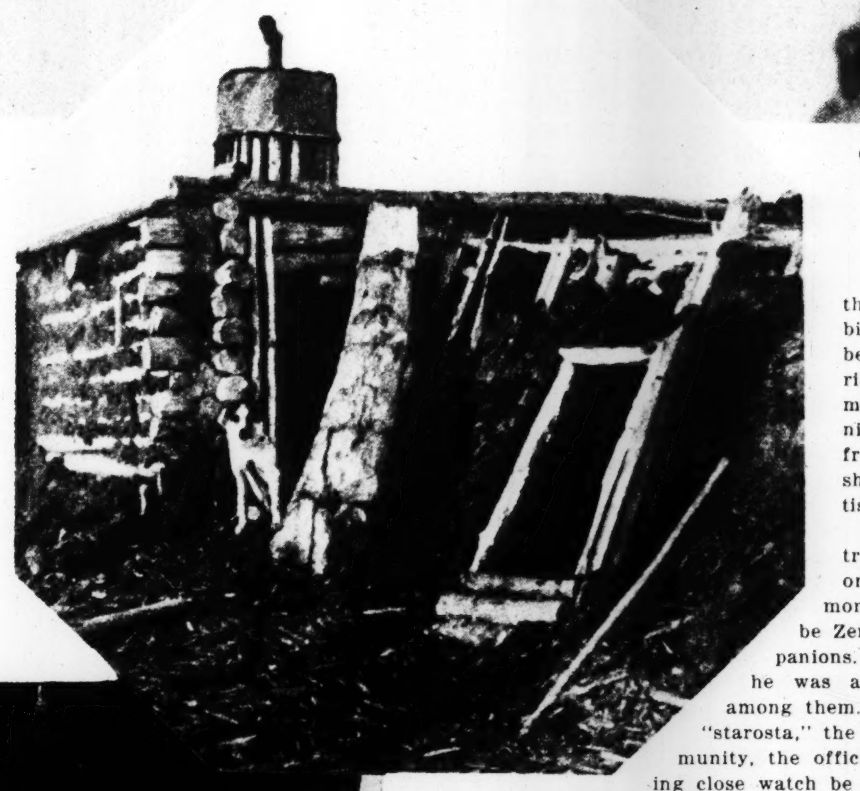
The Government furnished the means of transportation and a living allowance; often, too, instruments for scientific observation. Just before Zenzinov was to leave the Governor volunteered a concession—if it was insupportable in Russkoye Ustye the exile might move to another point in the Verkhoyansk district. Verkhoyansk has been established as the coldest point on earth. This was in early December of 1911.

Zenzinov's escort to his "grave" was a Cossack who had accompanied numerous Arctic expeditions. This man, Strizhev, was chosen by the Governor because he was the only person who could find the town of Russkoye Ustye. It lay 2000 miles to the north across a waste in which temperatures drop as low as 95 degrees below zero and where the distribution of the inhabitants, roving tribesmen of Mongolian origin, is about one to 50 square miles. Zenzinov was from an upper middle-class family, educated in German universities and in Paris, entirely unaccustomed to such hardships.

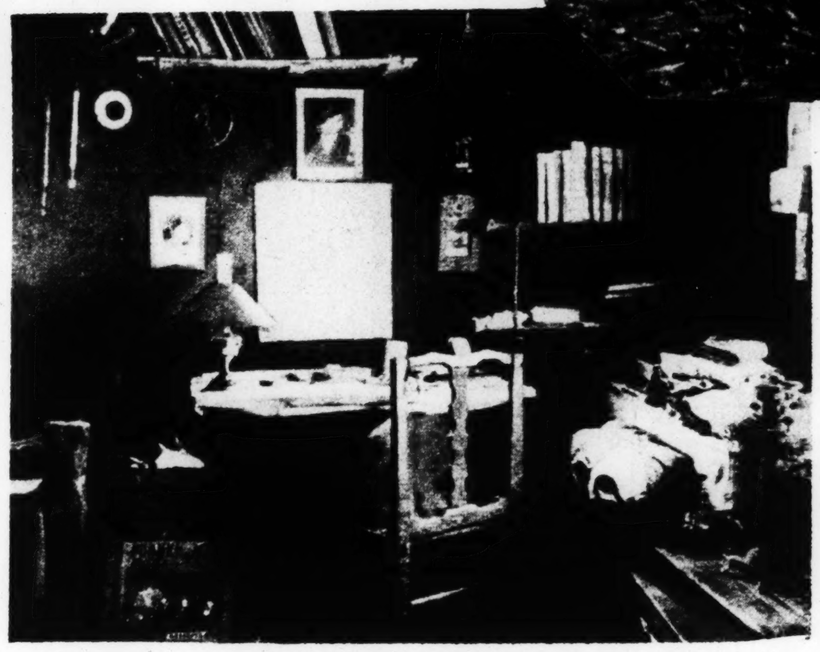
He took with him everything that he would need for a two-year stay beyond the last boundary of civilization, a few books carefully chosen, most of them scientific works, a little sugar, a little bread, a lamp, vodka secretly concealed in his luggage, a Winchester rifle and, after long consideration by the Governor, a revolver. They started from Yakutsk with eight sleds, drawn by 16 reindeer, with a reserve of a dozen reindeer awaiting their turn to be harnessed. The sled in which Zenzinov rode was really a coupe on special birch runners, the outside covered with canvas, the interior upholstered with thick felt and with a deerskin for a "bed." Some of the traders' sleds, which are really like small huts, even have stoves, he relates.

A Slavic boy whom Zenzinov found at Russkoye Ustye and whom he taught reading and writing.

"At the time we started from Yakutsk, the temperature ranged from 40 to 58 degrees below zero," Zenzinov writes. "I wore an outfit that had been especially tailored for me by my Yakutsk friends. My underwear consisted of a knitted woolen suit and a sweater over it. My trousers were of fur, with a lining of white fox facing the body. On my feet I had socks of hare skin, also lined with fur, and over them so-called kamys or torbas, corresponding to a pair of moccasins made of deerskin. . . . Over the sweater, I wore a warm fur jacket made of the paws of white fox, and over that two long smocks of deerskin, one with the fur inside, the other with the fur outside. In addition, the outside smock had attached to it a fur headpiece, its edges lined with a wolf's tail. But even in this outfit the cold was penetrating. . . . My feet would freeze and I would have to move them about vigorously in order to keep them from growing numb altogether."



Zenzinov's cabin, from a photograph made in June.



The interior of Zenzinov's Arctic home.

At night they shared the huts of the natives, the Yakuts. These were little better than caves of board and skin under the snow and ice. Their pilots from one hut to another—usually a drive of many hours—were these same Yakuts. The huts were shared by cattle, warm only when the fire was kept going, but to Zenzinov, at the end of a day's journey, they seemed like palaces. Sometimes they stopped in povarnias, which were shelters like those provided in the Alps and the Pyrenees for tourists in an emergency.

The most terrible experience of all on the journey, and this was true of his whole stay in the Arctic, was the Siberian blizzard, the "purga," which several times descended without warning upon the travelers. He describes one such storm that struck on December 31 as they were crossing one of the most deserted portions of the tundra:

"It started soon after midday, in the form of a slight wind. Around us was the lifeless tundra, under an even blanket of snow. About 1 o'clock twilight began to descend. Everything was shut off from sight, as if a gray and muddy curtain had been drawn about us. The sky fused with the snow. It seemed as if our reindeer were suspended in the air, their legs moving but without making any headway. The snow was so dense that I could not even see the antlers of the deer drawing my own sled. I could only see their regularly moving rumps. The wind grew stronger. It turned into a hurricane. Currents of snow sped by me, skimming the ground and striking the sled with a dry rustle. Many times I thought we had hopelessly lost our way, and would never come out of it."

THEN at last the refuge of the povarnia: "Ah, what bliss it was to throw off one's heavy, snow-covered garments and to be able after the cruel hours of torment in the cold, to stretch one's lifeless hands in the benign warmth, and to make one's frostbitten face glow! I busied myself with the preparation of tea and took out several pieces of frozen meat and soup. How that meal tasted! I even produced a can of condensed milk and a bottle of rum. Our happiness was complete.

"The drivers and the Cossack, fatigued to exhaustion, fell asleep immediately after supper, and I sat in front of the fire for a long time, feeding it logs and dreamily admiring it. Night came. Outside howled the wicked purga, striking the pitiable povarnia in which four human beings concealed themselves."

Russkoye Ustye, he discovered, was a village of "six smokes"—six chimneys. The inhabitants, he found to his amazement, were Russians who had preserved themselves almost untouched from Yakut influence. Their features were for the most part pure Slavic instead of Mongolian; they spoke Russian, did not even know the Yakut tongue. As Zenzinov says, "a white isle in the midst of a Mongoloid sea."

These Russians, it is Zenzinov's theory, are the survivors of a vain attempt at colonization made by Russia in the Arctic in the seventeenth century. His arrival there was the most important event in decades, the most startling thing in the entire lifetime of the generation he found living there. He was like a visitor from Mars.

These people, with the exception of a few of the older men, had never seen a tree, a wheel. They were illiterate. Moscow and St. Petersburg existed for them in a shadowy world that was scarcely real. They had not heard of the Russo-Japanese war. They combined a primitive Christianity with black magic, the rituals of a "shaman." They had a bath twice in their life, once at birth and once just before their marriage. They lived mostly on "stroganina," which is frozen raw fish shaved into slices tissue-paper thin.

Except for the trader who came once every six months these were to be Zenzinov's sole companions. From the first he was an honored guest among them. He read to the "starosta," the elder of the community, the official paper requesting close watch be kept over him as an exile, but the old man didn't understand. He persisted in believing that Zenzinov was an official visitor, honored by the Czar's special protection. The starosta, like the other residents, was hunter, trapper, fisherman. For 20 rubles (about $10) Zenzinov rented a house for a half-year and proceeded to try and make himself comfortable until he could try out a plan of escape that he had been turning over in his mind ever since his sentence to Russkoye Ustye.

ALTHOUGH he occupied himself with many things, cooking his food, policing his little house, studying the people, the stars, yet there were times when the sense of his terrible isolation broke in upon him:

"A sensation of utter isolation from the world so dear to me would pierce my brain like a needle, causing me almost physical suffering. This would happen in the tundra, away from Russkoye Ustye, when I roved about with a gun looking for partridges, or on the roof of my cabin where I climbed to check up on the trend of the wind.

"What waste! What a silence! The thought of the thousands of miles and many long months of travel separating me from the world in which I had lived heretofore would breed thoughts of death: 'Life will continue to flow as ever after my death. Right now, over there, it goes on in the same manner as it did in my former days. Well, what is going on there? Perhaps the people of whom I am thinking are no longer alive. I will learn of it only many, many months later.'

"Such were the thoughts that tormented me. Unbearable at times was also the feeling of complete impotence. I wanted to cry out so that the whole world could hear. I wanted to raise my head and howl even as the dogs here howl when they, too, perhaps, are seized with a cosmic loneliness. At such moments I would take up the ax and start to chop wood, in order to drown the attack of despondency in physical fatigue and coarse labor."

Sometimes during the interminable Arctic night he would wrap himself in furs and go out onto the roof of his home and for an hour or more gaze up at the amazingly beautiful sky, the stars tinged with green and yellow and red, hanging like great lamps in the still, clear sky. At other times there was the aurora borealis. He would sit fascinated by this until he almost froze to death, following the curtains of flame as they rose and fell over half the horizon. It was almost terrifying, he writes, because it was so still. One expected constantly to

The Woman Who Has Challenged the Rockefeller Billions

Josephine Roche, President of the Rocky Mountain Fuel Company, Publicly Warned John D. Jr., That There Should Be No Reduction in Wages—And the Colorado Coal War Was On.

By W. C. MURPHY JR.

DENVER, Colorado.

COLORADO today is the battling ground for an epic struggle between conflicting economic philosophies, and the outcome of the fight may determine the future of the great American coal industry. On one side are arrayed the power and influence of the Rockefeller billions, represented by the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company. On the other side is Miss Josephine Roche, president of the Rocky Mountain Fuel Company, second largest coal producer in Colorado, but still a pygmy compared with the opposition, with its almost limitless resources and capacity for bringing pressure to bear in high places.

The question at issue is whether wages shall be reduced because of the present depression in the coal industry. The Rockefeller company says they should be reduced and has filed formal notice with the Colorado Industrial Commission that wage cuts will be made in its mines. Miss Roche, whose company pays considerably higher wages than the Rockefeller company, says there should be no reductions, and she has publicly warned John D. Rockefeller Jr., that persistence in the policy announced by his Colorado company may lead to a recurrence of conditions of disorder and suffering similar to those which culminated in the "Ludlow massacre" of 1914.

Miss Roche is following the doctrine enunciated by President Hoover and other administration spokesmen who oppose wage cuts on the ground that such practices will retard the nation's economic recovery. It may be that her stand will attract the support of those political and economic leaders who are constantly mouthing this doctrine in public, but so far there has been no discernible evidence of such reinforcements. However, Miss Roche is accustomed to fighting her battles alone. She administered a sound spanking to the reactionary elements in her own company a few years ago and she is gambling her own considerable fortune on her ability to win in the present fight.

Miss Roche was one of the few coal operators who indorsed President Hoover's apparently abortive attempt to bring the miners and the operators around a conference table in Washington for a frank discussion of the evils preying upon their industry and the possible steps toward amelioration of those evils. She has some very definite ideas on what is wrong with many of the coal companies and she would be delighted to air those views at such a gathering. For instance, she thinks the average coal company is drained by too many high salaries for swivel-chair executives and other interested parties whose only connection with mining is manipulation of mining stocks. She thinks it pays to give labor a square deal, to recognize collective bargaining and arbitration of disputes. She says it is good business to pay high wages.

THE embarrassing part to some of her critics is that she can produce the records of her own company to prove her arguments.

For most of her life Miss Roche has been shocking the conservative elements in Colorado—and getting away with it. The daughter of a wealthy Colorado coal operator, from whom she inherited her interest in the Rocky Mountain company, she attended Vassar and then took some post-graduate work at Columbia. Then she went home to Denver and got a job. That, in itself, was something of a shock, but the shock was multiplied a hundredfold when the job turned out to be on the Denver police force. She became Denver's first policewoman. Later she became a special probation officer for the court presided over by Judge Lindsey. Those two jobs built up the background out of which she evolved her convictions on social justice, and now she is in a position to try out her theories for the benefit of her own employes. That opportunity materialized a few years ago when her father died and she inherited his large holdings in the Rocky Mountain company. Back in 1914, when Colorado was torn with industrial strife that shocked the nation and finally resulted in the use of Federal troops, the Rocky Mountain Fuel Company was one of the Big Three combination—the others being the Rockefeller company and the Victor American Fuel Company—which led the fight to break the power of the United Mine Workers of America. The operators won in that struggle at the cost of many lives and great destruction of property; the union was thoroughly whipped and when comparative peace finally came there was not a single union mine left in Colorado. In fact, there are none today except those operated by Miss Roche's company, and therein lies much of the significance of the present controversy.

The wage cuts recently proclaimed by the Rockefeller company were preceded by a price-cutting war of extreme severity. That war is still on, and if it should result in the wrecking of the Rocky Mountain company there is no doubt that the miners' union will once more be driven out of Colorado. Fighting a price-cutting war against the Rockefeller billions is no laughing matter, even for a $10,000,000 company such as Miss Roche heads. The Rockefeller company already has advertised the "lowest price in 20 years" for bituminous coal in Denver, and the end is not yet in sight.

Miss Roche waited until the price cuts had been followed by the announcement that wages would be reduced, and then she sent a public telegram to John D. Rockefeller Jr., reminding him that:

"Following the Colorado loss of life and property in 1914, which culminated in the Ludlow massacre, you widely advertised a new industrial program by public assurances which now take on fresh importance to the effect that conditions leading to industrial upheaval in Colorado would never recur. But the causes of industrial unrest were not removed, and the traditional and anti-social methods of the past are being again employed by your company. The disorganization and chaos of the coal industry cannot be corrected by forcing labor to take lower wages, and by sidestepping the responsibility for correcting operating and marketing abuses which prevail in the industry. This responsibility rests finally and absolutely upon those who own or control holdings in industrial concerns, not upon executive officers."

Still speaking as one owner to another, and possibly having in mind the Rockefeller company's recent statement showing losses, Miss Roche went on:

"Our company, operating under a union contract and paying the highest miners' wages in the State, has had its operating costs substantially reduced, its production per man greatly increased, and with State coal production decreasing about 25 per cent this year below the same period last year, our company's tonnage has not suffered a decline."

It was the Ludlow affair, in which the militia sought to protect mine property by pouring machine gun bullets into a crowd of women and children, that made Miss Roche determined to do something about conditions in the Colorado coal mines. She did not have an opportunity to carry out her plans until after her father's death, but thereafter things moved swiftly. The stock she inherited was enough to dominate the Rocky Mountain company's affairs for ordinary purposes, but what she had in mind was no ordinary matter. Consequently, she set out on a quiet campaign to acquire additional stock and to obtain proxies from other stockholders until she was in a position where she could say just how the company would be run. Then she held a meeting of the board of directors and calmly announced that thereafter the company's mines would be operated by union labor under union contracts.

THAT did not set well with the more reactionary directors of the company and there were stormy scenes in the board room. However, Miss Roche had the votes. When one of the other large stockholders made a grandstand play by demanding that she take over his stock if she intended to run things along such new-fangled lines he fell into a trap that had been neatly set for him. Immediately, she pulled out a check prepared for just that contingency and tendered it to the disgruntled director to make his offer binding. He had to take it, and some of his business associates had many hearty laughs over the way in which he had been maneuvered out of the company.

Demonstrating that she meant what she said, Miss Roche called in representatives of the United Mine Workers and a contract was prepared and signed. That contract is a notable document. As a preamble it has a "Declaration of Principles" which reads like a charter of economic justice and decency:

"We, the signers of this document, seeking a new era in the industrial relations of Colorado, unite in welcoming this opportunity to record the spirit and principles of this agreement.

"Our purposes are:

"To promote and establish industrial justice.

"To substitute reason for violence, confidence for misunderstanding, integrity and good faith for dishonest practices, and a union of effort for the chaos of the present economic warfare.

"To avoid needless and wasteful strikes and lockouts through the investigation and correction of their underlying causes.

"To establish genuine collective bargaining between mine workers and operators through free and independent organization.

"To stabilize employment, production and markets through co-operative endeavor and the aid of science, recognizing the principle that increased productivity should be mutually shared through the application of equitable considerations to the rights of workers and to economic conditions affecting the operators and business of the company.

"To assure mine workers and operators continuing mutual benefits and consumers a dependable supply of coal at reasonable and uniform prices.

"To defend our joint undertaking against every conspiracy or vicious practice which seeks to destroy it; and in all other respects to enlist public confidence and support by safeguarding the public interest."

The contract itself specifies an eight-hour day and a six-day week, sets up procedure for the arbitration of disputes, provides for the "check-off" system of collecting union dues, and guarantees sanitation and medical facilities for the workers. It also has a unique provision permitting the company to reduce wages whenever a majority of the non-union mines in the State cut wages below a specified level. Always, however, it is specified that the union scale shall be higher than the non-union by a differential of approximately 23 cents a day.

Miss Roche had some notable assistance in framing that contract. The general counsel for her company was Edward P. Costigan, former chairman of the United States Tariff Commission and now a Senator from Colorado. Costigan, a Bull Moose leader in 1912 though he now bears a Democratic label and always outspokenly independent in politics or economics, has been one of Miss Roche's most effective advisers and backers. Some of his efforts were repaid in 1930, when union labor throughout the State rallied to his support and had a great deal to do with electing him to the Senate.

Another of the signers of the contract was John R. Lawson, second vice president and operating manager of the Rocky Mountain company. It has been suggested that Lawson's connection with the company is one of the reasons why the non-union operators in Colorado are so disturbed about the apparent success of Miss Roche's policy. Back in 1914 Lawson led the union miners in their losing struggle with the Big Three. When the unions lost Lawson found it was impossible for him to

ALTHOUGH it is an ancient custom for commonwealths to honor their great and noble dead with statues and memorials of every sort, few if any governments have established monuments in memory of the lawless men of their history. But exactly that strange precedent is about to be set by the State of Arizona, with the full encouragement and co-operation of her neighbors.

Arizona soon will have established a perpetual show place for her visitors who may have an interest in the escapades of the murderers and highwaymen and thieves and confidence men of a bygone era. The State is about to recondition an extraordinary old rock prison at Yuma, on the California line, most important of all the jails in the gun-totin' days. Except for spider webs and crawling insects and bats and owls, and an occasional tramp resident, the long tiers of iron and stone cells have been abandoned for more than 20 years.

The State of Arizona is impelled by no sniveling sentiment toward its guests of territorial days at Yuma. A new prison at Florence has seen many a hanging, is crowded now with convicts who have long years to serve. Rather does the State seek to preserve the wealth of romantic fact and fiction which form a part of the Yuma background, and which Arizona has found has a definite monetary value. Because of tourist trade, Arizona's spectacular history has proven one of her greatest assets and the old stone prison is to become a major unit in the fascinating array of "things we have to show you." A lurid assortment of legends has sprung up about the prison, but for stark, throbbing drama they cannot approach the little-known tales that are utterly true.

IN ITS effort to make the abandoned prison permanent, the State should have little trouble. For cells were originally carved into the side of a granite mountain, the "torture chamber" was sunk into the hardest of stone. The site was a rock promontory jutting into the very channel of the Colorado River, wildest stream west of the Mississippi. The Colorado blocked escape on three sides, and the fourth led onto a sand desert as dangerous as the Sahara itself. And if a convict elected to swim the river, he simply met desert again.

Escape held much of the forbidding aspect of fleeing from prison on the African desert, as dramatized in Percival Wren's stories of life in the French Foreign Legion. In fact, Yuma was the headquarters from which photoplays of Wren's stories were filmed, so similar is the setting there.

And yet—men escaped. Others tried it and failed.

About their lives, and the lives of the guards who sought to keep them in, is woven much of the fascination of Yuma's history. Some of the leading characters in the life dramas there are still living. By no means the least of these is a woman, "Mother" Ingalls, widow of Captain F. S. Ingalls, prison superintendent for years.

Mother Ingalls had in her all the loveliness of character a good woman could have, but she also had a highly capable trigger finger. When occasion demanded she could be as firm and fearless as any of the women of her pioneer era.

Without warning, one noon, a group of desperate prisoners suddenly made a break for freedom, killed a guard, and with a rifle maimed the sentinel who occupied the famous prison watch tower.

The watch tower was on top of the prison water tank, its view commanding everything for miles around. Upon its platform was mounted a Gatling gun, forerunner of the modern machine gun. Its four barrels, rotated and fired in rapid succession, formed a spitting "devil of death," much feared by prisoners.

"Kill every guard that starts up that tower!" a leader in the prison break shouted. The convicts knew that the Gatling must be kept silent until they could get out of its range.

State Will Recondition Old Rock Prison at Yuma as a Show Place for Visitors.

IN ITS effort to make the abandoned prison permanent, the State should have little trouble. For cells were originally carved into the side of a granite mountain, the "torture chamber" was sunk into the hardest of stone. The site was a rock promontory jutting into the very channel of the Colorado River, wildest stream west of the Mississippi. About their lives, and the lives of the guards who sought to keep them in, is woven much of the fascination of Yuma's history. Some of the leading characters in the life dramas there are still living. By no means the least of these is a woman, "Mother" Ingalls, widow of Captain F. S. A guard ran up the steps and swung the Gatling around. Before he could fire he fell, with a convict's bullet in him. A wholesale jail delivery threatened.

The old Yuma prison, with cells carved in the side of a granite mountain.

Mrs. F. S. Ingalls, widow of Captain Ingalls and the heroine of an attempted prison break.

Mother Ingalls saw it.

Her husband was responsible for those prisoners. Something had to be done. She didn't hesitate.

The woman dashed up the stairs and squatted behind the Gatling!

"Hell, that's Mother herself!" The convict with the rifle saw her and hesitated. Some of the prisoners stopped their fighting to stare a moment. She had "mothered" many of them.

"Shoot her down, you fool!" another one cried. "We cain't git chicken-hearted now!"

But men did escape, frequently.

A Mexican prisoner, working on a rock pile, one day picked up a stone and appeared to study it intently.

"Oro! Mucho oro!" (Gold! Much gold!) he called to his guard, Walter O'Brien.

WALTER had been a prospector, and gold fever still lingered in his veins. He hurried over to inspect the stone.

The Mexican struck him on the head with the piece of rock, grabbed the guard's Winchester and departed on the run.

The Gatling gun opened up, but the Mexican had gained a vantage point and answered with his stolen rifle. Then he ran to a reed thicket in the river and supposedly was caught in the mire and drowned.

But a few weeks later he sent the rifle back to the prison from Mexico with his compliments.

Cell row for life-termers.

"Three Fingers" Jack Laustenneau ought to be in fiction. But he operates just as ably in the records of fact.

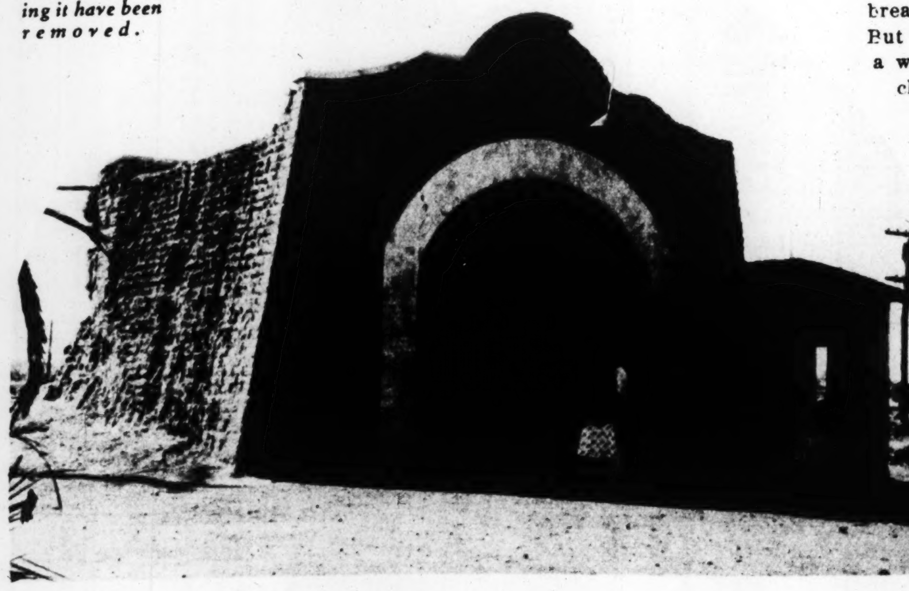
Three Fingers was sent by a Socialist organization in 1903 to Marene, Arizona, a mining town, to aid in obtaining arms for a Mexican revolution. He did it well. But he landed in the Yuma prison as a result, and in 1904 instigated a riot which is still meat for conversation among old-timers.

He headed a group of prisoners who seized W. M. Griffith, prison superintendent at the time, and his assistant, George Wilder, and beat them into insensibility. The two guards doubtless would have been killed, with the inevitable escape of several prisoners, if W. C. Buck, prison cook, hadn't entered the picture.

Buck entered like a prairie cyclone, his natural bulk augmented by a gleaming butcher knife.

He so thoroughly carved up the would-be prison breakers that they spent weeks in the hospital on the verge of death.

Buck was pardoned because of his part in the incident, and Three Fingers received a 10-year extension of his sentence. Three Fingers died two years later in the prison "snake-den" dungeon, about which an almost limitless number of yarns have been spun.



All that remains of Yuma prison's front gate. The walls adjoining it have been removed.

Yarns they are, and little else. The prison really had a rather dark cell, carved deep into the rock, as a place for solitary confinement. Incarceration there was the worst punishment inflicted on recalcitrant prisoners, plus a diet of bread and water. But it was well ventilated. One day a wire screen over the ventilator was cleaned out and two scorpions fell down, before the eyes of some sentimental women visitors to the prison.

Now scorpions are quite common in Arizona and really do little more harm than a wasp if they sting you. They sound bad, and look bad.

The good women spread the news of that "terrible snake den." The news grew as it spread. It is still spreading, and growing, two decades after the prison's abandonment.

The dungeon did give a hard-headed prisoner opportunity to think and philosophize without extraneous interruptions. Usually two or three days was all the time required for a man in "solitary" there to promise good behavior. But Three Fingers Jack Laustenneau entered it frothing with anger and "threw a fit" from which he died. He was the only prisoner ever to die there. Not one ever saw a snake there, or was done any form of bodily harm, contrary to all the stories about it.

As a dungeon, though, it failed once in its purpose. It never did break the iron will of "Swede" Rogers, by far the most outstanding prisoner ever held at Yuma.

Swede stayed in the "snake den" for 80 days on bread and water alone—as mule-headed as his guards—and finally was removed because he was too weakened to stand.

The desert stretching out behind the prison.

And Swede was not a terror, not an incorrigible, not a dangerous inmate at all. His was no background of city slums and criminals. He had come West as a youngster and mixed up in a train robbery, during which a man was killed, and he went to prison for life as a result. But back of that was a career of music and education. He was a graduate of Oxford, conversed fluently in five languages, played beautifully on a violin or piano, was altogether a most cheerful and popular young man.

But some mysterious law of nature, as Prison Commissioner S. C. Bragg put it, had endowed Swede with a superabundance of cussedness and temper, hence his stay in the dungeon.

Swede was too smart a man not to try an escape. He was repairing the prison's north wall one day, and essayed to run for the mud flats. But he mired in the river and could not free himself.

He bore a charmed life, or it would have been ended then and there. More than a hundred bullets spattered about him, and left him unscathed. He was escorted back to jail.

Later he organized a gang to try an escape. Part of the plan was that not a guard was to be harmed. He was to direct the seizing of them, and the men were to march quietly out and get away on stolen horses.

But his assistants became panicky at the crucial moment and attacked a guard. Whereupon Swede calmly began to fight on the guards' side, solely because his orders had been disobeyed. They did not escape, but Swede's sentence was reduced to 20 years.

Swede was exceedingly popular, even among the visitors to the prison. He was polite and refined in manner, and frequently was asked to play his violin at a social gathering in the town of Yuma. He would never go unless allowed to discard his stripes and wear ordinary clothing, and he never made an attempt to escape while thus employed.

SWEDE opened a store in prison and made some money as a confectioner and tobacconist. He was pardoned before half of his 20 years was served, and he disappeared and never since has been heard of by people here.

A great majority of the liberated prisoners from Yuma were never heard of again after departure. They left with a new suit of clothes, a $5 bill, a railroad ticket good for 300 miles in either direction, and the Warden's good-by.

A young man from an Eastern state ran foul of the Arizona law and landed in Yuma prison. In the course of months he began writing sweet and sentimental letters to his "mother" in the East. Welfare societies got wind of it, and started a move to have him freed.

They might have succeeded, had not a Federal secret service operative dropped in to prove that the "letters to Mother" were in code, and in reality laid well-made plans for another revolution in Mexico.

A cattle baron from Coconino County, Arizona, rode up to the prison gate one day on a fine horse. He was a splendid looking gentleman, wealthy, a leader in the State's business life.

He bore his own commitment papers from a District Court, and asked to be admitted. But the man had not even been tried and sentenced.

"The dam' fool jury may bring in a crazy verdict and stick me," the rancher explained. "I've got more time now than I will have later on, so I'll start serving my sentence."

He had been indicted on a cattle stealing charge, and had made arrangements with the court to start an

THE Russian spoke in impassioned French, for, unusual enough in one of his class, he knew but little English. Mrs. Vallance scarcely listened to what he was saying. She had heard him propose so often that the experience lacked novelty.

Mrs. Vallance stared past the green starboard lamp at the moon rising out of a placid sea. Tomorrow night the moon would rise out of the Contra Costa hills to gleam down on San Francisco and the harbor to which they were steaming.

This realization warmed her, so that she felt better disposed toward the Prince.

"No, thank you, Serge. It was sweet of you to ask again. But I'm not buying any husbands this evening."

Prince Rabinov smiled ruefully and made a despairing gesture.

"But you're improving, mon cher. Now you may give me a kiss."

The Prince caught fire and poured fervid words in Mrs. Vallance's ears. They were on the boat deck, hidden between two lifeboats, in a bridge-like space between the davits. Now he disengaged himself in a sort of frenzy and dropped to his knees on the deck.

"Get up, Serge. That is very un-American. It's all very pretty in Paris, but we are approaching the land of the free and the home of the Madagascar. From now on you will be American in your wooing, Serge. Besides, you can hardly keep me warm way down there by my feet, which are not cold, you understand. That's something no one ever said of Nellie Vallance—that she was ever known to have cold feet."

She translated the idiom literally—pieds froids—so that Prince Rabinov missed her meaning. But there could be no mistaking the lady's pleasure, and tonight the Prince was desperately anxious to please. Once they were ashore, in her native country, the Prince had a feeling that she would be utterly lost to him. It had been a costly investment, this journey from Paris via the Orient to San Francisco. Like most of his refugee countrymen, the Prince was sadly low in pocket. If the long voyage should prove a failure . . . Again fervid supplications were forced on her like wine.

"I do love you, I think . . . a little," she admitted. "You are very ardent and quite handsome, in a Continental fashion. But not tonight, my dear."

She returned to her guests in the lounge. She smiled at Mrs. Munday, who had just been dancing with Captain Stark. Had Mrs. Munday ever been wooed by a Russian? It was an experience she mustn't deny herself. There was "something" about those fellows; perhaps their association with samovars had given them a certain warmness.

Mrs. Munday encouraged further confidences. Such conversational tidbits would give her prestige at home. For Nellie Vallance, the spectacular spendthrift of Paris, was a name smart people mentioned.

Again and again the cables had carried the news of her exploits.

The newspapers had printed her pictures by the score. The news reels had shown her on thousands of screens: "Mrs. Nellie Vallance, the best-dressed woman in Europe, attends the races at Longchamps with the Marquis de Beaugency." . . . "Mrs. Nellie Vallance, co-discoverer of the famous Star of Madagascar mine, who has just divorced her husband in Paris." . . . "On the beach at Biarritz: Mrs. Nellie Vallance, the Cinderella of the Sierras, wearing a $5000 bathing suit, embroidered with flakes of gold." . . . "Mrs. Nellie Vallance leaving the Casino at Monte Carlo after winning 900,000 francs at baccarat. She is accompanied by Paul Andersol, one of her most devoted suitors."

MRS. MUNDAY regarded her hostess with an envy devoid of malice. Certainly Nellie Vallance was pretty, with her straight little nose and the tiny ears from which diamond circles were dangling.

A petite creature, small and given to comely curves—physical items that her gowns did nothing at all to conceal. These gowns, of which Mrs. Munday had seen an endless procession since the boat upped anchor in Kowloon Roads, were as startling and handsome as the wearer. It was evident that Nellie Vallance would pay a royal ransom in the customs shed tomorrow.

"But aren't you going to smuggle anything?"

"And rob the Government! My dear lady, do you know that we only pay our Ambassador $12,000 a year? The poor Government needs money terribly."

"I always smuggle something in, if it's only a bottle of perfume."

"Well, this is my first trip home," Nellie Vallance had said with none of the pretense of the nouveau riche. "The American customs are a new experience. When you were smuggling your first bottle of perfume, I dare say the dear old Madagascar was just a lonely part of the mountain."

And Nellie Vallance was just a gypsy, prospecting with her husband!

Mrs. Munday sighed at the physical contrast between herself and the girl. No doubt those years of following the mountain stream, of panning the gravel for specks of gold, had given this child of fortune her priceless spring of vitality.

NELLIE VALLANCE, turning from Mrs. Munday, pointed a reprimanding finger at the master.

"I'm mad at you, Captain Stark. I distinctly told you, the first day out, that I wanted a first-class storm. At least you might have a sailor jump overboard and get rescued."

"We'd have him out of the water," the captain smilingly boasted, "before he'd any more than got his feet wet."

"What does he say?" the Prince asked.

Nellie Vallance explained very carefully just what the captain had said. She had a reason for explaining so carefully. Her eyes shone as she looked at the Russian.

On an impulse she stopped the music and addressed her guests in English. "Let's all go out back and read the log. The one who guesses nearest gets a prize of a hundred dollars."

They sauntered, a noisy, laughing crowd, from the after-lounge to the taffrail. Nellie Vallance skipped before them, as though to be first to read the mileage. But she did not pause at the rail where the revolving log rope was anchored. With an agility which stunned the others to momentary inaction, she threw herself over it, and dropped feet first in the boiling wake of the vessel.

In the hysterical confusion which followed, Captain Stark was as quick as the girl had been. He whirled and raced to the docking bridge, booming commands as he did so. The ship shuddered like a beast in deadly combat, fighting the sudden attack of the screws against its forward momentum. A buoy shot downward and broke in a flare as it came to rest on the water.

Then a fresh cry broke from the excited passengers grouped astern. Captain Stark looked just in time to see Prince Rabinov, coatless and shoeless, climb the rail and abruptly vanish. "Damned fool!" he gasped and jerked the telegraph signal. The engines stopped before the suction of reversed propeller could draw the Prince to a mangled death in their madly churning vortex.

Far astern, a little dark point in the moonlight, the master saw Nellie Vallance slowly swimming toward the buoy.

It was shortly before 10 the following morning when the liner passed quarantine and the newspaper pack swarmed aboard. They found her, laughing and dazzlingly clad, with her arm linked tightly in Rabinov's.

"My next husband," she introduced him. "Yes, I'm to be a Princess in exile. Princess Nellie Rabinov! Oh, dear, it was the most thrilling moment in all my life when they pulled me into the boat and I found this dear, a silly Russian, all dripping wet in his evening clothes. What? I just started to weep and fell on his neck. Didn't give him a chance to propose again. He does it very prettily, too—but this time I beat him to it."

Her vivacity abruptly vanished and Nellie Vallance was thoughtful. Walking across to the opposite rail, she looked eastward toward the hills.

A poignant little emotion rose in her throat and seemed to catch there. The hills of California were home—and she had roamed afar.

It was an odd coincidence that at this moment a reporter should mention her divorce.

"Now, don't you think I've given you boys enough news for one day?" Nellie Vallance asked, rather wearily.

"But your reason was never very clear—at least in the stories which came from Paris. It's always been a sort of mystery why you got it."

"Then why not let it stay one?"

"What's that?" the Prince asked eagerly, for he had caught the word "divorce."

A frown of annoyance flashed over her face and promptly disappeared. Her fiance, so smartly correct with his cane and his spats, his tawny gloves and soft silk scarf, seemed suddenly out of focus against the background of her hills. Somehow, his jaunty black mustache, so fastidiously waxed, his face as carefully lotioned as a woman's, his mouth with its delicate, well-bred smile, were placed in disturbing contrast to a tanned young face which grinned at her through the barbs of a six days' beard. The smell of pipe smoke in the pines mingled, in her memory, with the fragrant aroma of Prince Rabinov's cigarette.

The divorce, like so many things she had done in that faraway city, had been the result of a whim. But she couldn't tell the world that. She couldn't say, "I wrote Ed and asked him to join me in Paris, and he replied on a postal that he hadn't time, and so I got mad and looked up a lawyer." She couldn't let the whole world know that the Star of Madagascar mine had transmuted a carefree, laughing pal into a stranger cursed with the gold lust.

It was here in San Francisco that she last set eyes on her husband. The property was paying at a fabulous rate. Nellie Vallance, long weary of the routine of mining production, had finally prevailed on her husband to take a trip.

First, they would go to New York and buy all that their hearts desired. Then they would cross the ocean and have a look at Paris.

But Ed Vallance, restless as one who has something on his mind, had endured San Francisco for a day, then fled to his mine in the mountains. He left a note to tell her that he had a hunch he was needed. And Nellie, hurt and angry, had gone on to Paris without him.

Nellie Vallance returned to her suite and remained there until the boat had docked. Later, in the pier shed, she awaited the customs searcher.

Then a man stepped up to greet her, and Mrs. Vallance smiled as she recognized her banker.

"Just the person I'm needing most! Mr. Sills, I'm almost broke."

Mr. Sills looked concerned.

"I hope you're not in debt," he said.

"Why did you ask me that?"

"The mine didn't pay its usual quarterly dividend."

"But its production was just as large as ever in the last report."

"I know. I don't understand it. I wrote to Mr. Vallance."

"And what did he say?"

"Nothing. I didn't get a word from him."

"Did you write to Terry Rohan?"

"NO; HE wouldn't know. Mr. Vallance bought his holdings. He bought all the stock but yours. He wants to buy that, too."

"My stock, too!"

"Exactly. He was in to see me last August. He said he wanted to own the whole mine himself, just as soon as he had the money. But he'd spent all he had to buy out the others."

"H'm. How did Ed look to you, Mr. Sills? Was he happy?"

"No, he was very serious."

"Oh . . . I wonder if my divorce"—

"He didn't mention it, Mrs. Vallance. I—ah—have an idea that—you know, he owns two-thirds of the stock now—more than enough to control. I wondered if he hadn't deliberately failed to declare a dividend to—ah—discommode you, Mrs. Vallance, and perhaps force you to sell at a discount."

"Why, Ed wouldn't"—— She had started to say that such a trick was beneath him, and then she remembered how Ed had changed. "I'll start for the mine at once," she said. "But what about the customs?"

"You can pay on your personal luggage and have all the trunks impounded."

At that moment Prince Rabinov joined them and Mrs. Vallance presented the banker.

"Serge, I'm going up to the gold mine. Do you want to come along?"

"Ah, the gold mine!" His eyes gleamed eagerly as his tongue caressed the words. "It will be a very great honor, my dear, to visit with you the gold mine."

At Nevada City they halted to spend the night. Nellie Vallance was dressed just as when she came off the boat. Dainty snake-skin slippers, a dashing sports suit from the Boulevard Malesherbes, a hat which had cost 3000 francs, a coat of glossy sables. It was on the train, bound for Sacramento, that she had opened the coat, loosened the collar and caught the sparkle of her diamond necklace in the little narrow mirror. She smiled at the reflection of her first wild outburst of extravagance in the gilded shops of Manhattan. Imagine Nellie Vallance, who had panned the placers in boots and breeches, who had whipped the streams for her evening meal, who had known no meat for months on end but venison and rabbit—imagine her coming back to those same mountain trails with a string worth forty thousand!

The lights of the Empire mine gleamed across the snow as they were approaching Grass Valley.

Nellie Vallance knew most of the tradesmen. She and Ed had married here, had spent their grubstakes here for supplies, had returned here to sell their gold dust. It was long past twilight, but she went to the home of a shoe merchant and bade him return to his shop.

"I've got to have a pair of boots, Mr. Law. I'm going up yonder on the early stage."

As the boots were being fitted, Prince Rabinov sat negligently on the bench beside her.

"Serge, you'd better get some boots. There's lots of snow at the mine."

"Some rubbers will do, my adored one."

"Oh, all right." She shrugged her shoulders. "Mr. Law, will you fit this fellow with a pair of your heavy rubbers?"

A strange contradiction of feeling went with her the following morning. They crossed the south fork of the Yuba, then began to ascend on the opposite side. She saw the white rush of the river and heard its soft lulling murmur.

They passed great hollows torn in the earth by the hydraulic guns of the '80s. Nellie Vallance thought of her former husband. What the banker had said about him disturbed her more and more. In the beginning when they needed money to develop their mine, a corporation was formed. Ed and she each received a third of the stock in exchange for their claim to the property. The remaining third was sold to friends and to friends of friends—$50 here, a hundred there, $6000 in all. Out of this modest start had come the stream of gold which poured from the Madagascar.

He controlled it now, without her help. He could do as he pleased about it. But for Ed to act as her banking agent suspected was even a greater shock to her than the financial effect of his action. After all they had been through together!

The hills and the pines, the tumbling dash of the Yuba, were like yellowed love notes taken from a trunk. She remembered the evening spent in camp, she with her mouth organ and Ed with his banjo, singing and laughing and talking. She remembered the endless discussions of what they would do when they struck it rich.

"Yes. I've been over in Europe."

"That's right. I've seen pieces about you in the paper." The speaker spat on the floor. "Understand they shut down the Madagascar stamp mill and are aiming to pay off the men."

"What!" gasped Nellie Vallance. "You don't mean all the men?"

"That's what I heard."

"Ready for Graniteville, ma'am," called a voice at the door, and they went out to enter a sledge.

AT THE sawmill south of Snow Tent, where the down-stage meets the up-stage and exchanges mail and passengers, the truth of the report was apparent. Standing about a roaring fire beside the roadway were half a dozen care-free men with pay-off cash in their pockets. They were the vanguard, the lucky few who had preempted a place in the sledge. The Star of Madagascar, they said, was as barren of gold as a coal mine!

The sledges parted and went plodding away through the pines. About two miles beyond Snow Tent the first of the hikers passed them. From then on they came in increasing numbers, scores of miners in boots and denims, packing their blanket rolls.

Prince Rabinov wondered who they were.

"Gold diggers," she explained, and was thoughtful, "leaving a played-out mine."

On the steep down-trail out of Graniteville, with the snow packed hard by hundreds of heavy boots, the Prince's rubber overshoes were not of very much service. Again and again he slid and fell, his polished cane flying flippantly up as its titled owner flopped downward. He tried to walk beside the trail, but the snow, knee-deep and often deeper, forced up beneath his trouser legs and caused him great discomfort.

"This isn't the Boulevard des Italiens!" Nellie Vallance remarked to the Prince recumbent.

It was better than that, she told herself, gazing off across the valley.

The trail turned sharply to the right. Nellie Vallance halted.

"Behold the Star of Madagascar!" she said.

The long, sloping roof of the stamp mill was perched, still well below them, beside the gulch called Willful Murder. To the left, beyond the bunk houses, she at last made out the cabin that had been her home and Ed's. Smoke was issuing out of its chimney!

And then, passing on to the cabin, she stopped with a gasp of wonder. Distinctly, above the Yuba's murmur, she heard the tunk-tunk of a banjo. A voice was singing, full-throated and

Nellie Vallance stood there listening, a smile on her lips. Then she opened the door.

"Nellie! Well, I'm a son-of-a-gun!"

A dog leaped at her, while its tail did a furious wagging. Ed took a step forward, as quickly stopped, and his smile abruptly faded.

"This is sure a surprise," he said in an altered tone. Then he stared at the Prince in the doorway.

"Ed—I want you to meet my friend. He's a genuine Russian Prince—Prince Rabinov."

"Prince, I'm glad to know you. Make yourself at home."

He thrust out his hand and the other man, bowing, tucked the cane beneath his arm and carefully removed his glove.

"Monsieur Vallance, I am . . . honor

At last he could shake the huge brown hand and bow once more in greeting.

"Sit down by the stove here. Make yourself at home."

Nellie Vallance started to remove her coat, and the Prince was all attendance. She pulled off her hat and stood before her former husband in the strange combination of boots and chic Parisian dress, with a fortune in diamonds about her neck and her hair still smartly curled. Ed stared for a moment, then turned away and looked vaguely around for his pipe.

"You heard the news, I guess."

hear noise, reverberation, with this display. But spring began to come. On the night of April 6 it was 31 degrees below zero, at noon in the sun only 10 below.

He hoped to escape by way of the Bering Straits to Alaska. It was a daring plan, taking him over an even more deserted and frozen waste than that which he had crossed to reach his place of exile. In November of 1912 he moved on to a small town 500 miles west of Russkoye Ustye, waited there for natives who could drive him and started out again vaguely in the direction of either the Bering Sea or the Sea of Okhotsk, where he thought he might be able to stow away aboard a vessel for Canada or Alaska. But his plans were frustrated by natives who refused to take him beyond a certain point. Possibly, he reflects, it was their refusal that saved his life.

NEXT he made his way with the aid of native drivers and reindeer teams to Verkhoyansk, which was one of the villages that the Governor of Yakutsk had said he might live in. In January, 1913, he observed a temperature of 95.4 degrees below zero. Verkhoyansk is in a mountain valley that is almost never disturbed by winds. The heavy cold air comes down and settles in the Verkhoyansk valley and stays there, all the time getting colder and colder. Birds freeze to death in mid-air. Marmots, small animals like chipmunks, burrow under the ground where they become like ice-balls, as hard as stone. But in the spring they thaw out and are as lively as ever. Zenzinov got so he could tell without looking at his thermometer when it was more than 60 degrees below zero—his breath exhaled below 60 would make a rasping sound as it instantly congealed.

But Verkhoyansk had nearly 200 citizens, including three or four other political prisoners. It actually had a postoffice with a room early sentence. After some months, though, the trial came up and the jury's verdict was "not guilty." The cattle baron rode his fine horse away.

The most sensational, perhaps, of the prison breaks occurred in 1887. Thomas Gates, superintendent, entered the prison yard early one morning. His coming was a signal agreed upon by the prisoners.

Gates was seized by a group of Mexicans, who had managed to conceal and keep knives. Using him as a shield against guards' bullets, the prisoners pushed toward the main gate. Guards were watching every move, awaiting a chance to open fire without endangering Gates.

One guard was a crack shot, in an era when crack shots were good indeed. His name was Hartlee.

Hartlee started picking off Mexicans. He fired so rapidly and with such deadly effect that only two would-be jail breakers were left standing.

One of the two, named Puebla, stabbed Superintendent Gates through the lungs in a last moment of desperation. Riggs, the other prisoner, who had obtained a pistol, then shot Puebla in the heart. Then Riggs' problem was to avoid being shot by Hartlee, for Hartlee wasn't sure Riggs had turned loyal. But Riggs did some tall talking and was spared, to be pardoned later for saving Gates' life.

gay—a voice that was familiar!

Nellie Vallance nodded.

"It was nothing but arsenical sulphide and native gold—the richest sort of ore you could ask for. Then we ran bang into barren quartz."

"Ed, you're not broke!"

"Sure, I am." He grinned. "Flat as when we started."

Nellie Vallance's spirits were suddenly light. Sills, the agent, was wrong.

Ed put a coffee pot on the stove and went exploring in the nearby storeroom. Nellie followed him out.

"Ed, are you glad to see me?"

He turned with an odd sort of look in his eyes.

"You know there's no one I'd rather see."

"How do you like my . . . friend?"

"Why, he looks like a pretty classy fellow."

"He . . . we're engaged to be married."

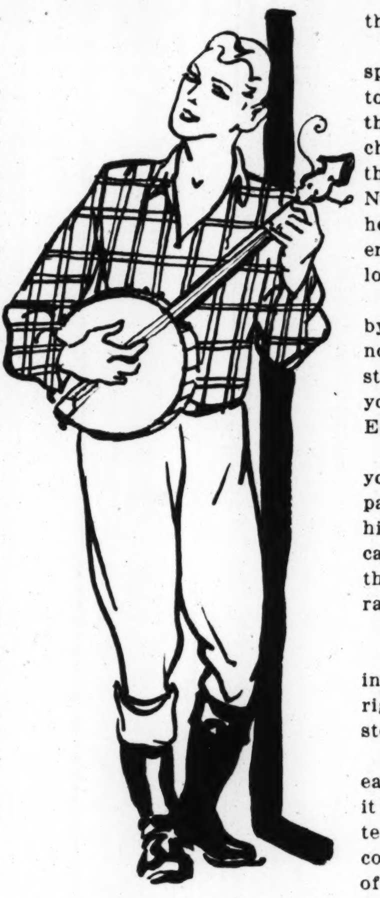
"I figured something about like that when I got notice that you'd divorced me. Well——" he took down a can and stared fixedly at the label. "I'd never have guessed that the Madagascar would produce a prince for you to marry. I wish you plenty of happiness, Nellie."

"Thanks, Ed."

"If I had it all to do over——"

"What would you do?" she prompted.

"I'd go along with you, just the way we planned."



"I'm sorry you didn't Ed."

"Yes, I am too."

They ate dinner by the light of carbide lamps, for the power plant was dark and deserted. Ed's flannel shirt flared open at the throat. The Prince, having changed his collar, was dressed for a stroll in the Champs Elysee. The gems which circled Nellie's throat glittered like starbeams.

Their conversation was a curious medley of rushing French and rather drawling English.

"Jumped in the ocean to save you!"

Ed rose abruptly and caught the Prince's hand. "Say, you're all right——"

A hideous scream rose out of the gorge. The Prince looked thoroughly startled.

"A mountain lion," Nellie explained.

Ed took his rifle and strode out into the darkness.

When he returned Ed halted before the cabin and regarded it wretchedly. He would like to do something for Nellie, to give her a handsome wedding gift, to make a last appreciative gesture. He couldn't even do that—not now. Just wish her a lot of happiness and see her start back up the trail.

He heard voices speaking an alien tongue. As he entered, the voices ceased. A change had come over the couple in the cabin. Nellie seemed angry; her color was heightened, but the Prince looked merely sullen.

"We'll have to be up by four," she announced, "to catch the stage at seven. Where you going to put us, Ed?"

"You sleep . . where you used to." A little pain seemed to jab at his heart. "The Prince can take the cot in there by the gun rack."

"What about you?"

"Oh, I'll just roll up in a blanket and lie right here by the stove."

When they left, so early in the morning, it was just like a winter midnight. Ed escorted them to the foot of the trail, shook hands, and wished them the best of luck.

It was just as he had pictured. She turned in the trail and waved to him. Then—she was off to live in a palace!

Back in his cabin Ed washed up the breakfast things and swept the kitchen floor. Then he tip-toed into the bedroom.

A scent of perfume pervaded the place—a sweet, subtle odor that closed on his heart and left it dully aching.

He placed the lamp on a reading table and sat down at the foot of the bed.

The print of her head was in the pillow, the slight depression left by her body.

His dog rushed out, barking. The barking abruptly ceased—and Nellie stood in the door.

"Forgot something?"

"Ed!"

She began to cry. Then, by some queer chance, her arms were tight about him.

"But, Nellie—"

"Oh, hush."

"You shouldn't have come back. I can't stand it now—you leaving me."

"I couldn't stand it either," she told him.

"The Prince—?"

"He's falling up the trail just as fast as his spats will let him."

"You mean you gave him the go-by!" This amazing truth impressed itself, and Ed knew an impulse of sympathy. "The poor fellow! He'll blow his brains out!"

"Ed, you're so simple."

"Yes, I'm just a brainless fool," he muttered with full conviction.

It came to him later, as they were standing by the kitchen stove, that they would have to go clear to Nevada City to get a new marriage license.

"A pity, isn't it, that I got that silly divorce. Well, our days of luxuries are over, dear! I'll never get another."

With a light-hearted laugh she removed her coat.

"Why, Nellie, you've lost your pretty string of beads!"

Again she laughed—so lighthearted, gay, you'd have thought they were made of glass.

"Not lost, Ed. I did just exactly what you did with your men. And now the Star of Madagascar can rest in peace, free of debt."

"I don't just exactly get you, hon."

"Why, I paid off the last of its gold diggers and sent him up the trail."

But Verkhoyansk had nearly 200 citizens, including three or four other political prisoners. It actually had a postoffice with a room that was uniformly heated by a stove.

This part of the world, Zenzinov writes, is really one great icebox where for centuries upon centuries buried objects have been preserved. Thus, the "fresh" meat of a prehistoric mammoth has been eaten by local explorers, he says. How deeply the earth is frozen has never been determined. At Yakutsk they have established below zero temperatures as deep as 600 feet beneath the surface. Even rum froze in Zenzinov's traveling flask. Pure alcohol alone withstood the cold.

"One of the strangest phenomena was the rumbling of the earth in the burning cold. The ground seemed to crack underneath, with a sound that resembled artillery blasts. The dull roars reverberated in the still air with echoes that jammed one's heart. I had heard of this weird Arctic thundering, but it nevertheless filled me with anxiety. In the dark and ice-bound waste, the cracking noise made one think of fissures in the earth's surface, of dead eternities swallowing one forever. . . ."

The climate in Verkhoyansk is equally bad in summer when the mosquitoes are a menace to life, human and animal. "The Yakutsk swamps and forests become impassable without the special netting used here to cover one's head and body down to the waist."

"It is inevitable," Zenzinov writes, "that Verkhoyansk should have been regarded as one of the worst places of exile. A number of people committed suicide here, others died from the unendurable conditions. On account of the despondency which the locality induced, drunkenness and gambling were common here." He wandered around the Verkhoyansk region, turned over other plans for escape and finally his exile was over.

The long journey back began. On a steamer going up the Lena he and several fellow exiles learned of the World War. It was in the latter part of August, 1914. And with a rush Zenzinov came back to the turmoil of civilization.

get a job in any coal mine in Colorado. Some of his friends say he was "blacklisted" to penalize him for his leadership against the companies. But the "blacklisting," if such it was, did not include Miss Roche after she won control of the Rocky Mountain company.

It is this union contract that points to the deep, underlying significance of the struggle raging in the Colorado coal industry today. The time-worn economic philosophy of the "rugged individualist" according to which labor is a commodity, to be purchased as cheaply as possible and utilized to maximum capacity until worn out, is at grips with the more modern and more humane system which recognizes the partnership of labor in the industry it makes possible. That is an issue that is not confined to Colorado; it is one that the current depression is bringing to the fore throughout the land—an issue that millions of unemployed men are pondering as they walk the streets waiting vainly for jobs in industries to which they have given years of service. The defiance hurled by an intrepid young woman to one of the greatest fortunes in the world is, after all, only a symbol of this broader conflict.

The significance of Miss Roche's battle with the Rockefeller company is not overlooked by those elements which have the most to gain should she win. She enjoys the confidence of the leaders of organized labor and their support as far as they can give it. During a recent visit to Washington she spent a week or more conferring with the chiefs of the American Federation of Labor and the railroad brotherhoods on methods of fighting wage cuts.

She was quite definite in stating her own position.

"I am not only opposed to wage reductions, but to all those tendencies that might bring them about," she said. "The Rocky Mountain Fuel Company has found that high wages, based on co-operative bargaining between the company and the men, increase tonnage, reduce operating costs, eliminate turnover in employment and create harmonious relationships between the company and the workers. Our last contract with the United Mine Workers of America still has another year to run, and we are unalterably committed to our present policy."

When Miss Roche came into her inheritance she might have sold her coal company holdings and retired to live in luxury on the playgrounds of the world. But luxury does not appeal to her. She suggests that her coal company is not drained to maintain any expensive hobbies such as racing stables, yachts or palatial homes. Possibly that is the key to the difference between the position of her company and some of the others. She says it is quite possible to live happily in a modest two-room apartment in Denver—and she does just that.

The Mystery of Prehistoric Illinois

were not as advanced as the Cahokias, they buried their dead in relatively shallow graves. Something of their way of life can be pieced together, more or less by guesswork, and theories advanced now may be rejected by facts discovered this winter in the laboratory.

A DESCRIPTION of the Kaskaskias by an early traveler has survived:

"You can see no finer looking people. They are neither short nor tall, usually; there are some that you could encompass with two hands. They have legs that seem drawn with an artist's pen. They have faces as beautiful as white milk in so far as this is possible for savages of that country. They have the most regular and the whitest teeth imaginable. They are full of life, and yet at the same time lazy. They are tattooed behind from the shoulders to the heels and, as soon as they reach the age of 25, on the front of the stomach, the sides and the upper arms."

They were very proud of themselves, their records as warriors and as hunters. Jealous of their wives, they were reported to cut off the noses of unfaithful mates. Yet Father Marquette reports them as having an air of humanity that was lacking in the other Indians that he encountered.

The women dressed in a skin reaching from the belt to the knees. Their hair was worn long and tied behind the head. Cheeks, arms and breasts were tattooed. The men probably wore breechclouts in summer, and added a robe in winter.

They lived on buffalo, fish and small animals that they caught in traps or shot with the bow. The fish were caught in traps made of wooden stakes. The buffalo was smoked and stored for the winter. Corn was raised in considerable quantities, parched and stored for future use. Marsh roots, squash and many kinds of nuts and fruits added variety to the diet of the Kaskaskias.

These people were not sun worshipers, as is sometimes stated. Their name for the Force that governed the world was Manitou. Manitou manifested itself to each person individually, to some through inanimate objects such as stones or trees, while to others it appeared in the shape of animals. Ceremonies were often held or, rather, given by the jugglers who were the shamans, or priests, interpreting the dreams and other manifestations of the Manitou. The most important ceremony was that of the calumet—the pipe of peace and the pipe of war.

This vanished tribe lived in rectangular structures made of saplings stuck in the ground in two parallel rows and tied together at the top to form an arched framework, over which were draped mats of reeds and mats of bark. There were from three to five fires going in a house at the same time, each fire accommodating two families.

It is almost certain that the relics so far unearthed are not alone those of the Kaskaskias. A great many of the objects, possibly the majority, indicate an origin much farther south. In one grave relics of the early white invaders were found, a double-barred cross of French silver and a rusted iron knife. Evidence, Dr. Kelly says, that a historic settlement, known to have existed after 1818, had been established within a few feet of a village believed to have dated at least 100 years earlier and near mounds where rotted potsherds indicated an age greater by several hundred years.

A mysterious construction was found on the Hiser farm, two miles southwest of Murphysboro. Each of two mounds excavated had in the top a depression shaped like a bathtub and fashioned out of gumbo that was almost as hard as rock. It was in the smaller of these depressions that the heart-shaped vessel was found, along with other bowls, a copper pendant and a flint of steely sharpness.

THE work of the archeologists has not been easy. They have had to push into swampy, snake-infested regions in search of reported rock drawings and graves. Carter has often balanced his drawing board on a rock and, while he fought off mosquitoes, put down the symbols hewn long ago in the rock. Dr. Kelly says it will take 11 more years of work, in the field and in the laboratory, before it will be possible to say anything very definite about the prehistory of this country. Missouri, he says, is rich in prehistoric prizes. There is a great need for a similar archeological survey in several states. Perhaps some day, when all these studies have been completed and the final conclusions compared, it will be possible to trace the origin of the first Americans. Then, instead of theory, there will be fact to prove how man first happened to exist on this continent.

Arizona's Monument to Her Outlaws

early sentence. After some months, though, the trial came up and the jury's verdict was "not guilty." The cattleman rode his fine horse away.

The most sensational, perhaps, of the prison breaks occurred in 1887. Thomas Gates, superintendent, entered the prison yard early one morning. His coming was a signal agreed upon by the prisoners.

Gates was seized by a group of Mexicans who had managed to conceal knives. Using him as a shield against guards' bullets, the prisoners moved toward the main gate. Guards were watching every move, awaiting a chance to open fire without endangering Gates.

One guard was a crack shot, in an era when crack shots were good indeed. His name was Hartlee.

Hartlee started picking off Mexicans. He fired so rapidly and with such deadly effect that only two [illegible] jail breakers were left standing.

One of the two, named Puebla, stabbed Superintendent Gates through the lungs in a last moment of desperation. Riggs, the other prisoner, who had obtained a pistol, then shot Puebla in the heart. Then Riggs' problem was to avoid being shot by Hartlee, for Hartlee wasn't sure Riggs had turned loyal. But Riggs did some tall talking and was spared, to be pardoned later for saving Gates' life.

A few years after his pardon he was shot to death during a saloon brawl at Stockton, Texas, according to a report which drifted back to Yuma.

Superintendent Gates' life had barely been saved. In fact, the venerable officer never fully recovered, it is said. In his last years he grew fond of talking about the episode to friends and others who would listen, and an attentive listener would be given "the knife with which I was stabbed that day."

In his last year or two Mr. Gates thus gave away 25 such knives!

During the years prior to 1909 escapes and attempted escapes from the Yuma prison were numerous. Men would forever brave the dangers of the scorching sands, thirst and hunger for a chance at freedom. Indian trailers were hired to bring them in, and two such trailers, anxious for the $50 reward, often brought in the wrong man.

More often the fleeing men died from natural causes after their escape or fell before the Gatling gun or the guards' rifles. The prison was not a Chillon, not a torture house, not a hideous, fearsome place at all. It had its well-stocked library. It had its playgrounds. Its inmates were treated well and fed well. It had a good sewer system, and it had the second electric light plant west of Chicago. Still, it was a prison, and men sought to escape even in the face of death.

But there is a tragedy worse than death.

Two groups of ingenious prisoners at Yuma experienced it, experienced an ironic slap from fate which must have been maddening.

Four men were housed in one cell, at night, for years. They were "good" prisoners, gave no trouble. But they longed for freedom.

During spare moments for nearly five years these men toiled patiently, digging a tunnel through which to escape.

They had to scrape with such tiny instruments as they could smuggle in—bits of rock, a shoe heel, small sticks, nails—and carry the dirt out, literally a few spoonfuls a day, as they went about each day's assigned chores. The dirt they hid in their pockets, in cuffs of their trousers, in hat bands, anywhere so they could remove it from their cell. Men never showed greater patience. At length they had a long tunnel to the outer wall, one or two kicks would break it through and they could crawl to safety under cover of night.

But one of them was so elated on the afternoon of the date set for departure that he could not contain himself. He laughed unreasonably, and cut up like a boy anticipating the close of school.

Wary guards, wise to the ways of prisoners, took him into an office, and grilled him so severely that he disclosed the whole plan.

The other group—two men who had worn heavy round iron balls chained to their ankles for years — saw opportunity loom unexpectedly one day. Outside, at work near a railroad, they perceived a locomotive, under steam nearby, with the engineer and fireman away.

Cautiously the two edged over to it. At a moment when they were not seen they dragged their iron shackles up into the cab and started the locomotive ahead.

It worked. They knew enough to open the trottle and run the engine. Rapidly it puffed with them out of town, into the rock and desert country that leads to the mountains.

While it was running the two men gloated over their freedom, and with files from the locomotive's tool box managed to remove from their ankles the heavy shackles they had worn for years.

Then the locomotive stopped—out of water in that arid region. But they were miles away already, and there, within five or six miles, were the mountains, where they could find water and food and safety from pursuit. The two men climbed down from the cab and abandoned their stolen engine, to finish their escape on foot.

Each stumbled a few yards and fell!

Bewildered, they arose and started again, and fell.

They could not run. They could not even walk more than a few feet at a time. For years they had adjusted their gait to the carrying and dragging of ball and chain, and upon sudden removal of the irons they could not regain proper equilibrium.

They staggered across the rocky wastes a mile or two, then pursuers caught them, and returned them to their cells.

Served 23 Years for a Murder Another Committed know whether the blacksmith died or not.

"Finally he got on the Showalter case. He said, 'I knocked Clyde Showalter on the head with a hammer on the Southern bridge at Mount Carmel. I thought I would get more than $1400 off him, but I only got about $50. I throwed him in the river first; then I got to thinking he'd be found and I took him over to Patoka Creek and buried him in a sand bar. Jesse Lucas is serving a murder sentence now for that and I'm the one that's guilty.'

"His wife and I both prayed for George then and he prayed himself. This time he seemed to feel better, for he clapped his hands and sang a hymn. Then he got quiet and seemed to rest. They took him to the hospital at Vincennes the next day and a few days later I heard he was dead. I think confessing did do his soul some good, but I tell you I'm mightily afraid he never did get prayed through."

Mayor Wright, who has been financing and pushing the investigation, says he's going to take Mrs. Smith down to Chester and let her tell her story to the pardon board first. Then he is going after those witnesses whose testimony sent Jesse Lucas to prison. The women in the case drifted away from Mount Carmel soon after the trial and all trace of them has been lost, but Conrad is said to be operating a hotel and serving on the police force of a little Arkansas town. Mayor Wright says he would like to ask Conrad a few questions.

He calls them "pup" loaves—and he bakes twenty of them every day in the laboratory of The Kroger Food Foundation so you can be sure that the flour ou buy to bake—or the flour you get bread and cakes, cookies and crackers is always up to specifications

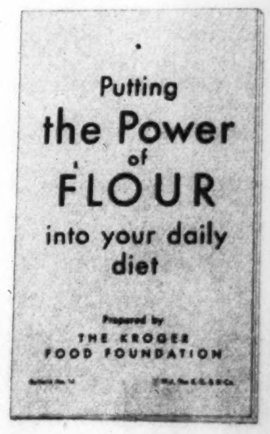
WHAT would you think of a man who starts out to bake one tiny loaf of bread and who weighs—yes, actually weighs—the flour and water, the yeast and salt and sugar down to the two hundred and eightieth of an ounce? Who cuts the dough with his spatula exactly seventy times, who kneads it ten times in his hands and ninety times on the table? Wouldn't you say he was the most particular baker you ever heard of? And wouldn't you want to know more about him?

He is most particular . . . but he's more than a baker. He's the cereal chemist of The Kroger Food Foundation. All day long he is testing and analyzing and baking to make sure that the flour you buy to bake, or the flour you get in the bread and cakes, cookies and crackers you bring home from the store, is uniform and up to specifications.

If you'd see him starting his work in the morning, you'd think he was going to test ice-cream. For the flour samples come to him in round paper cartons, like ice-cream containers. They are unmarked, except for a code number. He doesn't know and he doesn't care where the flour was milled. He doesn't take anyone's word for its protein content, its mineral content, its moisture content. He goes ahead and finds out for himself everything there is to know about it. No flour can keep a secret from him.

He puts each sample through one baffling test after another. He toasts some of it, roasts it, burns it to an ash. And only the flour that can pass his rigid oven-entrance examinations is finally mixed and molded into the "pup" loaves that he bakes.

But even after he takes these little loaves from his electric oven, he's not satisfied. Now you'll see him pulling the bread apart—pinching, weighing, smelling, testing it. He studies the crumb and crust for body and grain, or "shred," as he calls it. If the loaf is well-piled, even and smooth in texture, if the bread tastes as good as it looks, then and then only does this man (who is more than a baker) say that the sample is up to specifications . . . then and then only does he know that the flour will "act right" when it goes into your oven—into the baker's oven.



OF COURSE, this is just one phase of the work The Kroger Food Foundation is doing on flour. Its program of research is really just beginning, and the facts of its findings will be published here from time to time. Right now, The Kroger Food Foundation has ready for you a new bulletin, "Putting the Power of Flour into your Daily Diet," which gives some new and helpful ideas on the subject of flour and its uses. Be sure to ask for your copy tomorrow at your Kroger Store or write direct to THE KROGER FOOD FOUNDATION, Cincinnati, Ohio.
